In such appeal the Court has full power to go into the merits of the case and see whether the decree was properly passed.² It could be urged in such an appeal that the Court which admitted the application for review had no jurisdiction to do so.³

15 Second application for review

There is nothing in the Code of Civil Procedure preventing a second application for review where a previous application for review was made and rejected, provided such second application is based on grounds different from those taken in the first application.¹

16 Review without jurisdiction—Revision

The High Court will not interfere with the order of an appellate Court dismissing an appeal against the grant of review unless there is a want of jurisdiction or there is an illegality or material irregularity in passing such an order¹ nor will it interfere with an interlocutory order granting review for a sufficient reason. But where the first appellate Court allows an appeal against an order granting review on the grounds other than those mentioned in this Rule it acts without jurisdiction and the order is liable to be set aside in revision.³ Where a Court subordinate to the High Court rejects an application for review of judgment refusing to consider the grounds of the same and thus fails to perform its duty, it is competent to the High Court under its general powers of superintendence to direct such Court to proceed according to law.^{3a} (See also Note 27 to S 115 ante and the undermentioned cases).⁴

Synopsis

	Note No		Note No
Procedure on review	1	Effect of review on the original decree	3
What question may be gone into after the grant of review	2

1 Procedure on review

The Rule applies to High Courts and Small Cause Courts There are three stages in the proceedings for review¹ —

(1) An ex parte application and notice thereon

(2) The hearing of the application after such notice

(3) Re hearing of the case after granting the application for review This Rule refers to the procedure to be followed when an order granting a review is passed The Court ought to make a record of the fact that the review has been granted² The Court can thereafter proceed to hear the case *at once*³ or may make such order as to re-hearing as it thinks fit⁴ This is clear from the Rule itself

2 What question may be gone into after the grant of review

A Court, in granting a review, can make a qualified order as to the extent to which the review should be carried out¹ It is not bound to hear the whole case² Nor on the other hand is it restricted to the particular ground on which the application was granted³ It depends upon the circumstances of each case whether the whole case should be re-opened or whether it should be re tried in part only⁴ When, on a review application an order dismissing an appeal under O 41 R 11 is set aside the whole appeal may be heard⁵ But grounds not mentioned in the memo of appeal cannot be held⁶ A party who not only had an opportunity of raising a question but who did raise it in appeal and in the argument abandoned it cannot be allowed to agitate the question again on review.⁶ The Court has a discretion to receive at the hearing after review, documents which had not been tendered at the original hearing.⁷ But where a party obtained a review on the ground that upon the record he was entitled to full relief he sought, the other side cannot be allowed to adduce evidence.⁸ Whether certain documents which have been admitted as evidence were so admissible or not, is not a point which can be argued on review.⁹

3 Effect of review on the original decree

Where an application for review is rejected, the original decree stands.¹ Where an application for review is granted, the decree previously made is vacated. An appeal will lie therefore against such decree after the review is granted. If an appeal has been preferred it cannot after the review is granted be proceeded further.² Where after hearing on review a decree is passed modifying or confirming the original decree it is a fresh decree and can be appealed against within the time prescribed for an appeal.⁴ An order granting review is not a final order of the Court. So no leave to appeal to Privy Council can be obtained in respect of such an order.⁵

R. 9. [S. 629 Last Para] No application to review an order made on an application for a review or a decree or order passed or made on a review shall be entertained

1 Process to be served at the expense of the party applying

Ordinarily a party applying for a process on his behalf should pay for the expenses thereof. But the Court has power, under special circumstances, to direct that any other party shall bear the expenses¹ But the words unless the Court otherwise directs should not be construed as giving the Court any power to remit the fees leviable under the Court Fees Act² The Court should under Cl 2 of the rule fix a time for the payment of process fee and it is only in default of payment within such time that it can dismiss suit for default Where no such time is fixed in the order, a dismissal for non payment of process fees is not proper³ The time that a Court fixes for payment must be such as to give reasonable facilities to a litigant to obey such order and thus enable him to get the aid of the Court in the matter of summoning his witnesses an order to pay process at once is against the spirit of the Rule⁴

This Rule which applies to payment of process fees does not apply to filing of the process forms in the manner provided by the High Court Rules, and no time need be given for the same⁵ See also S 143 ante

2 Scope of the Schedule

The law of arbitration in British India is to be found in this Code and in the Arbitration Act, 1899. The Code deals both with arbitrations pending litigation, and with arbitrations without recourse to litigation. The Arbitration Act, on the other hand, applies only to arbitrations by agreement without the intervention of the Court of justice, and only in cases where, if the subject matter submitted to arbitration were the subject of a suit, the suit could be instituted in a Presidency Town or other local area to which the Act is made applicable by the Local Government. Where the Act applies, Paragraphs 17 to 23 of the Second Schedule (dealing with references to arbitration without the intervention of the Court) do not apply.¹

The Act was passed to remedy two defects that were supposed to exist in the provisions as to arbitration enacted in the old Code, viz:—

- (1) That the Code did not apply to cases where the dispute which was the subject of reference did not arise at the date of the agreement to refer. In other words where an agreement was entered into to settle differences that may arise in future by arbitration, and a dispute subsequently arose between the parties, the agreement to refer could not be filed in Court under the provisions of the Code.
- (2) That the Code applied only to cases where the agreement to refer named the arbitrator or stated that he should be appointed by the Court.

The first of these defects was, however, removed by a Full Bench decision of the High Court of Bombay in Fazulbhoy Mehrul Chinnoy v The Bombay and Persia Steam Navigation Company, Ltd.,^{1a} in which it was held that on a correct interpretation of the Code, it applied also to agreements to refer future disputes to arbitration. The second defect also has now been removed by the omission from Paragraph 17 of this Schedule, of the provisions requiring the arbitrator to be named. At present, therefore, there is no material difference between the provisions of the Code and those of the Arbitration Act as regards references without the intervention of the Court, except that the latter applies to particular local areas, and the former applies to other parts of British India.

In Ghulam Khan v Muhammad Hassan,^{1b} their Lordships of the Privy Council had occasion to consider the true construction and effect of the provisions of the Code relating to arbitration and they observed that those provisions deal with arbitrations under three heads:—

- (1) Where the parties to a litigation desire to refer to arbitration any matter in difference between them in the suit. In that case all proceedings from first to last are under the supervision of the Court. (Paragraphs 1 to 16 deal with such matters)

1b (1901) 29 Cal 167 (182 183) (1 C)

(2) Where the parties, without recourse to litigation, agree to refer their differences to arbitration and it is desired that the agreement of reference should have the sanction of the Court. In that case all further proceedings are under the supervision of the Court (Paragraphs 17 to 19 of the Schedule deal with such matters)

(3) Where the agreement of reference is made and the arbitration itself takes place without the intervention of the Court, and the assistance of the Court is only sought to give effect to the award (Paragraphs 20 To 23 of the schedule deal with these matters)

3 Applicability of the Schedule to insolvency proceedings

The provisions of this Schedule do not apply to proceedings under the Provincial Insolvency Act 1920 by virtue of S 5 of that Act. An Insolvency Court has therefore no power to refer the whole proceedings to arbitrators to decide whether the petitioner for insolvency or (in the case of a petition by a creditor) the debtor should or should not be declared an insolvent. The proceedings require the exercise of judicial discretion and it would be acting contrary to the whole spirit of the Act for a Court which has special jurisdiction thereunder to delegate its powers and duties to the arbitrator ¹

4 Applicability of the Schedule to execution proceedings

This Schedule does not apply to execution proceedings and a Court executing a decree cannot refer the matter in the execution proceedings to arbitration ¹

5 Applicability of the Schedule to probate proceedings

A dispute relating to the genuineness of a will in a probate proceeding pending before Court cannot be referred to arbitration ¹. So also an application for revocation of the grant of a probate cannot be referred to arbitration ². This is based on the view that a decision on such questions is not merely one inter partes but is a judgment in rem against the whole world and therefore cannot be allowed to be decided by arbitrators selected at the instance of merely the parties to the proceeding

6 Applicability of the Schedule to suits for restitution of conjugal rights

The factum or validity of a marriage may in a suit for the restitution of conjugal rights be referred to arbitration ¹ but the whole suit cannot be referred to arbitration inasmuch as the question whether a decree for restitution should be made or not is a matter entirely in the discretion of the Court and cannot be delegated to arbitrators ²

6a Arbitration in proceedings under other Acts

1 Section 52 of the Bengal Estates Partition Act (V of 1897) provides that when a partition has been referred to arbitration the proceedings shall be conducted in accordance with the provisions of Paragraphs 1 to 16 of this Schedule so far as they are applicable

3 Under S 43 of the Bengal Survey Act (V of 1875) and S 16 of the Burma Boundaries Act (V of 1880), the Collector or the Boundary Officer may, with the consent of the parties concerned, refer to arbitration any dispute as to a boundary

4 In cases of reference to arbitration under S 203 of the U P Land Revenue Act (III of 1901) the provisions of Paragraphs 2 to 16 of this Schedule shall apply, so far as they are not inconsistent with anything in that Act (See S 204 of the Act)

7 All parties interested must agree to reference

The agreement to refer the matter in dispute in a pending suit must have the concurrence of all the parties concerned¹ In other words the foundation of the jurisdiction of the Court to make an order of reference is an agreement between all the persons interested² An order of reference made by the Court where all the parties interested have not agreed, is thus without jurisdiction and invalid³ not only against the absent party, but against all parties, i e, even those who have joined in the reference^{3a} A subsequent consent by one of the parties who did not join in the reference at the time it was made cannot make the proceedings valid and an award made on such reference is void and need not be set aside⁴. An objection to the validity of the reference on the ground of the non-agreement of all the parties can be raised at any stage⁵. The decision cited below⁶ where it was held that a party may be estopped by his conduct from contesting a reference to which he was no party cannot be accepted on principle as correct.

It is however only the parties interested that should agree to the reference. Section 506 of the old Code provided that all the parties to the suit may apply for a reference to arbitration. But it was held by the High Court of Allahabad that the words "all the parties to a suit" would not necessarily include parties between whom and any of the parties to the submission there was, in fact, no matter in difference in the suit⁷. The word "interested" was added in the present Code to give effect to the above view⁸.

The expression "all parties interested" means parties interested in the specific dispute referred to arbitration and not in the subject matter of the whole suit⁹. Where parties have distinct and severable interests, a party interested only in one such portion need not join in a reference with respect to the other portions¹⁰.

The question whether a party is interested within the meaning of this Paragraph depends upon the facts of each case¹¹. One important test is to see whether he is a necessary party or a person who could be joined as a proper party under the provisions of O 1, R 10 of the Code¹². An unnecessary or pro forma party,¹³ or a party who had been exonerated at the time of the reference¹⁴ cannot be said to be a person interested within the meaning of the Paragraph. A person who is ex parte in the suit¹⁵ or even a person against whom no relief is claimed¹⁶ is not necessarily a person not interested. Whether he is so interested or not depends upon the facts of the particular case¹⁷ including the conduct of the party up to the end of the proceedings¹⁸. But the mere fact that the award that was passed is not in fact against him cannot be taken to show that he was not interested at the time of the reference^{18a}. Where there is in fact no matter in difference between the ex parte defendant and the parties to the submission, his not joining the reference will not affect the validity of the reference¹⁹. If on the other hand he is interested and does not agree to the reference, the order of reference is ultra vires and is invalid²⁰.

A defendant who makes a complete admission of the plaintiff's claim entitling the latter to a judgment under O 12, R 6 of the Code is no longer interested and need not join in the reference by the plaintiff and the other defendants²¹.

8 All the parties if should apply

All the parties interested must not only agree to the reference, but must apply to the Court. If before the application is made to the Court one of the parties resiled from the agreement no order of reference can be passed on the ground that he previously agreed to a reference being made before the application was presented¹.

See also the undermentioned case².

9 Effect of omission to sign or verify the application—See Note 21 infra

10 Matter in difference

The matter in difference is the matter in dispute between the parties¹. A dispute implies an assertion of a right by one party and the repudiation thereof by another². It is not however necessary that the question should be one which the Court can legally enquire into. Thus a dispute as to an uncertified payment or adjustment which the Court cannot take notice of, can be a matter in difference between the parties which can be referred to arbitration³.

The matter in difference must be one which has actually arisen at the time of the reference though it need not have arisen at the time of the agreement to refer⁴. There can be no reference to arbitration under this Schedule of existing differences as well as *disputes that may arise in the future*⁶ A dispute may exist even where the liability is fully admitted and only the payment is withheld The facts of each case must be examined to see whether there is a dispute⁶

Further the matter in difference must be one arising in the suit and between the parties to the suit The Court has no power to refer to arbitration any questions between the parties to the suit other than those in question in the suit, or any questions in which any person, not a party to the suit is concerned⁷

A reference is competent on a question of law as well as a question of fact⁸ Consequently, an error made by the arbitrators on a point of law referred to them does not vitiate the award and cannot be questioned on the ground that it is not in accordance with the received interpretation of the law⁹ but the matter in difference must relate only to the private rights of the parties to the litigation A suit under S 92 of the Code is not one for the determination of the private rights of the parties to the litigation, and matters in such a suit cannot be referred to arbitration¹⁰ Similarly the selection of a guardian for a minor in a proceeding under the Guardians and Wards Act, 1890 is not a matter of private interest and cannot be settled by reference to arbitration¹¹ It has been held that a criminal complaint cannot be referred to arbitration¹²

Where a question arises as to what the matter was that was referred to arbitration, it is for the Court to say on a construction of the reference The arbitrator's belief about it is immaterial¹³ Where a whole case is referred to arbitration the question of costs also must be taken to have been referred and the arbitrators can give a decision thereon¹⁴ (See also Paragraph 13 below)

in the reference is void² Where, however, an application for reference includes matters outside the suit but the Court orders a reference only as to matters in difference in the suit, the order of reference is not illegal³ Again where on the same day parties apply for reference to arbitration of matters in difference between them in the suit and also separately make a reference as to matters outside the suit, the order of reference made by the Court with regard to the subject matter of the suit cannot be questioned on the ground of illegality or invalidity⁴

12 Application shall be in writing—See Note 21, below.

13 At any time before judgment is pronounced

The parties are entitled to have the matter in difference between them submitted to arbitration, at any time before judgment is pronounced The Court has no discretion to reject the application made by the parties for a reference to arbitration¹

14 Revocation of submission

Where an order of reference to arbitration is made through Court, all subsequent proceedings are, as has been seen in Note 2 above, under the supervision of the Court Consequently a party to the agreement to refer is not entitled to terminate the reference by any revocation on his part He is bound by it and the arbitration must proceed according to the provisions of the law¹ The Court may, however supersede the arbitration on the application of the parties in the cases specified in Paragraphs 5 and 8 of the Schedule There is a conflict of opinion whether even the Court can revoke the arbitration in cases not falling within the said Paragraphs According to the decisions cited below² the Court has no power to deal with the matter in difference between the parties until the award is made Thus the Court could not even allow the withdrawal of the suit after an order of reference has been made, though if there is any partiality or misconduct on the part of the arbitrator, the Court could, after the award is made, set it aside³ On the other hand it has been held in the undermentioned cases⁴ that there is an inherent jurisdiction to intervene and supersede the arbitration in cases not falling within Paragraphs 5 and 8 where such an order is necessary for the ends of justice or to prevent an abuse of the process of the Court

Where an agreement to refer has been entered into without recourse to litigation it may be filed in Court under Paragraph 17 where no sufficient cause is shown against its being filed. On an interpretation of S 326 of the Code of 1859 corresponding to Paragraph 17 of this Schedule it was held by their Lordships of the Privy Council in Pestonji Nusserwanjee v D Maneckjee and Co, 12 Moore's Indian Appeals 112 that where parties have agreed to submit the matter in difference between them to arbitration of one or more certain specified persons, no party to submission can revoke the submission to arbitration unless for good cause, and that a mere arbitrary revocation of the authority is not permitted. And this has been followed in numerous cases. See notes to Paragraph 17, infra. In cases falling within the Arbitration Act 1899, a submission to arbitration may be revoked by leave of the Court. As to the circumstances under which such leave may be given, see the undermentioned cases.⁵

15 Withdrawal of suit after reference to arbitration

As has been seen in Note 14 above the Court has no jurisdiction to allow a withdrawal of the suit after reference¹ or after an award has been made on such reference.² An application to file an award under Paragraph 20 of the Code can however be allowed to be withdrawn as if it were a suit.³

16 Court—Appellate Court

As has been seen in Note 8 to O 41, R 25 ante where the appellate Court remits a case under that Rule the lower Court has no power to refer the case to arbitration.¹ Nor can the appellate Court by its order of remand direct the lower Court to do so.² By virtue of sub section (2) of S 107 ante the appellate Court has the same powers of acting under this Schedule as the Court of first instance. Thus the appellate Court can refer, with the consent of parties, matters in dispute in appeal to arbitration.³ Where the Court of first instance passes a decree not in accordance with the award, but the appellate Court holding that the award is not open to any objections passes a decree in accordance with this award, it is final under Paragraph 16 of the Schedule.⁴

17 Death of party if operates as revocation of reference

This view proceeded on the principle that an arbitrator was, in the contemplation of the law, merely an agent appointed by the parties to decide the matter in dispute between them¹. The law in this country is however quite the reverse, and the death of a party pending arbitration proceedings through Court does not necessarily revoke the reference². If on the death of the party the right to sue survives to his representatives, they should be brought on record under the provisions of O 22³. Where no application is made within time for bringing the legal representatives on the record, and the suit abates, the award made by the arbitrators subsequent thereto cannot be filed in Court⁴.

In a proceeding before the arbitrator on a reference made without the intervention of the Court, there is no provision of law enabling the arbitrator to bring the legal representatives of a deceased party, to the submission on record, and the fact that the arbitrator failed to do so does not make the award illegal and not binding on the representatives⁵ especially where the party dies after the hearing is terminated and nothing remains for the arbitrators to do but to deliver their award⁶.

18 Authority of pleader to refer

Section 506 of the old Code required a special authority for a pleader to make a reference to arbitration on behalf of his client¹. In the present Paragraph the words as to special authority have been omitted. It has been held by the Sind Judicial Commissioners Court that the effect of the omission is to enable a pleader to make a reference to arbitration even though the vakalatnama does not specifically authorise him to do so². The general trend of opinion is, however, that a pleader has no such authority³. A counsel as distinguished from a pleader who derives his authority only from the vakalatnama, has implied authority even to make a reference to arbitration⁴. But neither a counsel nor a pleader expressly authorised to refer to arbitration can delegate his power to refer to arbitration to another pleader without express authorisation to that effect⁵. Nor will the reference to arbitration by the counsel of a party be binding on the party where he had given the counsel express instructions against making any such reference⁶. A pleader has no authority to revoke the appointment of an 19 Authority of agent to refer.

The authorised agent of a party within the meaning of O 3, Rr 1 and 2, can make a reference on behalf of his principal¹. No special power of authorisation is, however, necessary to enable him to do so². The principal can also subsequently ratify the agent's act in referring to arbitration, even where the agent had originally no authority to do so³. A partner is an agent of the firm only for the purpose of the business of the firm⁴. It is not part of the business of the firm to refer matters in dispute to arbitration and therefore one partner cannot, as such, make or authorise a reference to arbitration on behalf of the firm⁵. But the managing partner of the firm can validly make a reference to arbitration so as to bind the firm⁶.

20 Authority of guardian or manager of a joint Hindu family

The next friend or natural guardian of a minor is entitled to refer disputes to arbitration, where there is no pending suit in respect of it, if the same is for the benefit of the minor and the award passed on such a reference will be binding on the minor¹. As to the powers of a guardian ad litem to agree to refer the subject-matter of the suit to arbitration, see Note 15 to O 32, R 7 and the undermentioned case². The manager of a joint Hindu family represents the other members of the family and can refer the family disputes to arbitration³.

are the matters in difference between the parties on which the arbitrator is required to arbitrate¹ If the agreement is so vague as to make it impossible to ascertain what the dispute was which was referred to arbitration, it is bad for indefiniteness² The Paragraph requires that the agreement to refer shall be in writing Where there is no written reference and there is nothing to show what the parties agreed to refer, the reference and the award will be invalid³ But the provision as to the requirement of writing is only directory and not mandatory the object thereof being merely to avoid a subsequent controversy as to whether there was or was not any such application⁴ An award is not therefore invalid merely because it was not made in writing if it is clear that the parties did agree to refer⁵ In the undermentioned case⁶ an application for an adjournment on the ground that the parties had referred the dispute to arbitration was assumed to be an application for an order of reference It was however held in the case cited below⁷ that the requirement as to writing, cannot be said to be directory but that nevertheless the parties were estopped from defeating the arbitration proceedings on the ground of non compliance with the Paragraph The High Court of Bombay has also held that want of writing undermines the foundation of jurisdiction but that it is not sufficient by itself, to set aside the award⁸ These two cases cannot it is submitted, be accepted as correct on principle The breach of a mandatory provision or the want of jurisdiction will render the proceedings void and there can be no question of estoppel

Where the parties have agreed and applied to the Court for a reference the mere fact that one of them has not signed the application does not vitiate the reference⁹ Where the pleader of a party duly authorised signs the reference the fact that the party himself does not sign it will not invalidate the award¹⁰ It was

1 Appointment of arbitrator

It is essential that the parties should either name the arbitrators or consent to the nomination of the arbitrators by the Court The Court has no authority to force upon a reluctant party the decision of any question in the cause by arbitrators selected at its discretion¹ A party may however waive such an irregularity but if he appears before the arbitrator under protest he cannot be held to have forfeited his right to question the validity of the proceedings

Before the Court refers a case to arbitration it should ascertain whether the persons nominated are willing to accept the office and till then it cannot make a reference³

1 Legislative changes

The word delivery has been substituted by the word making in sub paragraph (1). See Note 7 below

2 The Court shall by order refer

As has been seen in Note 13 to Paragraph 1 ante where the parties apply to the Court for an order of reference the Court is bound to make an order of reference and has no discretion in the matter. In the absence of an order of reference by the Court under this Paragraph the arbitration proceedings and the award made therein are illegal¹. Where the parties applied for adjournment of the suit from time to time on the ground that the matters in dispute had been referred to arbitration and the Court granted time it was held that the order granting adjournment on the application of the parties should under the circumstances of the case be construed as an order of reference².

3 Revocation or withdrawal from arbitration

See Notes 14 15 and 17 to Paragraph 1 ante

4 Matter in difference

See Note 10 to Paragraph 1. Where it is found that one matter in difference agreed to be referred has been omitted from the reference and that consequently the arbitrators have not given any decision thereon the party interested should bring the omission to the notice of the Court so that the Court may send the case back to the arbitrators with a fresh reference on the point omitted. If he does not do so, the Court is not wrong in deciding the point itself.¹ The decision of the arbitrators on matters not in dispute, nor referred to them is null and void for want of jurisdiction.²

5 Shall fix such time as it considers reasonable

The words are mandatory and imperative and the Court is bound to fix in its order of reference a time for the making of the award.¹ This fixing of a limit of time is in fact the pillar and pivot of the scheme of this Schedule, enabling the Court to have control over the arbitrators, and the power cannot be delegated to the arbitrators themselves.² But where the order of reference does fix a time but describes it as one fixed for the hearing of the suit instead of for making the award there is only an irregularity which may not vitiate the reference.³ An award made beyond the time fixed is liable to be set aside under Paragraph 15, infra, though an award made within the time fixed but filed after time is not bad.⁴

As to the power of the Court to extend time fixed see Paragraph 8 below

6 Court if can extend time fixed

See Paragraph 8 infra

7 When award is said to be made

An award is made when the arbitrators have drawn up, executed and signed it. It is the making of the award that should be within the time fixed. The filing thereof into Court after the time fixed will not vitiate the award.¹ Under the old Code the word used was delivery and even then it was interpreted to mean only the making of the award as distinguished from its being filed in Court.²

8 Effect of order of reference

Where a Court makes an order of reference to arbitration its jurisdiction to deal with the case so long as the proceedings are pending before the arbitrator

1 Scope of the Paragraph

Where two or more arbitrators are appointed, the Court is bound to provide, in its order of reference, for a difference of opinion among the arbitrators, in the manner specified in this Paragraph^{1a} Where no such provision was made, and there having been a difference of opinion among the arbitrators the Court decided the case itself on the evidence given before the arbitrators, the High Court remanded the case to the lower Court to make a fresh submission to the arbitrators after complying with the requirements of this Paragraph¹ Where, however, under similar circumstances the lower Court decided the case on evidence taken before itself it was held by the High Court that it would not be right to remand the case for a fresh reference² See also Note 2 Pts (4) and (5) infra

An arbitrator cannot himself be appointed as an umpire under this Paragraph³

2 Decision of majority—Clause (b)

Unless the order of reference provides that the decision of the majority or of the umpire, if any, shall prevail the award must be by all the arbitrators An award by only a majority of the arbitrators in such cases is not valid¹ If however the application for the order of reference provides that the opinion of the majority shall prevail, the fact that the order of reference does not refer to it will not invalidate the award by the majority of the arbitrators² The reason is that the authority of the Court to make a reference depends upon the agreement of the parties that if the parties agree that the opinion of the majority shall prevail the only order that the Court could pass is an order of reference to that effect and that it should therefore be deemed to have passed the order that it ought to have passed⁴ Where one of the parties to a reference is a minor, his guardian can consent to abide by the decision of a majority of the arbitrators^{5a} But the fact that neither the application for an order of reference nor the order of reference makes any such provision as provided by this Paragraph will not nullify an unanimous

Scope of the Paragraph	1	(a) Extension of time for submission by umpire	4
Decision of majority—Clause (b)	2	Delegation of duty by arbitrators	5
Appointment of umpire by arbitrators	3

1. Scope of the Paragraph

Where two or more arbitrators are appointed, the Court is bound to provide, in its order of reference, for a difference of opinion among the arbitrators, in the manner specified in this Paragraph^{1a}. Where no such provision was made, and there having been a difference of opinion among the arbitrators the Court decided the case itself on the evidence given before the arbitrators, the High Court remanded the case to the lower Court to make a fresh submission to the arbitrators after complying with the requirements of this Paragraph¹. Where, however, under similar circumstances the lower Court decided the case on evidence taken before itself it was held by the High Court that it would not be right to remand the case for a fresh reference². See also Note 2 Pts (4) and (5), infra.

An arbitrator cannot himself be appointed as an umpire under this Paragraph³.

2 Decision of majority—Clause (b)

Unless the order of reference provides that the decision of the majority or of the umpire, if any, shall prevail, the award must be by all the arbitrators. An award by only a majority of the arbitrators in such cases is not valid¹. If however the application for the order of reference provides that the opinion of the majority shall prevail, the fact that the order of reference does not refer to it will not invalidate the award by the majority of the arbitrators². The reason is that the authority of the Court to make a reference depends upon the agreement of the parties, that if the parties agree that the opinion of the majority shall prevail, the only order that the Court could pass is an order of reference to that effect, and that it should therefore be deemed to have passed the order that it ought to have passed³. Where one of the parties to a reference is a minor, his guardian can consent to abide by the decision of a majority of the arbitrators^{3a}. But the fact, that neither the application for an order of reference nor the order of reference makes any such provision as provided by this Paragraph, will not nullify an unanimous award by all the arbitrators⁴. Where, in such a case, the arbitrators gave an unanimous award as to part and were divided as to part, the former is binding on the parties though the opinion of the majority as to the latter is not⁵.

It should be noted that even if a provision is made in the order of reference that the decision of the majority shall prevail it is essential that all the arbitrators should be present at the deliberations. If they are present at the proceedings but some of them thereafter express their dissent and leave the place, the decision of the majority will be perfectly valid⁶. But if they are not so present and do not take part in the deliberations, the award is invalid and not binding on the parties⁷. See also Note 2 to Paragraph 10, infra.

3 Appointment of umpire by arbitrators

When an umpire is appointed he is under no obligation to agree with one or other of the dissenting arbitrators. He is entitled to settle the matter in his own way according to what he thinks proper. He need not confer with the arbitrators¹.

4 Extension of time for submission by umpire

The umpire has the same powers as the arbitrators and could by application get extension of time for filing his award. See Paragraph 8 below.

5 Delegation of duty by arbitrators

The arbitrators appointed by Court under this Schedule cannot delegate their authority to a third person^{2a}, nor can the parties by their consent confer such a power on the arbitrators in derogation of the Court's order³.

But an arbitrator may delegate to a third person the performance of any acts which are merely ministerial in their nature².

Where the arbitrators are empowered to choose an umpire, they have themselves to make the choice and ought not to delegate it to a third person³.

1 Legislative changes

The words "and the parties desire" that the nomination shall be made by the Court which occurred in S 507 of the old Code have been omitted

2 Appointment of new arbitrator or umpire

Under Ss 507 and 510 of the old Code where the arbitrator nominated refused to accept the office the Court could not appoint a new arbitrator unless all the parties desired the Court to do so but that where the arbitrator after accepting the office refused to act the Court may appoint an arbitrator on the application of some only of the parties¹ In *Sadik Hussain v Kaniz Zhora Begam*² the Judicial Committee pointed out on a true construction of S 510 that there is no room for such a distinction and that the expression refuses to act in S 510 included also a case where an arbitrator refused to accept the office inasmuch as the acceptance of the office was the first essential act of an arbitrator The omission of the words "and the parties desire" etc has brought the present Paragraph in conformity with the decision of the Privy Council The Court can under the present Paragraph appoint an arbitrator without the consent of all the parties in both cases viz where an arbitrator refuses to accept the office as well as where he refuses to act though this can be done only on application by either party and after notice to the opposite party adjudication of disputes by arbitrators should be the result of their free consent to undertake the duties of arbitrating between the contending parties. The finality of an award is based on the principle that the arbitrators are judges chosen by the parties themselves and are willing to settle the disputes referred to them. Hence where an arbitrator refuses to act the Court has no power to compel him to arbitrate against his will¹. The duty of the Court in such a case is either to appoint a new arbitrator or supersede the reference and proceed with the suit². If the Court does neither of these two things the further proceedings in arbitration and the resulting award thereon are *invalid*³. But an arbitrator has full power to retract his resignation before it is accepted and acted upon by the Court and an award made subsequent to such retraction is not invalid by reason of the original refusal to act⁴. Similarly if the Court asks the arbitrator to reconsider his refusal or resignation and he thereupon agrees to act and proceeds to arbitrate the award will not be invalid⁵.

3 Arbitrator refusing to act

A refusal on the part of the arbitrator to act can be implied from his conduct as for instance where he fails to submit the award within the time fixed⁶.

4 Arbitrator becoming incapable of acting

When an arbitrator becomes incapable of acting by reason, for example of illness the Court can supersede the reference or appoint a new arbitrator¹. The Court can act similarly when an umpire leaves British India and there is no evidence to show his intention to return at an early date².

5 Appointment of new arbitrator

Before the Court proceeds to make a new appointment under this Paragraph not only should one of the conditions mentioned in Cls (a) and (b) happen but the requirement as to the notice to the opposite party should also be fulfilled¹. If the Court proceeds to make an appointment without such notice it acts with material irregularity².

Where however the parties by mutual agreement make a change in the personnel of the arbitrators without the intervention of the Court and carry on the arbitration proceedings the award is not invalid by reason of the omission to follow the procedure prescribed by this Paragraph. The reason is that the very foundation of arbitration proceedings is the consent of the parties and such consent will cure any defect in the matter of procedure³.

After notice is given to the opposite party as required by sub para (1) it is open to the parties themselves to appoint an arbitrator provided all the parties agree⁴ (Cf the provisions of Para 2, supra and S 8 of the Indian Arbitration Act IX of 1899) If the parties fail to make such appointment, the Court can appoint the arbitrator after hearing the parties. But it is not bound to do so in all cases. It has a discretion either to appoint the arbitrator or to supersede the reference⁵. In making a new appointment the Court has no power to compel an unwilling party to pay remuneration to the arbitrator chosen by it especially where there is no provision for the same in the original reference⁶.

If a party does not object to the appointment by the Court of the nominee of the opposite party as arbitrator, but acquiesces in it by taking part in proceedings before him he will be estopped from questioning the validity of the appointment later on when the award goes against him⁷.

6 Appointment of an umpire

The power of the Court to appoint an umpire under this Para is not unlimited but is controlled and limited by the terms of the agreement between the parties as to what course is to be adopted if there is a difference of opinion among the arbitrators. Thus where the terms of the submission to arbitration were that an umpire should be selected from out of seven persons named therein and the umpire first chosen declined to act it was held that the Court could not ignore the remaining six persons and appoint a stranger as an umpire and that the award in such a case was not valid¹.

7 Order superseding arbitration

The Court cannot supersede the reference under this Paragraph unless the conditions prescribed herein are fulfilled¹. Thus an accusation of partiality against the arbitrator² or an allegation that an umpire has been tampered with³ or the fact that one of the parties fails to pay his share of the remuneration fixed for the arbitrator⁴ are not grounds for superseding the reference under this Paragraph.

The Court cannot suo motu supersede the reference without there being any application by the parties and without the procedure as to notice being complied with⁵. Nor can a mere agreement of the parties to refer the matter to a person other than the arbitrator already chosen have the effect of superseding the reference⁶.

Where the Court decides to supersede the reference it is bound to proceed with the suit. Where there is no suit pending and the Court has discharged itself of the lis by passing a final decree it cannot supersede the reference. Thus where the parties to a suit settled their disputes as to partition but agreed that the shares should be worked out and properties allotted by certain arbitrators and the Court passed a decree in pursuance of the settlement under S 375 (now O 23 R 3) and subsequently one of the arbitrators declined to act as an arbitrator the Judicial Committee held that the Court could not supersede the reference and allot the shares. observed "To proceed with the suit (to use the language of S 510) was in this case, in their Lordships view, impossible,' and referring to the decree they proceeded to say

It put an end to the suit and that was the very object of the compromise. The alternative in S 510 is impossible because there is no suit now pending with which the Court can proceed. All that the Courts in India could do was to take advantage of the sections of the Code which enabled them to keep the machinery of arbitration going.⁷

Where an arbitration fails and the Court decides to supersede the reference, it ought not to dispose of the suit at once without fixing a date for its hearing and giving due notice thereof to the parties.⁸ But the Court need not consider a second reference to arbitration when it decides to go on with the case.⁹

An order superseding an arbitration can be implied as where the arbitrators refuse to act and the Court proceeds to try the suit.¹⁰

8 Revision

An order passed under this Paragraph is not appealable. But an omission to comply with the formalities prescribed by this Paragraph as to notice amounts to a material irregularity and can be revised.¹ An order superseding the arbitration or appointing a fresh arbitrator is an order deciding a 'case' within the meaning of S 115 of the Code.²

1 Scope of the Paragraph

This Paragraph empowers the arbitrator to seek the assistance of the Court in the matter of summoning witnesses and enforcing their attendance. An arbitrator should notify the date of the hearing to the parties and he cannot take evidence in the absence of the parties and without their knowledge¹. But where after notice either party fails to appear or notifies his withdrawal from the submission² he can proceed ex parte. An award passed ex parte cannot be set aside unless sufficient cause is shown for the non appearance of the party³.

An arbitrator should take only such evidence as is required by the terms of the agreement referring the question in dispute to arbitration⁴.

The words refusing to give evidence in Cl 2 refer to the case of a person who refuses to give evidence when placed on oath and is required to answer any question put to him and not to a case where a person elects not to produce any evidence⁶.

1 Legislative changes

1 The words 'where the arbitrators or the umpire cannot complete the award' have been substituted for the words 'if from the want of necessary evidence or information or from any other cause' which occurred in the corresponding S. 318 of the old Code. The effect of the alteration is that the scope of this Para. 1 has been enlarged.

2 The words 'either before or after the expiration of the period fixed' have been newly added after the words 'from time to time'. They give effect to the undermentioned decisions under the old Code which held that the Court had power to extend the time for the making of an award even after the expiry of the time originally fixed.

2 Award made out of time—See Notes to Para 3, ante

3 Extension of time

The Court can extend the time fixed for making an award at any time before the award is actually made even though the time originally fixed may have expired at the time of such further extension¹. But when once an award is made, the power of the Court to grant further time under this Paragraph becomes spent and cannot be exercised thereafter². Nor has the Court power under S 145 of the Code to extend the time in such a case, for that section does not enable the Court to extend the time for the doing of any particular act when in truth and in fact the act has already been done³. Where, however, an award is simply signed but not announced to the parties or sent to Court, the award cannot be said to be finally made and complete, and an order of extension of time subsequent to such signing is not invalid⁴. On an application for extension of time under this Paragraph, the Court should, as has been seen in Note 3 to Para 3 above, itself fix the further time and cannot delegate the power to do so to the arbitrators.

An order of extension of time can be implied from the proceeding of the Court * In the case cited below⁶ it was held that an oral application for extension of time was not incompetent

4 Estoppel

As will be seen from the Notes to Para 15, infra, an award passed out of time is not a nullity under the present Code. Consequently the parties may, in such cases, be estopped by their conduct from disputing the validity thereof¹

5 Or may make an order superseding the reference

The Court has a discretion under this Paragraph either to extend the time fixed for the award or to supersede the reference^{2a}. Thus, where the arbitrators are guilty of neglect in submitting their award in spite of several extensions of time the Court can supersede the reference and proceed with the suit¹. But the Court has no jurisdiction to deal with the suit and cannot dismiss it for default until and unless it supersedes the reference². An order superseding the reference need not, however be express. It can be implied from the procedure adopted by the Court³.

As already seen in Note 5 to Para 3 above an award made within time but filed into Court later is not invalid and the Court cannot supersede the reference in such a case⁴.

Where the Court supersedes the reference it cannot straightaway dispose of the suit on the same day. It should fix a date for the hearing, and give due notice of the same to the parties⁵. As to whether the Court has power to set aside an order superseding the reference, see the case cited below⁶.

Umpire when empowered to arbitrate in lieu of arbitrators Note No 1

1 Umpire when empowered to arbitrate in lieu of arbitrators

An umpire can enter on the reference and himself make the award only in two cases —

(1) Where the arbitrators have allowed the appointed time to expire without making an award

(2) When they have delivered to the Court or to the umpire a notice in writing stating that they cannot agree¹

Thus where one of several arbitrators absented himself from the arbitration proceedings and after the expiry of the time fixed for the award the umpire approached the Court for direction it was held that Cl (a) applied to this case and the umpire was himself entitled to make an award². An umpire is under no obligation to agree with one or others of the dissenting arbitrators or to confer with them but is entitled to settle the matter in his own way according to what he thinks proper³. But where the agreement of reference provides that the umpire should agree with one or other of the sets of the dissenting arbitrators an award by the umpire which agrees with neither of the two sets of arbitrators is not valid⁴.

Even in a case where an umpire has been appointed and the arbitrators have allowed the appointed time to expire without making an award the Court has jurisdiction to extend the time under Para 8 *ante*⁵. See also Note 3 to Para 8 ante.

essential that all of them should sign the award³ Where however, the parties agree to be bound by the decision of the majority, it is enough if the award is signed by the majority of the arbitrators⁴ An award made by more persons than those appointed is invalid⁵ unless the parties acquiesce in the same⁶

It is not necessary in the case of several arbitrators that all of them should sign the award at the same time and in the same place⁷ Where an award is duly signed the fact that it is not stamped⁸ or that the fair copy of the award is not signed by all of them⁹ would not affect the validity of the award But where an arbitrator signs a blank paper before the decision is embodied in it the award is not properly signed¹⁰

When once an award is made the arbitrators become functus officio and they have no power to alter¹¹ or review¹² the award, unless the Court or the parties by consent remit the matter to them for reconsideration¹³ In the case cited below¹⁴ it was held that an arbitrator was justified in refusing to sign the award before it was engrossed on stamp paper although he had signed the memorandum of award on the ground that owing to some misunderstanding in the language his opinion had to be changed

The provisions of this Paragraph apply only to a reference to arbitration through the intervention of the Court and not to an award made on a private reference out of Court The award in the latter case is not invalid by reason of the want of signature of the arbitrators¹⁵ The reason is that a private award can even be an oral one and an award in writing will not be less valid because it was not signed by the arbitrators

The report of arbitrators embodying a compromise arrived at between the parties subsequent to the reference is not an award¹⁶

2 Necessity of presence of arbitrators at meetings

absence of one of them at a meeting in which nothing material was done and no enquiry was made will not invalidate the award²

3 Together with any depositions and documents

Though this Paragraph contemplates the possibility of the depositions of witnesses being reduced to writing by the arbitrators, it does not oblige them to keep such a record¹. The mere fact that an arbitrator has omitted to file along with his award the depositions of the witnesses examined by him or the documentary evidence filed before him will not justify the Court in holding on that ground that the award is invalid though it may lead to the conclusion that the arbitrator has not acted in accordance with law and is guilty of misconduct as stated in Para 15².

An arbitrator should not permit the removal of documents entrusted to him and forming part of the record³. He should return them to the Court. The Court can also call upon him to give up the same to the Court when his right to keep them as arbitrator has come to an end⁴.

4 Notice of the filing shall be given

The provisions of this Paragraph are mandatory and the Court is bound to give notice of the filing of the award to the parties¹. Under Article 158 of the Limitation Act, the parties are entitled to ten days time for filing their objections to the award and such period is to be computed from the date on which the notice is given². The omission to give notice is a material irregularity and affords a ground for interference by the High Court in revision³. If a decree is passed in terms of the award without the notice required by this Paragraph to be given the decree is bad and is liable to be set aside⁴.

There is a conflict of opinion as to whether a formal notice under this Paragraph is necessary where the parties are made aware of the filing of the award without such formal notice. In the undermentioned cases⁵ it has been held that where the parties are made aware of the filing of the award, the absence of a formal notice would not vitiate the proceedings. A contrary view, namely that a formal notice under this Paragraph is necessary and knowledge altunde is not

5 Delivery of the award

An award should be filed into the Court and then only the Court can proceed further and pass a decree ¹ But the filing of the award need not be personally made by the arbitrator. It can be handed over to the parties who may file it into Court ² It is, however, necessary that the arbitrator should cause the award to be filed into Court. Where an award reached the Court mysteriously by post and none of the arbitrators took the responsibility of saying who caused the same to be sent, it was held that the Court could not act upon the award ³

The act of an arbitrator in handing over an award to the proper officer of the Court for the purpose of being filed is not an application within the meaning of Article 178 of the Limitation Act. Hence the Article does not apply to the delivery of an award by an arbitrator to the Court ⁴

6 Form of award

For form of award see Appendix to this Schedule Form No 5. See also the undermentioned case ¹

7 Registration of award if necessary

An award made by arbitrators appointed by the Court is not compulsorily registrable under S. 17 of the Indian Registration Act ¹

P. 11. [S 517] Upon any reference by an order of the Court, the arbitrator or umpire may, with the leave of the Court, state the award as to the whole or any part thereof in the form of a special case for the opinion of the Court, and the Court shall deliver its opinion thereon, and shall order such opinion to be added to and to form part of the award

Special case

1 Special case

This Paragraph is intended to provide for cases where any difficult and complicated questions of law arise for consideration before the arbitrators and they require the help of the Court to enable them to complete the award ¹ Though this Paragraph does not expressly state that the special case should relate only to a question of law yet sufficient indication as to the scope of this Paragraph is given by the form prescribed (Form No 4 of Appendix to this Schedule) which absence of one of them at a meeting in which nothing material was done and no enquiry was made will not invalidate the award²

3 Together with any depositions and documents¹

Though this Paragraph contemplates the possibility of the depositions of witnesses being reduced to writing by the arbitrators, it does not oblige them to keep such a record¹. The mere fact that an arbitrator has omitted to file along with his award the depositions of the witnesses examined by him or the documentary evidence filed before him will not justify the Court in holding on that ground that the award is invalid though it may lead to the conclusion that the arbitrator has not acted in accordance with law and is guilty of misconduct as stated in Para 10²

An arbitrator should not permit the removal of documents entrusted to him and forming part of the record³. He should return them to the Court. The Court can also call upon him to give up the same to the Court when his right to keep them as arbitrator has come to an end⁴

The provisions of this Paragraph are mandatory and the Court is bound to give notice of the filing of the award to the parties¹. Under Article 158 of the Limitation Act the parties are entitled to ten days time for filing their objections to the award and such period is to be computed from the date on which the notice is given². The omission to give notice is a material irregularity and affords a ground for interference by the High Court in revision³. If a decree is passed in terms of the award without the notice required by this Paragraph to be given the decree is bad and is liable to be set aside⁴

There is a conflict of opinion as to whether a formal notice under this Paragraph is necessary where the parties are made aware of the filing of the award without such formal notice. In the undermentioned cases⁵ it has been held that where the parties are made aware of the filing of the award, the absence of a formal notice would not vitiate the proceedings. A contrary view, namely that a formal notice under this Paragraph is necessary and knowledge alimunde is not expressly mentions only questions of law² But there is nothing objectionable in the Court's helping the arbitrators with advice and orders when they come to it in a difficulty³

Where a special case is submitted to the opinion of the Court and the Court completes the award by deciding the special case it is bound to give the parties an opportunity of objecting to the award before a judgment is pronounced upon it⁴

A charge of misconduct against the umpire cannot be strengthened from the mere fact that in the exercise of his discretion, he refused to state a special case for the opinion of the Court⁵ As to the form of special case in general see O 36 ante

2 Appeal

Under S 104 sub section (1) Cl (b) an order on an award stated in the form of a special case is appealable Where an agreement of reference provided that in case of disagreement between the arbitrators the matter in difference should be referred to the umpire who should make the award and the arbitrators who differed on a question of law without referring the matter to the umpire referred it to the opinion of the Court it was held that the order of the Court was not an order on an award stated in the form of a special case and was not therefore appealable¹

tions of fact and law, however erroneous they may be, and the Court has no power to alter or vary the award except in the limited manner prescribed by this Paragraph¹ Where a dispute is referred to arbitration and the arbitrators are empowered to decide upon all the points involved in it, the arbitrators have full power not only to fix the liability between the parties but also the manner in which such liability is to be discharged. Thus the arbitrators can order the amount due to the plaintiff to be paid by instalments, and the Court cannot interfere with such a direction in the award² Nor can the Court add a direction of its own to the award³ It is well settled that a Court acts without jurisdiction if it modifies an award because it takes a different view from that held by the arbitrators⁴

Where the Court modifies an award under this Paragraph, it is the modified award and not the original award with which the decree should accord⁵

The provisions of this Paragraph apply only to an award made through the intervention of the Court the Court has no power under this Paragraph to modify or correct an award made on a private reference out of Court⁶

2 'Part of the award is upon a matter not referred to arbitration'

An award should be made with reference to the points in dispute referred to them by the parties. Where the award decides matters extraneous to the reference the award is not valid unless that portion which is in excess can be separated from the rest and does not affect the decision on the matter referred to. In the latter case, the Court can under Clause (a) give effect to the valid portion of the award ignoring the rest¹ Where no separation is possible, the Court can remit the award to the arbitrators for reconsideration under Para 14 and if they fail to reconsider it the award becomes void by virtue of Para 10

3 Award imperfect in form or containing an obvious error Clause (b)

The Court can rectify an obvious error in the award. Thus where an issue as to whether a particular property was endowed property and whether it was partible or not was referred to arbitration and the arbitrators decided that the property was not an endowed one but nevertheless declared that it should not be partitioned it was held that there was an obvious error in the award and that the Court could amend the direction that the property should remain impartible¹

The provisions of this clause can be invoked only if the imperfection in form exists in the award at the time when it is filed in Court and not where it comes into existence at a subsequent stage on the happening of an anticipated event²

4 Clerical mistake Cl (c)

As in the case of decrees the Court has power under this Paragraph to correct clerical mistakes and errors in an award arising from accidental slips or omissions¹. But the Court has no power to go into the merits and award a sum different from that awarded by the arbitrators on the ground that the calculation then made was wrong². The Chief Court of Oudh³ has held that the Court can under this Paragraph as also under its inherent powers amend a clerical slip in the award even after a decree is passed in terms of the award.

5 Power of an arbitrator to set aside gift deed conditional on payment of compensation

Where the parties to a suit agree to refer their disputes in relation to a deed of gift to arbitration and the terms of the reference do not contain any limitation as regards the powers of the arbitrators an award by the arbitrators setting aside the deed of gift upon payment of compensation to the plaintiff and directing the defendant to remain in possession until the amount is paid is perfectly valid. The Court has no power under this Paragraph to interfere with the direction so contained in the award¹.

6 Limitation

No specific provision is made in the Limitation Act for an application to modify or correct an award under this Paragraph. The ten days period prescribed by Article 153 of the Limitation Act does not apply to an application under this Paragraph¹.

In the undermentioned case² it has been held that even a formal application by a party is not necessary.

7 Appeal

By virtue of S. 104 sub S. (1) Cl. (a) an appeal lies from an order modifying or correcting an award.

Power of an arbitrator to award costs	1	Award of costs by the Court.	2

1 Power of an arbitrator to award costs

An arbitrator is empowered to deal with the question of costs when it is included in the reference¹ or where all the questions involved in the suit are referred to him². But where only some of the issues arising in the case are the subject of a reference and the question of costs is not one of them, the arbitrator has no power to award costs³. If he nevertheless makes an order as to costs the award is not invalid if the remainder of the award remains unaffected by the order as to costs. In such a case the Court can proceed under Cl (a) of the last Paragraph⁴.

As to the remuneration of the arbitrators see the cases cited below⁵.

2 Award of costs by the Court

Where the award does not make provision for costs it is open to the Court to make an order as to costs under this Paragraph¹. In the undermentioned case² where all the matters in dispute in a suit were referred to arbitration and the award did not deal with the question of costs, the High Court of Allahabad has held that the Court could not, under this Paragraph, award costs incurred up to the date of the reference but could only award the costs incurred subsequent thereto.

The words 'cost of the arbitration' in this Paragraph are not limited to such costs as might be represented by travelling expenses and the summoning of witnesses. The Court has, therefore, jurisdiction to award under this Paragraph remuneration to the arbitrators for their services³.

3 Award imperfect in form or containing an obvious error, Clause (b)

The Court can rectify an obvious error in the award. Thus where an issue, as to whether a particular property was endowed property and whether it was partible or not, was referred to arbitration, and the arbitrators decided that the property was not an endowed one, but nevertheless declared that it should not be partitioned, it was held that there was an obvious error in the award and that the Court could amend the direction that the property should remain impartible.¹

The provisions of this clause can be invoked only if the imperfection in form exists in the award at the time when it is filed in Court, and not where it comes into existence at a subsequent stage on the happening of an anticipated event.²

As in the case of decrees the Court has power under this Paragraph to correct clerical mistakes and errors in an award arising from accidental slips or omissions.¹ But the Court has no power to go into the merits and award a sum different from that awarded by the arbitrators, on the ground that the calculation then made was wrong.² The Chief Court of Oudh³ has held that the Court can, under this Paragraph, as also under its inherent powers, amend a clerical slip in the award even after a decree is passed in terms of the award.

5 Power of an arbitrator to set aside gift deed conditional on payment of compensation

Where the parties to a suit agree to refer their disputes in relation to a deed of gift to arbitration, and the terms of the reference do not contain any limitation as regards the powers of the arbitrators, an award by the arbitrators setting aside the deed of gift upon payment of compensation to the plaintiff and directing the defendant to remain in possession until the amount is paid is perfectly valid. The Court has no power under this Paragraph to interfere with the direction so contained in the award.¹

No specific provision is made in the Limitation Act for an application to modify or correct an award under this Paragraph. The ten days period prescribed by Article 158 of the Limitation Act does not apply to an application under this Paragraph.¹

In the undermentioned case² it has been held that even a formal application by a party is not necessary.

By virtue of S 104, sub S (1) Cl (a) an appeal lies from an order modifying or correcting an award.

Where award or matter referred to arbitration may be remitted

P. 14. [S. 520] The Court may remit the award or any matter referred to arbitration to the reconsideration of the same arbitrator or umpire, upon such terms as it thinks fit,—

- (a) where the award has left undetermined any of the matters referred to arbitration,³ or where it determines any matter not referred to arbitration,⁴ unless such matter can be separated without affecting the determination of the matters referred;
- (b) where the award is so indefinite as to be incapable of execution;⁵
- (c) where an objection to the legality of the award is apparent upon the face of it.⁶

2 Scope of the Paragraph

Paragraph 12, ante, enables the Court to modify or correct an award under certain circumstances. This Paragraph empowers the Court to remit the award to the arbitrator himself for reconsideration where there are omissions or defects therein which are such as cannot be modified or corrected by the Court itself under Paragraph 12¹. The Court is, however, confined to the specific grounds mentioned in this Paragraph and has no power to remit an award on other grounds².

There is a difference of opinion as to whether the Court can remit the award in part only and treat the award as to the to the High Court of Allahabad there is no portion of an award only may be remitted³ "It is impossible to say for any person who is not the arbitrator, how the arbitrator proceeded to frame his award. It may be that the portion objected to has an intimate connection with the portion which is not objected to. The arbitrators, therefore, must be given a free hand to recast the award"⁴ The Judicial Commissioner's Court of Sind has held that where an award is bad as to a part only and is sent back as to that alone, the arbitrator is functus officio as to the good parts and cannot alter his judgment as to them⁵ It is submitted, that the former view is correct. When the Court decides to remit the award under this Paragraph, it is not final⁶ and so long as it is not final and is in the hands of the arbitrator, it can be altered by him^{6a}

The Court has a discretion to remit or not to remit an award⁷ Thus, where there is any circumstance in the position of the arbitrator such as tends to produce a bias in his mind, the Court will in its discretion, refuse to remit the award to the arbitrator for reconsideration⁸

3 Award leaving undetermined any of the matters referred to arbitration

Where the arbitrators have not, in their award, decided any matter referred to them, the Court may, under Cl (a), remit the award for reconsideration¹ "The ground upon which an award which does not dispose of all the matters referred has been held to be invalid appears to be that there is an implied condition that it shall do so"² But it is open to the parties to waive this condition³ Thus, where all the parties agree before the arbitrator that an incomplete award may be made or where they all represent that there is no longer any controversy between them upon a particular point, the fact that the award is incomplete or silent on such point will not vitiate it⁴ An award cannot be said to be incomplete because, in a suit involving a number of issues the arbitrators have not given a decision on each of them. It is enough if they give a decision on the whole matter in issue between the parties⁵

4 Award determining matter not referred to arbitration

It is a fundamental principle of the Law of Arbitration that the submission furnishes the source and prescribes the limits of the arbitrators authority and that therefore the award must conform to the submission both in substance and in form¹. Consequently if the award decides matters not within the scope of the submission it is void as regards the portion in excess of the submission. If such portion is however, separable from and independent of the remainder effect can be given to the rest of the award^{2a} but if the extraneous matters cannot be so separated without affecting the determination of the matters referred the Court may remit the award for reconsideration²

5 Where the award is so indefinite as to be incapable of execution

An award to be capable of execution ought to be certain so that no reasonable doubt can arise upon the face of it as to the arbitrators meaning or as to the nature and extent of the right and duties imposed by it upon the parties¹. The fact that a particular expression used in an award is capable of more than one interpretation does not show, that it is so indefinite as to be incapable of execution². Where the arbitrators give the method for calculating the amount awarded without specifying the actual amount due the award can be considered as sufficiently certain inasmuch as the actual result can be worked out³.

6 Where an objection to the legality of the award is apparent upon the face of it

It has been seen in Note 10 to Paragraph 1 ante that parties are entitled to submit questions of law as well as questions of fact for arbitration and that the arbitrators have jurisdiction to decide the same. Where they so decide a question specifically submitted to them for decision but such decision happens to be erroneous in law it cannot nevertheless be said that there is any error apparent on the face of the award,¹ and the Court has no right to sit in judgment over the views of the arbitrator².

'An error in law on the face of the award means, in their Lordships' view that you can find in the award or a document actually incorporated the etc, as for instance a note appended by the arbitrator stating the reasons for his judgment some legal proposition which is the basis of the award and which you can say is erroneous sums due by one party to another is not an illegality apparent on the face of the award⁹

It has been already mentioned above that an error of law, in order to vitiate an award, must be apparent on the face of the award or some other document attached to the award^{9a}. Thus where a dispute arising out of a contract is referred to arbitrators and a reference is made in the award to a contention of one party, it does not open the door to seeing first what the contention is and then going to the contract on which the rights of parties depend to see if that contention is sound¹⁰. Similarly, where an award makes an allusion to the contract very guardedly and for the purpose only of ear marking the origin of the dispute in question it does not enable a party to contend that the contract was incorporated into the award by the reference mentioned above and then to say that the award discloses an error in law in construing the terms of the contract¹¹.

7 Remittal of private awards

Where an award is made without the intervention of a Court and an application is made under Para 20, infra to file the award, the Court may under Para 21, file the award if no such ground as is mentioned in Paras 14 and 15 is proved. But the fact that there are any of the grounds specified in this Paragraph does not empower the Court to remit the award for reconsideration of the arbitrators as in the case of an award made through the intervention of the Court¹. Therefore, if the award leaves undetermined any of the matters referred to arbitration² or is so indefinite as to be incapable of execution³ the award is invalid and the application under Para 20 must be dismissed. But where the award determines any matter not referred to arbitration and such matter can be separated without affecting the determination of the matters referred, the whole award is not invalid and the decisions on the portions in excess of the authority of the arbitrators can be treated as null and void⁴.

8 Limitation

Article 158 of the Limitation Act does not apply to proceedings under this Paragraph and, therefore, there is no period of limitation for making an application under this Paragraph to remit an award for the reconsideration of the arbitrators¹

9 Appeal

An order remitting¹ or refusing to remit² an award for the reconsideration of the arbitrators is not appealable. Where an award is remitted under this Paragraph and the arbitrators refuse to reconsider the award which consequently becomes void under Para 15, infra and the Court ultimately passes a decree on the merits, the legality of the order remitting the award may be challenged in an appeal against the decree³. See also S 105, Note 6, Pt 3. But where after remittal, the arbitrators submit a fresh award and the Court passes a decree in accordance with the revised award no appeal will lie from such decree on the ground that the order of remittal under this Paragraph was wrong and that the original award ought to have been accepted and acted upon⁴. See also notes to Para 16 infra.

10 Revision

The High Court cannot interfere in revision with an order of the Court remitting an award for reconsideration of the arbitrators¹.

11 Arbitration under other Acts—See Note 6 a to Para 1

In an arbitration proceeding regarding boundary disputes under S 120 of the Bombay Land Revenue Code (V of 1879) the Superintendent of Survey or the Boundary Officer is empowered to remit an award for the reconsideration of the arbitration committee for any of the causes set forth in this Paragraph.

P. 15. [S 521.] (1) An award remitted under Paragraph 14 becomes void on failure of the arbitrator or umpire to reconsider it. But no award shall be set aside except on one of the following grounds

Grounds for setting aside award

namely :—

- (a) corruption or misconduct⁵ of the arbitrator or umpire;
- (b) either party having been guilty of fraudulent concealment of any matter which he ought to have disclosed,¹⁰ or of wilfully misleading or deceiving the arbitrator or umpire;
- (c) the award having been made after the issue of an order by the Court superseding the arbitration and proceeding with the suit or after the expiration of the period allowed by the Court¹² or being otherwise invalid¹³.

2 Procedure in enquiry under this Paragraph

Where an application is made to set aside an award on any of the grounds mentioned in this Paragraph, the Court is bound to allow the applicant an opportunity to produce evidence to substantiate his objections¹ and to enquire into the allegations made by him². The burden of proving such allegations is on the person seeking to have the award set aside³.

A party in whose favour an award has been passed cannot object thereto on the ground that the arbitrators exceeded their jurisdiction⁴.

An order deciding objections to an award under this Paragraph should comply with the provisions of O 20, R 5, ante and the Court should state its findings or decision on each separate issue with reasons therefor⁵.

3 Refusal to reconsider award remitted

If an award has been remitted to the arbitrators for their reconsideration under Para 14 ante and the arbitrators decline to submit a fresh award, the award becomes void and the Court has no alternative but to try the case itself¹. It is not necessary in such a case for the Court to find corruption or misconduct².

But where the arbitrators after remittal reconsider the matter to the best of their ability and come to the same conclusion, the award does not become void ³

4. Grounds for setting aside award

An award can be set aside only on one or more of the grounds mentioned in this Paragraph ¹ Therefore a provision in the agreement of reference that any of the parties might object to the award on any account is ultra vires and contrary to the procedure prescribed by this Paragraph ²

As to the several grounds on which an award may be set aside see Notes 5 to 13, infra.

5 "Corruption or misconduct"

The word "misconduct" when applied to the proceedings of arbitrators does not necessarily imply moral turpitude, it is used in the sense of breach or neglect of such duties and responsibilities as devolve on the arbitrators acting judicially and as the Courts of Justice expect from them before allowing finality to their awards ¹ In other words it comprehends action on the part of the arbitrator which, upon the face of it, is opposed to all rational and reasonable principles that should govern the procedure of any person who is called upon to decide questions in difference referred to him by the parties ²

The word "corruption necessarily implies misconduct but "misconduct" does not of necessity imply corruption Thus an award may be set aside on the ground of misconduct which does not amount to corruption ³

Where it is proved that an arbitrator has been guilty of misconduct, it is not necessary to prove prejudice in order that the award may be set aside, but the irregularity may be cured by waiver ⁴

6 Acts amounting to misconduct

We now proceed to discuss some instances of misconduct justifying the setting aside of an award under Clause (a) of this Paragraph —

- (1) Where more than one arbitrator is appointed, the presence of all of them at all meetings and, above all at the last meeting when the final act of arbitration is done, is essential to the validity of the award Therefore the absence of some of the arbitrators at some of the meetings is misconduct within the meaning of this Paragraph ¹ The reason is that in such cases the parties intend that all the persons to whom the reference is made shall meet and discuss together all the matters referred and that the award should be the result of their united deliberations. This conference and deliberation in the presence of all the arbitrators are the very essence of the arbitration and the sole reason why the award is made binding. The facts that the agreement of reference provided for a valid award by the majority of the arbitrators and that a majority of them were present at all the meetings will not make the award valid.² Similarly where a reference was made to three persons and the award purported to be made by four persons, it was set aside on the ground that the association of the fourth person might have influenced the decision of the others.³ The absence of an arbitrator at some of the meetings does not however amount to misconduct if the act done at such meetings is not of a judicial nature, but merely ministerial in its character.⁴

As to the validity of an award made by a majority of arbitrators, see Note 3 to Para 4

(2) "If irregularities in procedure can be proved which would amount to no proper hearing of the matters in dispute there would be misconduct sufficient to vitiate the award without any imputation on the honesty or impartiality of the arbitrator."⁵

(3) The ordinary rule is that an enquiry before the arbitrator is assimilated as near as may be to the proceedings on a trial in the Courts. Therefore if the parties are not given notice of, any meeting at which they should appear and represent their case or are not given a fair and reasonable opportunity to prove their case, that would amount to misconduct on the part of the arbitrators.⁶ But the omission to give notice of a meeting to a party who had, prior to such meeting, notified to the arbitrator his withdrawal from the submission, does not in-

(4) The refusal of an arbitrator to examine witnesses produced by either party is misconduct within the meaning of this Paragraph⁹ In order to impeach an award on this ground it must be shown that a witness was distinctly tendered to the arbitrator.¹⁰ But it is not misconduct to refuse to admit evidence which was unnecessary and which would not have in any way helped or affected the decision¹¹

(5) An arbitrator ought not to hear or receive evidence, oral or documentary, from one side in the absence of the other¹² It has, however, been held by the High Court of Madras that there is no misconduct where an opportunity was given to the other side of meeting and answering such evidence^{12a} Similarly if the arbitrator takes evidence in the absence of the parties with their consent¹³ or where one of the parties deliberately absents himself from the hearing¹⁴ the award made thereafter is not bad for misconduct

It is difficult to prescribe in general terms the precise length to which an arbitrator may go in seeking outside advice upon matters of law. Where he merely takes advice upon the general Rules of law bearing upon the case and does not leave to an outsider the burden of deciding any issue in the case instead of exercising his own judgment thereon, it cannot be said that the award is vitiated by misconduct.²³ In such cases it would be prudent and discreet for arbitrators when they desire to put themselves on the best footing of information as to matters of law to ask all the parties to be present when they communicate with any gentleman whom they may see upon that subject.²⁴

- (10) Where an arbitrator is indebted to one of the parties at the time of reference or becomes indebted after the reference²⁵ or has a personal interest in the subject matter of the dispute²⁶ or where he has come to know of the facts of the case in the capacity of an advisor of one of the parties²⁷ and where such fact is not disclosed to the other party the award is vitiated by misconduct. But a pleader is not incompetent to be an arbitrator simply because he was engaged by one of the parties as his pleader on some former occasions.²⁸
- (11) Where an award is made after a delay of five years it will amount to misconduct unless the delay is properly explained.²⁹ The reason is that it is the duty of the arbitrator to see that the proceedings are conducted with reasonable diligence and not doing so is a failure in his ordinary duties as an arbitrator. But where delay in making an award is caused by the voluntary absence of one of the parties that party cannot impugn the validity of the award on the ground of delay.³⁰
- (12) Where the decision of an arbitrator is perverse it amounts to misconduct on the part of the arbitrator.³¹
- (13) Where one of the arbitrators is guilty of misconduct in having accepted an illegal gratification from one of the parties the award ought to be set aside in its entirety inasmuch as it is difficult to say how far the other arbitrators were influenced by the biased and interested opinion of one of them.³²

7 Acquiescence in acts amounting to misconduct

The principles mentioned in Note 6, ante in relation to the various instances of misconduct must be understood subject to the qualification that the parties may agree that a reference may be conducted in a particular way¹. It is also well settled that an objection to the irregular or improper conduct of an arbitrator may be waived by the parties either expressly or by conduct provided the party waiving it has full knowledge of the defect². This is based on the principle that Courts will not permit a party to lie by or act in an indecisive manner so as to obtain the benefit of the award if it is in his favour and endeavour to set it aside if it is not³. Thus where one of several arbitrators is absent at some of their meetings and a party participates in subsequent proceedings without objecting to the irregularity⁴ or where the arbitrators examine the plaintiff's witnesses in the absence of the parties and the defendant who is aware of this makes no protest at that time or later on⁵ the party will be deemed to have waived his right to object to the award.

A stipulation in an agreement of reference precluding the parties from impeaching the validity of the award is within the mischief of S 28 of the Indian Contract Act and will not therefore prevent the Court from setting aside the award on any of the grounds mentioned in this Paragraph.⁶ The reason is that the grounds mentioned in this Paragraph suggest the requisites of a valid agreement as well as of a valid award.

8 Acts not amounting to misconduct

In *Indiens v. Mitchell*¹ Lord Halsbury observed as follows. We must not insist upon too minute observance of the regularity of forms among persons who naturally by their education or by their opportunities cannot be supposed to be very familiar with legal procedure and may accordingly make slips in what is mere matter of form without any interference with the substance of their decisions. Courts will not therefore set aside an award for misconduct of the arbitrators unless there has been something radically wrong and vicious in the proceedings before the arbitrators.²

The following are some instances of acts that do not amount to misconduct.³

- (1) It is not a valid objection to an award that the arbitrators have not acted in strict conformity with the rules of evidence.⁴ Thus the honest though mistaken admission by an arbitrator of a document in violation of a rule of evidence introduced pro hac vice (for the occasion) would not be a ground for setting aside an award.⁵ Communications between parties in the course of negotiations between them are inadmissible in evidence. This rule of law based upon grounds of public policy and convenience is as binding on arbitrators as on Courts. But if a party does not object to such evidence being received on this ground it cannot later on be made a ground for setting aside the award.⁶
- (2) If a party offers to abide by the oath of the opposite party the arbitrator can make his award accordingly.⁷
- (3) It is generally desirable that an arbitrator should make and retain for subsequent use if necessary notes of the proceedings before him. But the absence of such notes is not a ground for setting aside the award and especially if the party objecting did not make any inter test until after the award was made.
- (4) Until an award is finally published the arbitrator has a right to re-consider the award he has already made.⁸ But once it is published

- (5) When a cause or matter in difference is referred to an arbitrator, whether a lawyer or a layman, he is constituted the sole and final judge of all questions both of law and of fact.¹⁰ Therefore, Courts will not sit as Courts of appeal to consider the correctness of an award on the merits in respect of matters of fact or even of law.¹¹ An error in calculation in the award, unless so palpable and gross as to be strong evidence of misconduct, is no ground for interference by the Court.¹² But the committing of a mistake in law and letting it visible on the face of the award is a form of judicial misconduct.¹³ See also Note 6 to Para 14.

- (6) An award need not be a reasoned judicial decision and the arbitrators need not even give their reasons for their conclusion.¹⁴

- (7) An award made by the arbitrators which merely embodies a compromise arrived at before them by the parties is not invalid.¹⁵ The reason is that such a proceeding is as much an adjudication of the case as a decree of a Court founded on a compromise.

9 Evidence of arbitrator

An arbitrator selected by the parties comes within the general obligation of being bound to give evidence when called as a witness in proceedings to enforce or set aside an award. He may be examined upon the course of procedure which he has adopted, the material which he has utilised in arriving at his decision and as to every matter of fact with reference to the making of the award, so as to put the Court in possession of the history of the litigation up to the time of his proceeding to make the award. But a party can go no further and cannot examine him as to why and how he arrived at a particular decision and scrutinise his decision on matters within his jurisdiction and on which his decision is final¹.

10 Fraudulent concealment of any matter which he ought to have disclosed

In cases of arbitration where a person is appointed by two parties to exercise judicial duties, there should be *uberrima fides*¹ on the part of all the parties concerned in regard to his selection and appointment and every disclosure which might in the least affect the minds of those who are proposing to submit their dispute to the arbitration of any particular individual, as regards his selection and fitness for the post ought to be made, so that each party may have every opportunity of considering whether the reference to arbitration to that particular individual should or should not be made^{1a}. Thus, where the arbitrator is the retained pleader of one of the parties² or is related to him³ or is interested in the subject-matter of the dispute⁴ and such fact is not disclosed by that party to the other side, the award made by the arbitrator is liable to be set aside under Cl (f) of this Paragraph.

11 Award made after order superseding arbitration

If the power of the arbitrator is revoked by the Court passing an order superseding the arbitration, "the arbitrators have no longer seisin of the reference, and they are functi officio and cease to have any more power to make an award than the man in the street"¹

Where an award was not made in time and consequently the reference to arbitration was cancelled, the Court has no power to look at the award subsequently made and base its judgment on it, as if it were the report of a commissioner.²

12 Award made after the expiry of the period allowed by the Court

It has been already mentioned in Note 1 ante that S 521 of the old Code after setting out the grounds on which an award could be set aside in clauses (a), (b) and (c) provided that "no award shall be valid unless made within the time allowed by the Court". It was, therefore, held under that Code that an award made after the expiry of the period allowed was null and void, that is to say, there was no award on which the Court could make a decree.¹

The effect of the alteration made in this Paragraph is that an award made out of time is not per se a nullity, but only aside the award if the parties so desire to have it made to set aside the award on that ground, and then the award becomes final.² As to appeals against decrees based on awards made out of time see notes to Para 16.

13 Being otherwise invalid

Section 521 of the old Code did not contain the words "or being otherwise invalid". It was held under that Code that an objection to an award could not be taken under S 521 on the ground that the award was invalid for any reason other than those mentioned in that section.¹ The effect of the change made in this Paragraph is that an objection to an award on the ground that it is invalid for any cause whatever must be taken in the Court in which the award is filed and if no objection is there taken or if it is made and disallowed, the award becomes final and cannot be challenged subsequently.² See also notes to Para 16.

An award made otherwise than in accordance with the authority conferred by the order upon the arbitrators is an award which is 'otherwise invalid' and which may accordingly be set aside by the Court under this Paragraph³ Thus where the arbitrators treat a person who is not a party to the suit which has been referred to them as a party to it and decide disputes between parties to the suit or any of them and such person the arbitrators exceed their jurisdiction and the award is invalid within the meaning of this Paragraph⁴ Similarly where the arbitrators go beyond the scope of the submission and decide matters outside the scope of the suit, the Court will be justified in setting aside the award as invalid⁵ It has been held in the undermentioned case⁶ that such an award cannot be treated partly as one made on a reference through Court and partly as an award by private agreement But where simultaneously with the order of reference, the parties agree to refer to the same arbitrators matters outside the suit and separate awards are made and it appears that the view of the arbitrators in the latter award could not have influenced their minds in deciding the former, the award is not vitiated⁷

There is a conflict of opinion on the question whether an award can be challenged under this Paragraph on the ground that the order of reference is itself invalid The High Court of Calcutta has held that the words "being otherwise invalid" in clause (c) of sub-section (1) of this Paragraph refer to the invalidity of the kind mentioned in the preceding sentences of the said clauses and, that therefore, a ground of objection which challenges the validity of the order of reference is not a ground which may be put forward under this Paragraph⁸ The High Court of Allahabad, while expressing conflicting opinions as to whether the words should be construed ejusdem generis with those previously stated,⁹ has held that an objection as to the validity of the reference is not an objection within this Paragraph¹⁰ But the High Court of Lahore has held that the doctrine of ejusdem generis cannot be invoked to restrict the full and natural meaning of the phrase 'or being otherwise invalid' and that an award can be challenged on the ground that the reference is invalid is not having been agreed to by all the parties¹¹

The High Court of Madras has also held that the words are not ejusdem generis with the other cases mentioned in this Paragraph but are meant to include all cases of invalidity on grounds other than those mentioned and that therefore an award is invalid if a minor who is a party to the arbitration is not properly represented in the proceedings¹

No appeal lies from an order overruling objections to an award¹ Nor does an appeal lie from an order setting aside an award under this Paragraph² except in the case provided for in S 104 sub s (1) Clause (a)

Where a Court sets aside an award under this Paragraph and there after decides the suit on the merits the Court of appeal can on appeal from the decree in the suit inquire into the propriety or otherwise of the order setting aside the award³ See S 105 ante But where an order superseding an award is confirmed in appeal in a case coming under S 104 Clause (a) the Court hearing the appeal from the decree in the suit is precluded from re opening the question of supersession of the award⁴

It has been held by the High Court of Calcutta that an order made by a Judge of the High Court in the exercise of original jurisdiction refusing to set aside an award is a judgment within the meaning of Clause 15 of the Letters Patent and that an appeal lies therefrom to the High Court in its appellate jurisdiction⁵ See notes to S 104

No revision lies to the High Court under S 115 against the order of the lower Court refusing to set aside an award on any of the grounds mentioned in this Paragraph merely because the lower Court has proceeded on an erroneous view¹ Nor is an order setting aside an award under this Paragraph open to revision² The reason is that the order is not the decision of a case within the meaning of S 115 and moreover the applicant has got another remedy of challenging the order in an appeal against the decree in the suit if ultimately the suit is decided against him See Note 14 ante But where the ground for revision is the misinterpretation by the Court of the agreement of reference³ or where an award is set aside on very inadequate grounds⁴ or 'where the Court refuses to hear a valid objection properly raised before it,'⁵ the order is open to revision under S 113.

The High Court of Allahabad has held in the undermentioned case⁶ that where an award is set aside on the ground that the reference to arbitration ought not to have been made, the order setting aside the award is without jurisdiction and that therefore a revision lies to the High Court

The High Court of Madras has also held that the words are not ejusdem generis with the other cases mentioned in this Paragraph, but are meant to include all cases of invalidity on grounds other than those mentioned and that, therefore an award is invalid if a minor who is a party to the arbitration is not properly represented in the proceedings¹²

No appeal lies from an order overruling objections to an award¹ Nor does an appeal lie from an order setting aside an award under this Paragraph² except in the case provided for in S 104, sub s (1), Clause (a)

Where a Court sets aside an award under this Paragraph and there after decides the suit on the merits the Court of appeal can, on appeal from the decree in the suit inquire into the propriety or otherwise of the order setting aside the award³ See S 105, ante But where an order superseding an award is confirmed in appeal in a case coming under S 104, Clause (a) the Court hearing the appeal from the decree in the suit is precluded from re opening the question of supersession of the award⁴

It has been held by the High Court of Calcutta that an order made by a Judge of the High Court, in the exercise of original jurisdiction, refusing to set aside an award is a 'judgment' within the meaning of Clause 15 of the Letters Patent and that an appeal lies therefrom to the High Court in its appellate jurisdiction⁵ See notes to S 104

No revision lies to the High Court under S 115, against the order of the lower Court refusing to set aside an award on any of the grounds mentioned in this Paragraph merely because the lower Court has proceeded on an erroneous view¹ Nor is an order setting aside an award under this Paragraph open to revision² The reason is that the order is not the decision of a 'case within the meaning of S 115, and, moreover, the applicant has got another remedy of challenging the order in an appeal against the decree in the suit if ultimately the suit is decided against him See Note 14 ante But where the ground for revision is the misinterpretation by the Court of the agreement of reference³ or where an award is set aside on very inadequate grounds⁴ or where the Court refuses to hear a valid objection properly raised before it⁵ the order is open to revision under S 115

The High Court of Allahabad has held in the undermentioned case⁶ that where an award is set aside on the ground that the reference to arbitration ought not to have been made, the order setting aside the award is without jurisdiction and that therefore a revision lies to the High Court

- 1 The words 'or if the award has been submitted to it in the form of a special case according to its own opinion on such case' which occurred after the word 'award' at the end of sub S (1) have been omitted S 104, Cl (b) now gives a right of appeal against an order on an award stated in the form of a special case. See also Notes to Para 11
- 2 The words 'and shall be enforced in manner provided in this Code for the execution of decrees' which occurred in S 522 of the old Code after the word 'followed in' sub S (2) have been omitted

2 'Pronounce judgment according to the award'

Where the Court sees no ground to remit the award under Para 14 and where no application has been made to set aside the award or where such application has been refused, the Court has no option but to pronounce judgment according to the award¹. Where, however, any portion of the award deals with matters outside the scope of the suit, the Court should not embody such portion of the award in its decree².

It is not necessary that the judgment should be pronounced in the presence of the parties. Where, therefore, the defendant does not file any application to set aside the award, and the Court thereupon pronounces judgment in accordance with the award as it is bound to do, the decree which follows thereon is not an ex parte decree even though the defendant is absent at the time the decree is passed³. Where an application to set aside such a decree is refused the order is not appealable under O 43, R 1, Cl (d)⁴.

Where an application to set aside an award is dismissed for default an application to restore the same is maintainable notwithstanding that a decree is passed in the meanwhile⁵.

3 After the time for making such application has expired

An application to set aside an award must, under Art 108 of the Limitation Act¹, be made within ten days of the time when notice of the filing of the award is 'given' to the parties². A notice is 'given' to the parties where the parties actually receive the same³. A mere direction to issue notice is not equivalent to the 'giving' of notice within the meaning of the article⁴. in accordance with the award, follows upon a judgment "so pronounced" i.e., pronounced after the expiry of the period of limitation for making an application under Para 15. It has accordingly been held by the High Courts of Allahabad,⁷ Calcutta⁸ and Rangoon⁹ and by the Chief Court of the Punjab¹⁰ that where a decree is passed before the expiry of such period, an appeal is not barred by this Paragraph. Conflicting views have been expressed by the High Court of Madras, one case holding that an appeal does lie,¹¹ others holding that it does not¹² and a third class of cases holding that a revision will lie in such cases, thus impliedly negating the existence of a right of appeal¹³. According to the High Court of Bombay no appeal will lie in such cases but a revision may lie¹⁴. The Judicial Commissioners Courts of Oudh¹⁵ and Sind¹⁶ have also held that the High Court can interfere in revision in such a case. It is submitted that the view that an appeal lies is correct.

Suppose now that the parties accept the award filed in Court and agree that a decree may be passed in terms of the award, has the Court power to pass the decree without waiting for the expiry of the period prescribed by Art 158 of the Limitation Act? The Chief Court of the Punjab¹⁷ and the Judicial Commissioner's Court of Nagpur¹⁸ have held that the decree so passed is valid, the reason being that it is, in fact, a decree by consent of parties. The High Court of Madras¹⁹ and the Judicial Commissioner's Court of Sind²⁰ have, on the other hand, held that such a procedure is without jurisdiction and that the Court has no power to pass a decree even if an application to set aside the award has been disposed of before that time. It is submitted that the former view is correct. The object of waiting till the expiry of the limitation period is only to enable the parties to come in with their objections to the award, if any, and where such parties themselves agree not to object, there is no reason why the Court should wait till the expiry of the period before pronouncing judgment.

5 Finality of decrees not in accordance with the award payment of the amount due by instalments² or interest⁴ or costs⁴ not granted by the award, the decree is not in accordance with the award and an appeal will therefore lie. In appeal will lie also where a decree is based partly on an award and partly on the Court's findings.⁵ But the mere fact that the judgment is in excess of the award will not give a right of appeal if the decree is in accordance with the award.⁶

When an award is modified under Para 12, ante, the only award according to which judgment can be pronounced is the modified award. Hence an appeal will not lie against a decree based on a modified award, though it may not be in accordance with the original award.⁷ The contrary view taken in the undermentioned cases⁸ is it is submitted, not sound on principle.

Where an appeal lies against a decree which is in excess of or not in accordance with the award, the appellant is not entitled to address the Court on all points which were raised before the lower Court. His appeal would lie only in so far as the decree and the award differ⁹ and his attack must be confined to the legality of the decree as compared with the award.¹⁰

6 Appeal against decree based upon invalid award

Under the old Code prior to the decision of the Judicial Committee in *Ghulam Akbar v. Muhammad Hasan*¹ it was held that S 522 presupposed a valid and legal award and that therefore an appeal lay against a decree based upon an invalid award.¹¹ Thus it was held that an appeal lay in the following cases—

- (6) Where one of the arbitrators signed the award after the same had been filed in Court ⁷

In the Privy Council decision mentioned above⁸ where the award was challenged on the ground that the minor defendant's guardian had agreed to the reference without the leave of the Court and also on the ground of misconduct of the arbitrators, their Lordships held that no appeal lay against a decree based on the award and observed as follows — "Their Lordships would be doing violence to the plain language and the obvious intention of the Code, if they were to hold that an appeal lies from a decree pronounced under S 522, except in so far as the decree may be in excess of or not in accordance with the award."

As has been already seen in Note 13 to Para. 15, the introduction of the words 'or being otherwise invalid' in that Paragraph, makes it clear that the intention of the legislature is that objections to the award on the ground of its invalidity must be decided by the Court making the reference and that an appeal against the decree on such ground is incompetent ⁹

It has been held by the High Court of Calcutta that this Paragraph contemplates an award made in a case where there is a valid reference and that, therefore, where the validity of the reference is itself attacked an appeal against the decree is not barred ¹⁰. But the High Courts of Allahabad,¹¹ Bombay,¹² Lahore¹³ and Rangoon^{13a} and the Chief Court of Oudh¹⁴ have taken the contrary view. The decisions of the Judicial Commissioner's Court of Nagpur¹⁵ are conflicting. It is submitted that the correctness of the Calcutta view is open to question in view of the decision of the Privy Council in Ghulam Khan v. Muhammad Hassan ^{16a}

It has been held by the High Court of Lahore that the Rule prohibiting an appeal against a decree based upon an award does not apply to a case where the Court has no jurisdiction to entertain the suit¹⁶. The High Court of Madras has, on the other hand, held that the remedy in such a case is by way of revision¹⁷. It is submitted that the Lahore view is not correct. A right of appeal is expressly negatived by this Paragraph except in the circumstances specified and the general principle is that unless a right of appeal is given by statute, it does not exist.

7 Judgment without hearing objections to award—Appeal if lies against decree

It has been held by the High Court of Allahabad that where a decree is passed in terms of an award without considering the objections raised against it, the award is not in conformity with the provisions of sub Para (1), and cannot form the basis of an unappealable decree and that, therefore an appeal lies against decree passed on such award¹. The High Courts of Calcutta² Madras³ and Rangoon⁴ and the Chief Court of the Punjab⁵ have, on the other hand, in such cases interfered by way of revision. The Allahabad view cannot, it is submitted be accepted as correct.

Where a decree based upon an award is attacked on the ground that a sufficient opportunity was not given to a party to substantiate his objections to the award it has been held by the High Courts of Calcutta and Lahore and by the J C S Court of Oudh that the Court acts with material irregularity in the exercise of its jurisdiction and that the decree may be set aside in revision⁶. The High Court of Rangoon has however held that an appeal lies in such a case⁷. It is submitted that this view of the Rangoon High Court cannot be accepted as correct.

8 Second appeal

Where a decree is passed in accordance with an award and an appeal is wrongly entertained against it and the decree is set aside in appeal, does a second appeal lie against the decree of the lower appellate Court? The High Courts of Allahabad, Madras and Patna and the Judicial Commissioners Court of Nagpur have held that a second appeal lies the reason being that the decree of the lower Appellate Court is not one in accordance with the award¹. But the High Court of Calcutta² and the Chief Court of Punjab³ have interfered in such cases by way of revision.

Where a Court of first instance wrongly refuses to pass a decree in accordance with an award and a Court of Appeal reverses the decree of the first Court and passes a decree in accordance with the award, such a decree is, according to

6. the High Courts of Allahabad and Calcutta and the Chief Court of Oudh open to second appeal⁴. The reason given is that the provision in sub para (2) of this Paragraph applies only where a decree has been pronounced in accordance with the award by the Court making the reference. But the Chief Court of the Punjab has held that the decree of the lower appellate Court is entitled to the same finality as that of the first Court and that a second appeal will not lie⁵.

9 Revision

Sub para (2) of this Paragraph only prohibits an appeal from a decree based upon an award. But as observed by their Lordships of the Privy Council in Ghulam Khan v Mahomed Hassan I L R 29 Cal 167, 'in the case of an award revision would be more objectionable than an appeal and hence an application for revision against a decree in accordance with an award does not lie merely on the ground of the erroneous decision of the lower Court in respect of any of the grounds of objections falling under Paras 14 and 15, *ante*¹. But where the action of the Court with reference to the arbitration proceedings is attacked on any of the grounds mentioned in S 115 ante, the High Court can revise a decree based upon an award². Thus where a Court passes a decree on an award without giving notice of the filing of the award to the parties as required by Para 10 ante it acts with material irregularity and revision lies against the decree³ A decree passed without giving a party an opportunity to substantiate his objections by improperly refusing his application for adjournment is vitiated by material irregularity and is open to revision⁴ But where the lower Court has refused an adjournment in the judicial exercise of its discretion, the High Court cannot interfere in revision⁵ Where the Court compels an unwilling arbitrator to decide the matter referred to him a decree passed upon such an award may be set aside in revision⁶

It has been already discussed in Note 6 ante, whether an appeal lies against a decree based upon an award where the reference to arbitration is itself impugned as being invalid The High Court of Allahabad has held that such a decree is open to revision on the ground of its being without jurisdiction⁷ But according to the High Court of Lahore and the Chief Court of Oudh, no revision lies in such a case⁸

10 Binding effect of award

A judgment and decree passed in accordance with an award may constitute res judicata as much as a judgment and decree which result from the decision of the Court after the matter has been fought to the end¹ A valid award operates to merge and extinguish all claims covered by the submission and is binding on the parties to the reference even though it has not been made a rule of Court under this paragraph²

An award does not become ineffectual or invalid as between the parties to the reference merely because other parties to the suit have not joined in the reference³

enforce⁵ the award

11 Enforcement of the award

The only way of enforcing an award made in a reference through Court is to have a decree passed in accordance with it under this Paragraph¹. Where a decree is passed in terms of an award, the award can be enforced only by way of execution of the decree and no separate suit will lie therefor². Nor will a suit lie to enforce an award which was declared void by the Court in proceedings under Para 17³.

12 Suit to set aside award

Where an application to set aside an award is refused and a decree is passed in accordance with it no suit will lie thereafter to set aside the award¹. But a minor can sue to set aside a decree against him based on award on the ground that the reference to arbitration was made without obtaining the leave of the Court as required by O 32, R 7².

13 Court acting as arbitrator

It has been already seen in Note 22 to Para 1, ante, that a consent by the parties to abide by the decision of the Court is not such a reference to arbitration as is contemplated by this Schedule. The decision of the Court, in such a case, however operates as a consent decree and is, therefore, not appealable¹. In the undermentioned cases² it has been held that such a decision is in the nature of an arbitrator's award and hence is not appealable. It is respectfully submitted that though the actual decision in the said cases is right, the reasoning on which they proceed is not correct.

Where the parties agree not to let in evidence but that the Court may make a local inspection the decision of the Court in the suit is neither a consent decree nor an award and is therefore appealable³.

14 Valuer and arbitrator

It has been already seen in Note 10 to Para 1 that a reference to arbitration implies the existence of some matter in difference which has actually arisen at the time of the reference. Thus where the intention of the parties is that the person to whom the matter is referred should hold an enquiry in the nature of a judicial enquiry, and hear the respective cases of the parties, and decide upon evidence laid before him the case is one of arbitration^{1a}. But where a person is appointed to ascertain some matter for the purpose of preventing differences from arising, not of settling them when they have arisen, the case is not one of arbitration². No judgment could, therefore, be given under this Paragraph on the basis

In the suit a consent order was made that C was to purchase B's interest in the property at a price to be settled by certain referees. The referees settled the price and the lower Court gave judgment under this Paragraph in favour of B treating the said valuation as an award. It was held by the appellate Court that the referees were valuers rather than arbitrators and therefore the lower Court could not give judgment under this Paragraph ³.

1 The words of any person named in the agreement or to be appointed by any Court having jurisdiction in the matter to which the agreement relates which occurred after the words shall be referred to arbitration in the corresponding section of the old Code have been omitted in Cl 1 of this Paragraph

2 Clause 4 of this Paragraph replaces the following words which occurred in the old Code — If no sufficient cause be shown the Court may cause the agreement to be filed and shall make an order of reference thereon and may also nominate the arbitrator when he is not named therein and the parties cannot agree as to the nomination

It was held under the old Code that an agreement in which the arbitrator was not named could not be filed under S 523¹ Under the present Code in view of the aforementioned changes it is not necessary that the arbitrator should be named in the agreement²

2 Scope and applicability of the Paragraph

This and Paras 18 and 19 infra deal with the second class of cases of arbitration referred to by the Judicial Committee in Ghulam Khan v Muhammad Hassan, (I L R 29 Cal 167 P O), 117, to references to arbitration without having recourse to litigation

The provisions of this Paragraph apply only to cases where in pursuance of the agreement to refer, the arbitrators have not functioned and made their award Where the award has actually been delivered, the proper course is to take proceedings under Para 20 to enforce the award¹ Similarly, where an application is filed under this Paragraph but before it is disposed of the arbitrators deliver their award the application is rendered infructuous, and the remedy of the parties is to apply under Para 20² A mere filing of an application under this Paragraph does not oust the jurisdiction of the arbitrator to give his award³

Arbitration in a pending suit stands on a different footing from an agreement made out of Court to refer a dispute to arbitration In a pending suit the authority of the arbitrator is derived from the order of the Court making the reference, and if this order is defective there is no proper reference and consequently there can be no legal award On the other hand in a private reference it is the agreement entered into between the parties which confers jurisdiction on the arbitrators to deal with the dispute. In such a case if proceedings are taken under this Paragraph and a reference secured under Cl 4 thereof, it is not this reference which constitutes the arbitrator as a private tribunal. It is merely the machinery by which the tribunal already constituted by the agreement of parties is made to function⁴.

The provisions of this Paragraph are permissive and do not oblige a party to apply under this Paragraph⁵. It is open to a party to the agreement to file a suit in Court notwithstanding the agreement and the only remedy of the other party if he wishes to stand by the agreement is to apply under Para 18, infra, (for further discussion, see Para 18). The provisions of this and the following two Paragraphs do not apply to cases governed by the Indian Arbitration Act, 1899 (See S 3 of the Indian Arbitration Act, 1899 and S 89 of the Code) See also the following cases⁶.

If in conciliation proceedings under Chapter 6 of the Dekkhan Agriculturists' Relief Act, XVII of 1879, the parties agree to refer the matter in dispute to arbitration, the conciliator appointed under that Chapter must under S 45 of the Act, forward the agreement to the Court having jurisdiction in the matter and the Court must thereupon proceed in the manner provided by this Paragraph and Para 19, infra.

3 Agreement to refer matters in a pending litigation

The provisions of this Paragraph cover only cases where parties without recourse to litigation, agree to refer their differences to arbitration¹. If parties to a litigation who desire to refer their differences to arbitration, desire to avail themselves of the provisions of this Schedule, they can do so only under Paras 1 to 16 thereof². In other words, an agreement to refer made by the parties to a litigation without the intervention of the Court cannot be recognised under this Schedule,³ and cannot be filed under this Paragraph as if it was an agreement to refer without recourse to litigation⁴. If an award has been passed on such a reference it cannot be made the basis of a proceeding under Para 20⁵. As to whether such an agreement can be recognised independent of this Schedule, as an adjustment of the suit under O 23 R 3, there is a conflict of opinion for which see Note 9 to O 23, R 3, ante^{6a}.

Where however, after an agreement to refer was entered into in a pending suit, the suit itself was withdrawn, an application filed under this Paragraph subsequent to such withdrawal is not incompetent and an award made in pursuance of the same is valid⁶. So also an agreement to refer relating to matters not involved

4 Agreement to refer future differences to arbitration—See Notes 2 and 10 to Part 1 ante

5 Agreement must relate to matters within Court's jurisdiction

Before an application can be filed under this Paragraph it is essential that the agreement to refer should relate to matters which the Court is competent to try and has jurisdiction to pass a final decree upon.¹² Thus, where an agreement relates to the partition of revenue paying land, it cannot be filed under this Paragraph as the civil Court has no jurisdiction to partition the revenue.¹ Where an agreement relates to matters partly the Court it has been held that agreement beyond its jurisdiction parties agree to this being done, Paragraph²

The refusal to refer to arbitration is a part of the cause of action for an application under this Paragraph. The application can therefore be filed in the Court within whose jurisdiction the refusal to refer was made.³

6 Agreement relating to appointment to public office

The succession to the trusteeship of a public trust or charity is a matter affecting the public interests and a dispute regarding it cannot be referred to arbitration.¹ It has been held by the High Court of Madras that an agreement to refer to arbitration even if relating to a public office is not necessarily unlawful or opposed to public policy, but must be scrutinised by the Court for the purpose of ascertaining whether it is in violation of the trusts of the institution or affects adversely the interests of the public.²

7 Agreement to refer must be in writing

It is essential that the agreement to refer should be in writing before it can be filed under this Paragraph.¹

agreed to, and from which, i.e., the agreement to refer they cannot retire unless the scope and object of the agreement cannot be executed or unless it be shown that manifest injustice will be the consequence of binding the parties to the contract.¹ Where therefore no sufficient cause^{1a} is shown against the agreement, this paragraph provides that the agreement shall be ordered to be filed. All grounds on which a contract will be voidable such as fraud, misrepresentation etc., which will enable a party to avoid a contract or which render a contract unenforceable against a party will constitute sufficient cause against filing the agreement under this Paragraph. Thus where the agreement to refer is shown to be vitiated by fraud or mistake² or by misrepresentation³ or is not consented to by all the parties⁴ the Court will decline to file the agreement. Similarly where an agreement to refer is entered into by the de facto guardian of a Mahomedan minor it cannot be filed under this Paragraph as such guardian has no authority in law to act for the minor⁵. So also where the conduct of the parties shows that they have abandoned and cancelled the agreement to refer, the Court will refuse to order the same to be filed⁶. Delay in making the application may be a sufficient cause for refusing to order the agreement to be filed but it must be such as to lead to the inference that the parties had abandoned the reference to arbitration anything short of it is not sufficient^{6a}. An agreement the submission under which has been revoked for good cause cannot be filed under this Paragraph⁷.

10 Arbitrator appointed in accordance with the provisions of the agreement

A submission to arbitration must be strictly construed as it deprives the party to the submission of the right which he has under the common law to have the dispute to which the submission relates decided by a Court of Law¹. The jurisdiction of the Court to order a reference under this Paragraph is derived from the agreement of the parties and the Court must refer in accordance with the terms of the agreement². If it fails to do so it acts with material irregularity in the exercise of its jurisdiction³. Thus where the agreement is to refer to the arbitration of two European merchants of Karachi the Court has no power under this Paragraph to order a reference to an Indian merchant of Amritsar⁴. Where according to the terms of an agreement to refer an umpire should be appointed from out of seven persons named the Court cannot appoint as an umpire a person who is not one of the seven persons so named^{4a}. Similarly, where the agreement is to refer to three arbitrators, the Court has no jurisdiction to add a direction that in case of disagreement among them, the opinion of the majority should prevail. There can be no implied agreement in such cases to be bound by the decision of the majority.⁵

An order under the last portion of Para 4, ante, directing a party to nominate an arbitrator, cannot be passed before the agreement is actually filed under the earlier portion.⁶

11 Death or refusal of arbitrator to act

Where an arbitrator dies or refuses to act subsequent to the agreement to refer and the agreement does not contain any provision for such a contingency, has the Court power to appoint a new arbitrator? There are two provisions in this schedule empowering the Court to appoint an arbitrator —

(a) Under Cl 4 of this Paragraph where the agreement does not contain any provision for the appointment of arbitrators and the parties cannot agree thereto

(b) Under Para 5 of this schedule read with Para 19, infra

As to the power of the Court to make an appointment under Cl 4 of this Paragraph the High Court of Allahabad¹ has expressed the view that the expression "if there is no such provision and the parties cannot agree" covers also a case where there has been a provision for a particular arbitrator who is either dead or has retired. If he has died or refuses to act it is as though there were no provisions. But this opinion is merely an obiter dictum and the High Court of Bombay² has dissented from this view and has held that Cl 4 is not open to such a construction.

As to the power of the Court to proceed under Para 5 and make an appointment it must be noted that that Paragraph applies to agreements without recourse to litigation only by virtue of Para 19 by which the provisions of Para 5 can be applied by the Court "only so far as they are consistent with the agreement." There is a diversity of judicial opinion in the application of Para 5 and in order to understand and appreciate the decisions they may be considered under two heads viz —

(1) Where the death or refusal of the arbitrator takes place subsequent to the agreement but before it is filed into Court under this Paragraph

(2) Where such death or refusal takes place subsequent to the filing under Cl 4

In cases falling under the first head, it has been held by the High Courts of Calcutta³ Rangoon^{3a} and Madras⁴ and the Chief Courts of Punjab,⁵ Oudh^{5a} and Lower Burma⁶ that the agreement becomes incapable of performance on the death or refusal of the arbitrator and that the Court cannot order such agreement to be filed under this Paragraph. Thus, where an agreement is to refer to the arbitration of three specified persons, and one of them dies pending arbitration proceedings, the Court cannot order the agreement to be filed under this Paragraph and direct the remaining arbitrators to act or appoint a new arbitrator in his place as it will not be consistent with the provisions of the agreement to do so.⁷ The High Court of Allahabad⁸ has, on the other hand, held that where an arbitrator refuses to act pending arbitration proceedings, the Court can, on a subsequent application under this Paragraph appoint a new arbitrator. The decision proceeds on the view that a party, acquiescing in the arbitrators commencing proceedings, should be deemed to have waived his right to object to the opposite party obtaining later on an order of reference under this Paragraph. According to the High Court of Lahore where an arbitrator named refuses to act, the question whether a new arbitrator can be appointed is one depending on the intention of the parties. If the dominant intention is that the matter should be referred to arbitration then the fact that the parties agreed on the personnel makes no difference, and the Court can appoint a new arbitrator. If, on the other hand, the essence of the agreement is to refer the matter to a particular individual only the Court has no power to appoint a new arbitrator.^{9a}

In cases falling under the second head the power of the Court to appoint a new arbitrator has been assumed in the following cases.⁹ But it is conceived that even in such cases the power of the Court to make a new appointment should be consistent with the terms of the agreement.

12 Revocation of reference to arbitrator

Under the common law of England, a party to a submission might at any time before the award was made, revoke the authority of the arbitrator, the reason being that the arbitrator was, in contemplation of law, merely an agent appointed by the parties to decide the matter in dispute between them and his authority was therefore revocable by either of his principals.¹ This has not been followed in this country.² As pointed out by the Privy Council in Pestonjee v Manockjee & Co, 12 Moo Ind App 112, at p 130, no party to an agreement to refer to arbitration can, after a reference has been made, revoke the submission unless for good cause and a mere arbitrary revocation of the authority is not permitted.³ The following have been held to be 'sufficient cause' for revoking a submission to arbitration —

- (1) The fact that the arbitrator is colluding with the opposite party.⁴
- (2) The fact that the arbitrator is discovered to have been acting as a mukhtear for one of the parties without remuneration or to be indebted to such party.⁵

1 Scope and object of the Paragraph

This paragraph must be read with S 28 of the Contract Act, 1872, S 21 of the Specific Relief Act, 1877, and Para 22 of this Schedule. The general rule as declared by S 28 of the Contract Act is that every agreement by which any party thereto is restricted absolutely from enforcing his rights under or in respect of the contract by the usual legal proceedings in ordinary tribunals is void in agreement to refer future disputes or an agreement in writing to refer existing disputes to arbitration has been declared by the said section to be an exception to the general rule. Such agreements are therefore valid and binding on the parties. They are, however, not specifically enforceable (S 21 of the Specific Relief Act, 1877). But if a party to the agreement sues in respect of the matter agreed to be referred to arbitration, the Court may stay the suit under this Paragraph and thus enable the defendant to apply under Para 17 to carry on the arbitration proceedings as under the agreement. Before the present Code, the existence of such an agreement could be pleaded as a bar to the suit¹ under S 21 of the Contract Act.

Sch II, Para 18—Note 1

For cases under S 21, Specific Relief Act

see the following —

1 (1900) 27 All 53 (55, 56)

Relief Act That section, so far as it enabled such a plea to be raised is a bar has now been declared by Para 22, infra, to be not applicable to cases governed by this Schedule ^{1a}

The object of this Paragraph is to provide against the contumacious conduct of a plaintiff who had agreed to refer a particular matter to arbitration but wants to resile from it, but the discretion is in the Court to stay the suit or not, the paramount idea being that a tribunal constituted by the parties should not come in conflict or usurp the function of the tribunal which the Sovereign has provided ²

2 Where any party institutes any suit

This Paragraph is restricted to cases in which a suit is instituted after an agreement to refer to arbitration has been entered into. An agreement to refer entered into pending suit does not oust the jurisdiction of the Court, nor can it afford a valid ground for staying the suit under this Paragraph ¹

3 Application for stay of suit must be made at the earliest opportunity

The power vested in the Court to stay a suit under this Paragraph is discretionary and can be exercised only on an application made for that purpose at or before the settlement of issues, ¹ of the provisions of S 19 of the Indian Arbitration Act which require that the application should be made at any time after appearance and before filing a written statement or taking any other steps in the proceedings

4 Effect of award made subsequent to suit in pursuance of agreement to refer before suit

Where no application for stay is made within proper time or an application is made and dismissed, the award made subsequently and pending the suit is invalid. When once the suit is filed, the jurisdiction of the arbitrators ceases and they become functus officio ¹. The leading case on the point is the decision in Doleman and Sons v Orsett Corporation, [(1912) 3 K B 257] which has been quoted with approval and followed by the High Courts in India. (1922) 1922 L B 302 (371) 3 L B 44 F 1 following Doleman's case in delivering the judgment in that case observed as follows — The law will not enforce the specific performance of an agreement to refer to arbitration but if duly appealed to it has the power in its discretion to refuse to a party the alternative of having the dispute settled by a Court of Law and thus to leave him in the position of having no other remedy than to proceed by arbitration. If the Court has refused to stay an action or if the defendant has abstained from asking it to do so the Court has resin of the dispute and it is by its decision, and by its decision alone that the rights of the parties are settled. It follows that in the latter case, the private tribunal, if it has ever come into existence is functus officio unless the parties agree de novo that the dispute shall be tried by arbitration and that the action itself shall be referred. There cannot be two tribunals, each with the jurisdiction to insist on deciding the rights of the parties and to compel them to accept its decision.

But in order to apply the doctrine that an award made pending suit is invalid the following conditions must be fulfilled —

- (1) The person instituting the suit must be a party to the agreement to refer
- (2) The party wishing to stay the suit must have the right to apply to the Court to stay it
- (3) The subject matter of the dispute must be the same before the arbitrator and the Court²

The validity of the agreement entered into prior to the suit is not however affected by the institution of the suit and it is only the subsequent award that is invalid. Hence it has been held by the High Court of Calcutta that though an award is made subsequent to suit the Court can nevertheless stay the suit in order to enable the defendant to have the invalid award set aside (under Paris 20 and 21) and thereafter re-commence the arbitration proceedings. Otherwise a party to the agreement can nullify the entire arbitration proceedings by filing a suit at the last moment when the award is about to be delivered without giving the opponent any time to obtain a stay of the suit³.

4a. Effect of award made prior to suit

A valid award operates to merge and extinguish all claims embraced in the submission and constitutes a bar to any action on the original demand. See S 11, Note 27.

An award given after the period fixed in the agreement is not binding on the parties unless the period has been extended by the parties. The extension may however be made orally¹. See also Paragraph 8 Note 3.

5 Sufficient cause—Burden of proof

It is for the plaintiff to show that there is sufficient cause as to why the matter should not be referred to arbitration in accordance with the agreement. The burden is not upon the defendant to show that no such cause exists¹ (As to

6 Discretion of Court to stay suit

The defendant is not entitled as of right to a stay of the suit under this Paragraph. The granting of stay is in the discretion of the Court.¹ The Court will however exercise the discretion ordinarily in favour of the stay, for, as observed by Lord Selbourne in *Willesford v Watson*². If parties choose to determine for themselves, that they will have a domestic forum instead of resorting to the ordinary Courts, then since that Act of Parliament, (that is, the Common Law Procedure Act, 1854 S 11, which corresponds to Para 18 of the Civil Procedure Code) was passed a prima facie duty is cast upon the Courts to act upon such an agreement.

7 Dispute as to agreement to refer—Validity of agreement

The Court can stay a suit under this Paragraph only when there is a subsisting agreement to refer to arbitration. Where the agreement has become void and inoperative as for instance, by the death of the arbitrator specified in the agreement it can afford no valid ground for granting stay under this Paragraph.¹ Similarly where the agreement has been revoked for sufficient cause or is otherwise invalid in law (as where it is vitiated by fraud or mistake) the Court will decline to grant stay.²

Where the parties dispute the agreement, the Court should decide as to the truth and validity of the agreement before it proceeds to grant or refuse a stay under this Paragraph.³ Where the parties have entered into a fresh agreement which materially alters the original agreement containing the arbitration clause the existence of the original agreement cannot be urged as a ground for stay. But if the fresh agreement merely amounts to an extension of time for the performance of the original contract, it has not the effect of superseding the same so as to invalidate the arbitration clause.⁴ Where a contract contains several clauses of which the arbitration clause is one the Court is not a fortiori bound to stay the suit. Thus where a seller files a suit upon certain accepted but unpaid bills and there is a clause in the indent by which the buyer is bound to accept and pay at maturity the bills drawn by the seller notwithstanding any objection that the buyer may have regarding any variations in the terms of the indent the buyer is not entitled to rely on a clause in the indent agreeing to refer the dispute to arbitration. Such a suit is governed by S 32 of the Negotiable Instruments Act and the Court should not stay the suit under this Paragraph.⁵

In the undermentioned case⁶ it has been held that where a suit is filed impeaching the very agreement containing the arbitration clause the Court can order a stay of the arbitration proceedings.

refuses to act¹ or the defendant neglects to take steps to proceed with the arbitration² the plaintiff is entitled to apply for a removal of the order for stay. The Court cannot, however, proceed with the suit without vacating the stay order.

9 Appeal

An appeal lies from an order under this Paragraph staying or refusing to stay the suit [vide S 104, sub s (1), Cl (e)]. But an order of a revenue Court staying or refusing to stay a suit under this Paragraph is not a decree within the meaning of S 177 of the Agra Tenancy Act and no appeal lies against such an order to the civil Court¹.

10 Presidency Small Cause Court's power to stay

According to the High Court of Bombay¹ the Presidency Small Cause Court has power to stay the suit under this Paragraph as well as under S 19 of the Indian Arbitration Act. The High Court of Calcutta² has, however, held that the High Court can stay under this Paragraph the suit pending before the Presidency Small Cause Court, but has left open the question whether the Small Cause Court has also concurrent power to grant stay.

2 Awards made on arbitration without the intervention of a Court

A reference to arbitration out of Court originates in a submission which is an agreement between the parties to be bound by the adjudication of their differences or disputes by an arbitrator appointed with their consent¹² On the reference the arbitrator makes an award or an adjudication of the respective rights of the parties In order to constitute an award therefore the following elements are essential —

- (1) There must be a difference or dispute between the parties ^{1b}
- (2) There must be a submission to arbitration and a reference thereon to an arbitrator appointed by the parties
- (3) There must be an award by the arbitrator on the points referred to him

As between the parties to the submission, a valid award is a final adjudication of the disputes between them embraced in the submission, and is conclusive upon the merits of the controversy submitted ¹ It operates, therefore, to merge and extinguish all claims embraced in the submission and, after an award is made the submission and award furnish the only basis by which the rights of the parties can be determined and constitute a bar to any action on the original rights of the parties It is not necessary for the validity of the award that it should be filed or enforced in a Court of law ² But if it is desired to enforce the rights created by the award through the Court, the award has to be converted into a judgment of Court on which a decree may be made ^{2a} For this purpose a party in whose favour an award has been made has two courses open to him —

- (i) He may proceed by an application under this Paragraph See Note 3
- (ii) He may file a regular suit to enforce the award See Note 4

3 Scope of the Paragraph

This Paragraph provides for a summary procedure for filing in Courts awards made on arbitration without the intervention of a Court ¹ The procedure is, however, optional ² and does not preclude the party from bringing a regular suit to enforce the rights created by the award³ (See Note 4, infra) The inquiry under this Paragraph is limited to the conditions specified in Para 21 (See Note 2 to Para 21, infra) While, in a regular suit to enforce the award, it is open to the defendant to attack the award on all possible grounds⁴

As to whether a proceeding under this Paragraph is res judicata in a subsequent suit to enforce or set aside the award, see Note 27 to S 11 ante A refusal to file the award under this Paragraph does not amount to a decree, and therefore does not render the award void or otherwise unenforceable, as against the parties to the award, but leaves the award to have its ordinary legal validity,⁵ unless the validity of the award as an award was directly and substantially in issue in such proceeding⁶

This Para and Para 21 infra have no application to awards made by an arbitrator appointed under the Rules made by the Government under the Co operative Societies Act⁷ Such awards can be enforced in the same manner as decrees of civil Courts

4 Regular suit to enforce the award

Apart from the procedure under this Paragraph, a regular suit may be brought to enforce the rights under the award¹ (See Form No 10, Appendix 1 to Sch 1) It has been held in the undermentioned case² that a suit to enforce the terms of the award is in essence one for specific performance of the award But it has been held by the High Courts of Madras^{2a} and Allahabad³ that the question whether a suit to enforce an award is a suit for specific performance of the award, would depend upon the nature and purport of the award, and the period of limitation for the suit would also depend upon the nature and purport of the award It is submitted that the latter view is correct Where the award directs the performance of a duty or condition and where the performance of such a duty or condition may be specifically enforced under the Specific Relief Act, the suit may be one for specific performance of the award⁴ But where the award settles or declares the title of the parties and a claim is made based on the title so conferred, the suit cannot be called a suit for specific performance of the award any more than is a suit upon a sale-deed, a suit for specific performance of a contract of sale^{4a} On the same principle it has been held that a suit for recovery of money due under an award is a suit for money and as such cognisable by a Court of Small Causes, even though, in such a suit, the validity of the award may be contested.⁵ As to whether a suit, brought after an application to set aside the award under this Paragraph is dismissed is ruled by the rule of res judicata, see Note 27 to S 11, ante.

9 Any person interested in the award

A person who is not a party to the reference to arbitration and therefore is not bound by the award cannot enforce the award even though he may derive an advantage from it.¹ The arbitrator is not a person interested in the award within the meaning of this Para. He cannot, therefore, apply under this Para to file an award.²

10 Jurisdiction over the subject matter of the award

Under the old Code the application had to be filed in the Court of the lowest grade having jurisdiction over the matter to which the award relates.¹ It was held on an interpretation of the words in quotation, that the jurisdiction depended upon the value of the matter to which the arbitration related and not on the value of the matter awarded.² The use of the words 'having jurisdiction over the subject matter of the award' in the present Paragraph makes it clear that the jurisdiction now depends upon the reliefs awarded rather than on the matter originally in dispute.³ In order to decide whether the Court has jurisdiction over the subject matter of the award, it is necessary to determine whether the Court would have under Ss 16 to 20 of the Code jurisdiction to try a regular suit between the parties in which the reliefs claimed are the reliefs granted by the award.^{3a} It is, however, the entire matter dealt with by the award and not merely a particular portion thereof that must be considered in determining the jurisdiction of the Court.⁴ Where the award deals with matters partly within the jurisdiction of a Court and partly without it, it cannot be filed under this Paragraph in that Court and no decree can be validly made thereon⁴ Thus an award directing the payment of a sum of money and also declaring the dissolution of a marriage cannot be filed in a Small Cause Court which has no jurisdiction to deal with the question of dissolution of marriages⁵ Similarly, in Ramlal v Kisan Chandra,^{6a} where the properties in dispute and dealt with by the award, were all outside British India, it was held by the Privy Council that the award could not be filed in a British Indian Court

Before assuming jurisdiction under this Paragraph the Court has to be satisfied that it has jurisdiction to entertain the application and should, if necessary, take evidence regarding jurisdiction before assuming jurisdiction.⁷

11 Small Cause Court

Where an award merely directs the payment of money a suit to recover the money is cognisable by a Court of Small Causes¹

12 Shall be numbered and registered as a suit

It has been seen in Note 5 to S 2, sub s (2), ante, that the word "suit" for the purposes of the Code, means—

- (1) any proceeding under the Code which is instituted by the presentation of a plaint, and
- (2) any proceeding which, according to any specific provisions of law should be regarded as a suit under the Code

An application under this Paragraph or under Para 17 must, therefore, be regarded as a suit for the purpose of the Code, inasmuch as it has to be "numbered and registered as a suit"¹ It has accordingly been held that the provisions of O 9, R 13,² O 23, Rr 1 and 3³ and O 39, R 5⁴ can be applied to such applications But though such an application is a "suit" the order thereon is not a "decree" The reason is that such a decision is appealable as an order under the provisions of S 104, ante, and is thus excluded from the definition of "decree".⁵

It has, however, been held in the undermentioned cases⁶ that an application within jurisdiction is separable from the other portion without affecting the basis of the award, the case may be different] the Code No decisions as noticed under Para 17 or under this Paragraph is not a 'suit' at all for the purposes of the Code. It is submitted that this view cannot be accepted as correct.

But an application under Para 17 or under this Paragraph should be regarded as a suit only for the purposes of the Code. It is not a suit within the meaning of the Limitation Act, 1908 or of the Dekkhan Agriculturists Relief Act⁸ or of the Court Fees Act, 1870^{9a} or for the purposes of the taxation of the pleaders' fee on such applications⁹. It has been held by the Judicial Commissioners' Court of Sind in the undermentioned case¹⁰ that an application under this para to file an award is a suit within the meaning of S. 16 of the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act.

13 Notice to parties

The issue of a notice to the parties under sub para (4) is imperative¹. The word parties is not confined to persons who have actually appeared before the arbitrators. A, B and C agreed that in case of any dispute between them the matter should be referred to the arbitration of persons chosen by each party to the dispute and that in the event of any such party refusing to nominate an arbitrator, the arbitrator nominated by the other party should nominate another arbitrator and the two together should nominate an umpire. Disputes having arisen A and B called upon C to nominate an arbitrator. C refused to do so and thereupon A and B nominated an arbitrator who chose another arbitrator and they having appointed an umpire made an award. A applied to file the award in Court. It was held that C was a party to whom notice should go although he did not actually appear before the arbitration.²

14 Lost award See Note 8 to para 71 infra

15 Decision of majority

Where a dispute is referred to several arbitrators and the agreement of reference does not provide that the decision of the majority shall prevail an award by the majority of the arbitrators is not valid¹. The mere fact that an uneven number of arbitrators have been appointed does not show that the parties agreed to be bound by the award of the majority². The Court cannot in such cases appoint an umpire³. Even in a case where the parties agree to be bound by the award of the majority the proceedings will be vitiated unless all the arbitrators take part in the proceedings⁴. As to the validity of a decision by the majority of the arbitrators on a reference pending suit see Note 2 to Para 4 ante.

16 Parties to reference

An award binds only the parties making the reference. Where a reference is made by some only of several persons having a common interest, and they have no express authority from the others to act on their behalf also the latter are not bound by the award¹. Where one of the parties to a reference is a minor and an application is made to the Court by another party to file the award, the Court before filing the award, should decide definitely whether the reference is for the benefit of the minor so as to be binding on him².

17 Court fee

An application to file an award under this paragraph is not chargeable with a Court fee as if it is a suit but is chargeable only as an application¹. See also Art 18, Sch II of the Court fees Act, 1870.

18 Limitation

The period of limitation for an application to file an award is six months from the date of the award¹ (Art 178, Indian Limitation Act). It has been held that the date of the award in Art 178 really means the date on which the award was published or handed over to the parties and not the date on which it was made or signed². The Court has no power to enlarge this period under S 5 of the Limitation Act³. Nor can a party claim the benefit of S 6 of the Act⁴.

P. 21. [S 526] (1) Where the Court is satisfied that the matter has been referred to arbitration and that an award has been made thereon³ and where no ground such as is mentioned or referred to in paragraph 14 or paragraph 15 is proved,¹⁰ the Court shall order the award to be filed and shall proceed to pronounce judgment according to the award.

(2) Upon the judgment so pronounced a decree shall follow, and no appeal shall lie from such decree except in so far as the decree is in excess of or not in accordance with the award.

2 Scope of the enquiry under this paragraph

It has been seen in Note 4 to Para 14 ante that it is a fundamental principle of the law of arbitration that the submission furnishes the source and prescribes the limits of the authority of the arbitrator and that the award must conform to the submission in substance and in form. Subject to this limitation, however the arbitrator is the sole and final judge of law and fact and the Court will not review the award upon the merits nor constitute itself as a Court of appeal to go into the merits of the matter and to see whether the conclusions arrived at are sound and reasonable¹

There is no provision of law which requires the arbitrator to adopt any special procedure in arriving at his award² and the proceedings are not intended to be carried on according to the rules of procedure contained in the Code^{2a}. He is not bound to make any record of the proceedings^{2b} or to give a reasoned judicial decision³. In any inquiry under this paragraph the Court has to satisfy itself only on the following points —

- (1) that there was a matter in difference between the parties existing at the time of the arbitration (see Note 3 infra)
- (2) that there was a valid submission of the matter in difference and a reference thereon to arbitration (see Note 4)
- (3) that the subject matter of the reference was such as could be lawfully referred to arbitration and that the Court has jurisdiction over

2 Scope of the enquiry under this paragraph

Subject to this limitation, however the arbitrator is the sole and final judge of law and fact and the Court will not review the award upon the merits nor constitute itself as a Court of appeal to go into the merits of the matter and to see whether the conclusions arrived at are sound and reasonable¹

(4) that an award was made thereon (see Notes 6, 7 and 8), and

(5) that no grounds of objection such as those mentioned in Paras 14 and 15 have been proved (see Notes 9 and 10).

The Court should then proceed to give judgment according to the award,^{3a} that is, it should state in the judgment what its construction of the award is as to the rights and interests of the parties,⁴ and a decree dealing with the specific rights of the parties should be drawn up.⁵ The award should be construed reasonably and in accordance with what may be supposed, under the circumstances of the case, to have been the intention of the arbitrator.⁶ Every reasonable presumption should be made in favour of the award being a final and certain termination of the matters in dispute.⁷

3 Where the Court is satisfied that the matter has been referred to arbitration and that an award has been made thereon

Under S 326 of the old Code, it was held by the High Court of Bombay in the cases cited below¹ that the Court had no jurisdiction to enquire into the factum or validity of the submission and award, and if the defendant denied any reference to arbitration, the only course open to the Court was to dismiss the application and refer the parties to a regular suit to enforce the award. But this view was dissented from by the same High Court in a later Full Bench case² in which it was held, following the decisions of the other High Courts³ that the existence and validity of the reference and award was the foundation of jurisdiction of the Court under that section, and that, therefore, the Court ought to decide on evidence whether the matter was referred to arbitration and whether an award was made thereon. The addition of these words gives effect to the latter view. See the undermentioned cases.⁴

The word "matter" in this as well as in the previous paragraph, is not wider than the expression "matter in difference" used in Para 1 of this Schedule.⁵ As has been seen in Note 8 to that paragraph, the difference must be one which has actually arisen at the time of the reference though it need not have arisen at the time of the agreement to refer.^{5a} The Court must, therefore, before filing the award satisfy itself that there was a real dispute between the parties, and that there was an arbitration thereon.⁶

4 Validity of reference and award

Before ordering an award to be filed, the Court should satisfy itself not only that the matter in difference was referred to arbitration, but also that the submission was valid in law.¹

An award binds only the parties making the reference and persons who are properly represented in the arbitration proceedings². Thus an award on a question of partition when all the members of the joint family are not parties to the reference is not binding on the non-parties³ though as between the parties themselves it will be binding⁴. Again, the capacity to make a submission is co-extensive with the capacity to contract. A person who cannot make a contract cannot make a submission and a person whose capacity to make a contract is restricted, can only make a submission to that extent⁵. Thus a minor cannot himself make a submission although a guardian may make it on his behalf for his benefit⁶. An executor or administrator is competent, but only under certain circumstances, to make a reference to arbitration⁷. But though, as a general principle a person who is not properly represented in the proceedings is not bound thereby, the proceedings before arbitrators are not intended to be carried on according to the rules of procedure contained in the Civil Procedure Code. If there is a binding reference to arbitration, all that is necessary to be seen is that there is a substantial representation of the different interests before the arbitrators. There is no rule of procedure by which, on the death of some of the parties, the arbitrators could substitute their legal representatives or appoint guardian ad litem for such representatives if they happen to be minors⁸.

An agreement to refer, as has been seen in Para 17 ante must, for the purposes of that paragraph, be in writing. In cases, however, of awards without the intervention of the Court, it is not necessary for its validity that the submission should have been in writing it may be oral⁹ or can be gathered from documents connected by oral evidence¹⁰.

tened or pending criminal prosecution should be dropped is opposed to public policy and the reference as well as the award if any made thereon are invalid.¹ But an agreement to refer in consideration of the withdrawal of an application under S 476 of the Criminal Procedure Code is not enough to vitiate the award.²

5 Subject matter of the award

Paragraph 20 provides that any person interested in the award (made without the intervention of the Court) may apply to any Court having jurisdiction over the subject matter of the award, that the award be filed in Court. It follows that the subject matter of the award must be one over which the Court would have jurisdiction if a suit were brought in respect thereof. Questions therefore which could not be made the subject of a civil suit, under S 9 of the Code such as caste questions could not be the subject of an award enforceable in a Court of law¹. The High Court of Bombay has however held that the jurisdiction of the Court to file an award is conferred by Para 20 and not by S 9 of the Code and that the Court could therefore file an award under Para 20 even though the subject matter of the award is not of a civil nature (such as a decision of man pan offerings) and therefore not cognisable by a civil Court under S 9 *ante*². It is submitted that this view is not correct. The object of filing an award in Court is to convert it into a decree of Court so that it could be enforced like other decrees under *provisions of the Code*³. It necessarily follows that unless the Court has jurisdiction over the subject matter under S 9, any decree passed in respect of such subject matter would be incapable of execution under the Code.

But the fact that a suit could be instituted in a civil Court in respect of a particular matter does not necessarily mean that such matter can be referred to arbitration.⁴ The difference or dispute between the parties should be such that the parties could if they were so minded settle the matter between themselves by a valid agreement.⁵ Thus a dispute as to the office of a public charity,⁶ or the appointment of a guardian to a minor⁷ not relating to a private right as between the parties cannot be made the subject of an award by arbitrators. On the same principle a dispute arising from some illegal transaction or some transaction opposed to public policy cannot be made the subject of a valid award⁸ as any agreement which the parties themselves could make in settlement of the dispute would not be enforceable and the award of the arbitrator on such a dispute would likewise be invalid and unenforceable.⁹ See also para 1 Note 10 ante

An award on a reference through Court, should be in writing signed by the arbitrators. See Para 10, ante. But as has been seen in Note 1 to that paragraph an award made on a reference made without the intervention of the Court need not be in writing or be signed by the arbitrators. It may be oral.¹ But if the arbitrators resolve that their award is to be put in the form of a document to be signed by them as a final expression of their decision it is only such document that can be treated as their award.²

6a Registration of award

An award on a reference without the intervention of the Court affecting immovable property of the value of more than Rs 100 is compulsorily registrable if it falls within the terms of S 17 of the Registration Act.³

7 Part of award if can be filed

If the parties agree by the terms of the submission or at the time of the arbitration that the matters in dispute may be taken up seriatim by the arbitrators and that the award may be delivered in separate parts each part may be treated as a separate award and filed under this paragraph.⁴

But in the absence of any specific provision in the submission if the award (1) determines any matter not referred to arbitration or (2) fails to determine any of the matters referred to arbitration or (3) is indefinite or vague or is illegal in respect of a portion of it the question arises whether the Court can file the valid portion of the award. If in case (1) the matter not referred to arbitration can be separated from the portion referred the latter can be filed the former being treated null and void.⁵ But if the objectionable portion is inseparable from the rest or not so clearly separable that it can be seen that the part of the award attempted to be supported is not at all affected by the faulty portion the whole award will be avoided.⁶

In case (2) the award is not a complete award and is therefore invalid.⁷ But the parties may waive this objection⁸ and if they show by their conduct that they do not want a decision upon the points⁹ or if the arbitrators find that there is no matter in difference in respect of these points⁷ the award may be held to the extent it was given. Similarly if an award leaves nothing to be done but the performance of some ministerial act it is not faulty for want of finality on the principle *certum est quod certum reddi protest*⁸ (that is certain, which can be made certain)

In case (3) also, the award is invalid⁹ Where the award did not state either the facts found by the arbitrators or the grounds for their decision and it was consequently impossible to hold that the award proceeded solely on those grounds which entitled the arbitrators to act under the arbitration clause, it was held that if the bad was not separable from the good portion of the award the whole was bad¹⁰

8 Lost award

Where an award in writing is lost secondary evidence of the terms thereof cannot be adduced in a proceeding under this paragraph The remedy of the parties is to file a regular suit to enforce the terms of the award¹

9 Grounds of objection under Paras 14 and 15

See generally Paras 14 and 15 and the notes thereto Where a period of time is fixed in the submission for the making of an award, the arbitrators have no jurisdiction to make the award after the period and the award so made is invalid¹ Where no such period is fixed in the submission the award should be made within a reasonable time which should be decided with reference to the facts of each case²

10 Proved

Under S 526 of the old Code, it was provided that where no ground as was mentioned in Ss 520 and 521 (Paras 14 and 15) was shown the Court should order the award to be filed It was held in some cases that even on a mere allegation by affidavit or verified statement that the award was bad on the ground specified in S 520 or S 521 the Court was bound to dismiss the application and refer the parties to a separate suit¹ In other cases it was however held that the word 'shown' which occurred really meant proved and that it is not sufficient to allege cause or make out that there is room for argument, but that the cause must be both alleged and proved to the satisfaction of the Court² The substitution of the word proved gives effect to the latter view

11 Res judicata—See Note 27 to S 11 ante

As has been seen in that note all claims embraced in a submission are put an end to by a valid award which thereafter furnishes the only basis for determining the rights of the parties and constitutes a bar to any action on the original demand¹ See also

14 Appeal against an order filing or refusing to file award—See S. 104 Note 15 ante

An appeal against an order filing or refusing to file an award is not a decree or an order having the force of a decree and an appeal against such order is chargeable with Court-fee under Sch. 2, Art. 11 of the Court-fees Act¹. The value for purposes of jurisdiction in such cases is to be based on the same method as that for the original application itself, i.e., the value of the subject-matter of the award².

15 Appeal against decree on award—Sub S. (2)

Section 104 (f) provides for an appeal against an order filing or refusing to file an award under this Paragraph. This right of appeal is not taken away merely because a decree is passed in accordance with the award^{1a}. See S. 104, Note 15 ante.^{1a}

But no appeal lies from a decree passed under this sub-paragraph except in so far as the decree is in excess of, or not in accordance with the award¹. Thus where the decree does not correctly interpret the award² or where the decree awards something which the arbitrators having jurisdiction to award did not award,³ an appeal will lie. But the appellant is not entitled in such appeal to re-open the whole case and to address on all questions which were raised before the lower Court, his attack must be confined to the *legality of the decree as compared with the award*⁴.

The decree passed under this Paragraph is a decree "open to appeal" within the meaning of O. 43, R. 1 (d), and, therefore, an appeal lies against an order refusing to set aside an ex parte decree passed under this Paragraph⁵.

16 Enforcement of award

An award could not be enforced by execution until it has been made a Rule of the Court by a decree being passed in accordance therewith¹. A person who was a party to the arbitration but who was not a party to the decree which followed the award could not enforce the decree².

17 Appeal to Privy Council

See Note 8 to S 104 ante The provisions of sub Para (2) cannot be read so as to affect the right of the parties to go in appeal to the Privy Council under Ss 109 to 111 of the Code and do not bar any such appeal¹

18 Revision

The general principle in the case of awards is that it is final. An appeal is allowed from a decree passed on an award only to a very limited extent. A revision in such a case would be more objectionable than an appeal¹. The High Court should, therefore, proceed very warily in allowing revision in cases of award. No revision will lie where the conditions of S 115 are not satisfied². But where there is no real dispute which could be referred to arbitration in award filed by the arbitrators into Court amounts to an abuse of the process of the Court and therefore the order is open to revision³. Similarly, where the Court assumes jurisdiction which it has not and files the award a revision will lie⁴. It was broadly held in the undermentioned cases⁵ relying upon the decision of the Privy Council in Ghulam v Muhammad Hassan^{6a} that no revision at all will lie in any case in which a decree has been passed on an award. It is submitted that this is not correct and that the decision of the Privy Council does not lay down any such broad proposition.

I Applicability of this Schedule

Section 148, Bengal Tenancy Act (VIII of 1885), provides that this Schedule shall not apply to any suit for recovery of rent. Similarly, S 192, Cl (a) of the Madras Estates Land Act (I of 1908), enacts that this Schedule shall not apply to any suit, appeal or other proceeding under that Act.

Under S 9, sub-S (3) of the Central Provinces Tenancy Act (I of 1920), the Collector executing a decree for rent may, notwithstanding anything contained in this Schedule, allow the tenant time, not exceeding in the aggregate two months, to satisfy the decree.

Section 22-A, sub-S (2) of the Dekkhan Agriculturists' Relief Act (XVII of 1879), provides that a sale under that section shall be deemed to be a sale under the provisions of Para 10 of this Schedule.

The provisions of S 11, Madras Court of wards Act, do not affect the duties of the executing Court or the functions of the Collector under this Rule¹

1a Powers of the Court and of the Collector

As has been seen in Note 2 to S 70, ante, where a decree is transferred to the Collector for execution, the Collector has the powers of execution only and not of deciding other matters and even the powers of execution are limited by this Rule to the three courses specified in this Rule¹. Thus he has no power to inquire into the objections to attachment or sale² to entertain applications for rateable distribution³ to decide whether the decree was satisfied⁴ or to decide whether there has been a compromise⁵. Nor can he deal with property not covered by the order of sale⁶ or set aside the acts of the owner of the property before the transfer was made⁷.

Within the limits of the Rule however the Collector has absolute jurisdiction to find out the best method of execution allowed to him by law⁸. Where the execution of a decree obtained against a Hindu father and sought to be executed against the joint family property is transferred to the Collector for execution, he becomes seized of the entire interest including the sons' interest in the property, and can sell it in such execution⁹. He can dismiss an execution application for default and can likewise restore it in proper cases¹⁰. Similarly where an order is passed under a mistake he can set it aside on discovery of the mistake¹¹.

In all matters arising in execution but not covered by the provision of this schedule, the civil Court continues to have jurisdiction. Thus the Court has power to hear objections to the sale held by the Collector¹² or to entertain a suit to set aside the order of the Collector setting aside a sale¹³ or to inquire into the question whether the decree is satisfied^{13a}. Where the Collector fails to effect the sale of property ordered to be sold by the decree it is open to him to return the papers to the Court. But the Court has the power to send the papers back if the reason which prevented the sale was not such as to operate as a complete impediment to the execution of the decree no fresh application for that purpose is necessary¹⁴. It has been held in the undermentioned cases that after the transfer of the decree to the Collector for execution the civil Court cannot entertain an application to add legal representatives of a deceased party¹⁵.

4 Competency of Court to call back records sent to the Collector

The Court that has made a decree or judicial order which has been transmitted to the Collector for execution is not deprived of its judicial power with respect to it It has power where necessary, to recall its own records transmitted to the Collector¹ But such judicial power ought not to be exercised unless the Court is set in motion by one of the parties to the proceedings in execution²

A decree for sale of ancestral land or of an interest in such land in enforcement of an hypothecation on such land is a decree for the recovery of money within the N W P Government Notification, No 671 of 30th August 1850¹

P. 3. [S 322-A] (1) In any such case as is referred to in paragraph 2, the Collector shall publish a notice, allowing a period of sixty days from the date of its publication for compliance and calling upon—

Notice to be given to decree holders and to persons having claims on property

(a) every person holding a decree for the payment of money against the judgment debtor capable of execution by sale of his immoveable property and which such decree-holder desires to have so executed, and every holder of a decree for the payment of money in execution of which proceedings for the sale of such property are pending, to produce before the Collector a copy of the decree, and certificate from the Court which passed or is executing the same, declaring the amount recoverable thereunder,

(b) every person having any claim on the said property to submit to the Collector a statement of such claim, and to produce the documents (if any) by which it is evidenced

(2) Such notice shall be published by being affixed on a conspicuous part of the court-house of the Court which made the original order for sale, and in such other places (if any) as the Collector thinks fit, and where the address of any such decree-holder or claimant is known, a copy of the notice shall be sent to him by post or otherwise

Power of Collector to hear objections

Note No 2

1 Scope of the Para

The persons who are entitled to notice under this Paragraph are —

(1) Persons holding decrees for money—

(a) which are capable of execution by sale of the immoveable property of the judgment debtor, or

(b) in which proceedings for sale of such property are pending and

(2) persons having any claim on the property of the judgment debtor

Where properties have been placed under the management of the Collector the Court cannot, under the provisions of Part II, infra issue any process against such properties in execution of a decree for the payment of money. The holder of decree passed after the property comes under the management of the Collector is therefore not a person whose decree is capable of execution by sale of the immovable property of the judgment debtor and is not entitled to be placed on the list of creditors named under the following Paragraph¹

2 Power of Collector to hear objections

The Collector is not authorized to hear any objection to the sale of the property advertised for sale. He can only call for claims¹. Where the Collector acting under this Paragraph called on every person who had claim on the property of the judgment debtor to submit a statement thereof and in pursuance of the authority vested in him satisfied the claims made it was not competent to a person who had not made the statement required to claim to set aside the arrangement made by the Collector².

P. 4. [S 322-B] (1) Upon the expiration of the said period,

Amount of decrees for payment of money to be ascertained and immovable property available for their satisfaction the Collector shall appoint a day for hearing any representations which the judgment-debtor and the decree holders or claimants (if any) may desire to make and for holding such inquiry as he may deem necessary for informing himself as to the nature and extent of such decrees and claims and of the judgment debtor's immovable property, and may, from time to time, adjourn such hearing and inquiry.

(2) Where there is no dispute as to the fact or extent of the liability of the judgment-debtor to any of the decrees or claims of which the Collector is informed or as to the relative priorities of such decrees or claims or as to the liability of any such property for the satisfaction of such decrees or claims the Collector shall draw up a statement specifying the amount to be recovered for the discharge of such decrees, the order in which such decrees and claims are to be satisfied, and the immovable property available for that purpose.

(3) Where any such dispute arises the Collector shall refer the same with a statement thereof and his own opinion thereon, to the Court which made the original order for sale, and shall, pending the reference stay proceedings relating to the subject thereof. The Court shall dispose of the dispute if the matter thereof is within its jurisdiction, or transmit the case to a competent Court for disposal and the final decision shall be communicated to the Collector, who shall then draw up a statement as above provided in accordance with such decision.

In the statement of debts to be prepared by the Collector under this paragraph only such persons are to be entered as are referred to in Para 3 above. As has been seen in Note 1 to that paragraph a person who has obtained a decree for money after the management of the debtor's property has been placed in the hands of the Collector is not a person referred to in that paragraph and is not therefore entitled to be placed in the statement prepared under this paragraph¹

The decision by the Court of any dispute arising under Para 4 and 5 under the terms of the paragraph appealable as a decree. Where a District Judge to whom a dispute was referred by the Collector, wrongly sent back the same to the Collector and he decided it it was held that the remedy of the aggrieved party was to have appealed against the order of the District Judge and not to go to the Collector for a declaration of his right¹

2 Court fee

Article 11 of Sch II of the Court fees Act 1870 applies only to decrees and orders of appeal against decisions which are not decrees or orders having the force of decrees. An order made by the Court under paras 4 and 5 has as set out in this paragraph the force of a decree and is consequently not within Art 11 of the second schedule of the Court fees Act 1870. A memorandum of appeal against such an order is therefore chargeable with an ad valorem fee under Art 1 Sch I of that Act¹. The High Court of Madras has however, taken a contrary view and held that it is chargeable only with a fixed fee². The decision cannot be accepted as correct.

If any dispute arises as to the amount due on any incumbrance with which the Collector proposes to deal under this clause, he may institute a suit in the proper Court, either in his own name or the name of the judgment-debtor, to have an account taken, or he may agree to refer such dispute to the decision of two arbitrators one to be chosen by each party, or of an umpire to be named by such arbitrators

Synopsis

Scope of the paragraph Note No 1

1 Scope of the Paragraph

Where a decree is transferred to the Collector for execution the latter has absolute jurisdiction to decide and find out the best method of execution allowed to him by law¹. The civil Court has no power to pass orders in such matters. Thus where certain properties were sold by the Collector but the whole of the sale amount was not deposited by the auction purchaser it is entirely in the discretion of the Collector to decide whether he would re sell the property or not in order to realise the balance of the purchase money². But as has been seen in Note 1 to Para 1 above the Collector, has no jurisdiction to decide whether the decree is satisfied³.

Where in exercise of his powers the Collector has granted lease to the decree holder in satisfaction of his decree he cannot subsequently resale from it nor can the Court interfere in the matter⁴ as, for example authorising the grant of a fresh lease^{5a}. Where a decree was transferred to the Collector for making suggestions for the satisfaction of the decree and the Collector suggested that half the attached land should be farmed out to the decree holder for certain period in satisfaction of the decree but the latter was not prepared to take such lease and the executing Court thereupon merely filed the proceedings it was held that the procedure was wrong and the proceedings could be filed only if all the lawful means for satisfying the decree had been tried and found to be impracticable⁵.

An order of a Collector under this Rule disallowing the application of a decree holder that the amount of the decree might be satisfied by a temporary alienation instead of by a sale is not appealable⁶.

P. 8. [S 324] Where, on the expiration of the letting or management under paragraph 7, the amount to be recovered has not been realized, the Collector shall notify the fact in writing to the judgment debtor or his representative in interest, stating at the same time that, if the balance necessary to make up the said amount is not paid to the Collector within six weeks from the date of such notice, he will proceed to sell the whole or a sufficient part of the said property, and, if on the expiration of the said six weeks the said balance is not so paid, the Collector shall sell such property or part accordingly.

(3) The balance shall be applied by the Court—

1 Scope of the Paragraph

Where a decree has been sent to the Collector for execution he is bound to render, to the Court, an account of all monies which came into his hands and must hold the balance of the amount after deducting necessary charges at the disposal of the Court¹. But he cannot be compelled either to give up the account books into the Court nor does the Paragraph require him to pay the balance into Court².

2 Maintenance of judgment debtor's family

The provision for the maintenance of the judgment debtor's family is a matter for the determination by the Court and not by the Collector¹.

3 Charges

The Collector is entitled to recover as expenses of sale fees on the scale prescribed for sales under the Land Revenue Code. Poundage fee may also be allowed in addition to such expenses¹.

4 Claims for rateable distribution—Sub Para 3 (c) (iii)

The omission, by the person claiming rateable distribution, to invite the attention of the Collector to his own right of rateable distribution does not deprive him of the right to claim such distribution in a regular suit the fact that the decree which is noted to be satisfied will have to be re-opened does not affect the question¹.

1 Scope of the Paragraph

According to the Bombay civil circulars an application by the decree holder for permission to bid at the auction held by the Collector must be made to the Collector²

1 Incompetency to transfer

This paragraph imposes a personal disqualification on the judgment debtor and his representatives by declaring that they are incompetent to mortgage, charge, lease or alienate their properties whilst they are under the management of the Collector under the provisions of this schedule¹ A mortgage charge lease or other alienation made in contravention of the provisions of this paragraph is wholly void² and not merely voidable as against the Collector and persons claiming through him³ It is incapable of ratification or of enforcement in equity⁴ Where

A mortgagee under a mortgage which is void as being in contravention of the provisions of this paragraph pays off a prior mortgage he will have no right to be subordinated to the rights of the prior mortgagee⁶

But the incompetency of the judgment debtor under this paragraph is confined to the property in respect of which the Collector has assumed management and does not extend to property which has been excluded from such management. A transfer by the judgment debtor of such property is not within the prohibition of this paragraph⁶. Again the disability to transfer property in respect of which the Collector has assumed management will not affect the validity of any agreement to pay money recoverable from his person or other property. Such an agreement is enforceable in law and is as valid as any other contract^{6a}.

A member of a joint Hindu family against the manager of which a decree has been obtained as representing the family is a judgment debtor within the meaning of this paragraph and is incompetent to alienate any portion of the properties in the management of the Collector⁷. But the incompetency does not extend to the lessee from the Collector and he can therefore alienate his interest in the lease⁸. The disability to alienate begins from the date of the order of transfer to the Collector and continues so long as any of the debts, for the satisfaction of which the property was taken under the management of the Collector, remains unpaid⁹. In other words the disability continues until the decree is satisfied and the proceedings in appeal and revision therefrom are complete¹⁰.

Illustrations

1. If the judgment debtor makes a transfer of his property after the Court has made an order transferring the decree for execution to the Collector and before that order reaches the Collector the transfer is void¹¹.
2. A decree was transferred to the Collector for execution. A portion of the property of the judgment debtor was sold by the Collector the price realized being more than sufficient to satisfy the decree. Before the sale was confirmed the debtor died. The sale was confirmed. The sale was valid.
3. The execution of a decree against a joint Hindu family was transferred to the Collector and he sold the property to the manager of the family for the purpose of such execution. The Collector granted a lease of the property to A for a certain number of years. A mortgaged the demised properties during the subsistence of the lease. The mortgage was valid. The incompetency of A continues so long as the scheme for liquidation is in progress.

Where, however, a sale takes place in contravention of this paragraph without either party knowing that he was violating the law, the vendor will in equity be compelled to refund the purchase money received by him¹⁴. Again

where a suit is brought by a mortgagee on a mortgage executed by the judgment debtor in contravention of this paragraph but the latter does not raise any plea as to the void character of the mortgage and a decree is passed thereon he cannot raise such objection in execution of the decree¹⁵

A contract of sale does not create a charge within the meaning of this Para¹⁶ The word alienate is used ejusdem generis with the preceding words 'mortgage charge or lease' and contemplates a transfer which would have a present effect and not a devise such as a will or a donatio mortis causa which can have operation only after the death of the testator¹

A family settlement based on the assumption of antecedent title in the parties is not an alienation and does not contravene this Para¹⁸

2 Alienation subsequent to adjustment

After an adjustment has been certified and is recorded by the Collector the prohibition against alienation imposed by this paragraph no longer subsists. It is competent to the judgment debtor to mortgage sell or otherwise alienate his property thereafter¹

Where a mortgage is made in contravention of the Para but the decree is paid out of the mortgage amount the mortgage is not void as the Collector cannot after the decree is satisfied exercise any of the powers given to him under the Cole and the disability of the mortgagor ceases²

3 Permission of the Collector

So long as the properties of the judgment debtor are in the management of the Collector his written permission is absolutely necessary to validate a mortgage or other alienation executed by the judgment debtor. The permission need not however take any special form. Nor is it necessary that every detail of the transaction should be sanctioned by the Collector nor should there be a separate permission in respect of each deed when it is clear that the whole transaction had his permission¹

Permission to alienate can be inferred from written words employed by the Collector from time to time²

A sale will be valid even if permission is obtained before the registration of the document³

A sale by a judgment debtor with the permission of the Collector under this schedule has not the same effect as a sale by a Collector himself in execution but amounts only to a private sale⁴

4 Power of civil Court to issue process

Where a Collector holds a judgment debtor's property under his control by virtue of the powers conferred on him by S 68 a new process cannot be issued by a civil Court in execution of a decree for the payment of money¹ But any attach

5 Termination of the Collector's powers

The powers of the Collector under the schedule terminate as soon as the decree is certified as satisfied¹ Thus where a deposit is made of the amount which would fully satisfy the decree² or where the Collector leases the property to the decree holder for a certain number of years in full satisfaction of the decree and the decree is certified as satisfied³ the Collector's powers under this schedule cease and an alienation made by the judgment debtor thereafter is not void But the mere fact that the property is sold and fetches more than the decretal amount does not put an end to the management of the Collector His powers continue to exist till the confirmation of the sale⁴ The presumption is that such powers continue until they are proved to have ceased⁵ Where a civil Court draws up

Form C in respect of the properties attached by it and sends the same to the Collector but the latter returns it to the civil Court for some corrections to be made therein the proceedings before the Collector must be deemed to be pending even during the period during which the Form C was pending in the civil Court for correction⁶

This paragraph expressly excludes from calculation the period during which the decree is before the Collector for execution¹ The reason is that during such period the decree holders have no remedy by execution against the property of the judgment debtor in the management of the Collector² But the exclusion is permissible, only in cases where a provision has been made under Para 7 for the satisfaction of the decree and where the decree holder has in consequence been deprived of his remedy Consequently if no such provision is made the period cannot be excluded³

The words period of limitation in this Paragraph apply to the restrictions placed upon the right of the decree holder both by the Limitation Act 1908 and by S 48 of the Code⁴ Where at a sale held by the Collector no bidders appear and the Collector sends the papers back to the civil Court but the civil Court returns the papers again to the Collector the period from the

The powers of the Collector under the schedule terminate as soon as the decree is certified as satisfied¹ Thus where a deposit is made of the amount which would fully satisfy the decree² or where the Collector leases the property to the decree holder for a certain number of years in full satisfaction of the decree and the decree is certified as satisfied³ the Collector's powers under this schedule cease and an alienation made by the judgment debtor thereafter is not void But the mere fact that the property is sold and fetches more than the decretal amount does not put an end to the management of the Collector His powers continue to exist till the confirmation of the sale⁴ The presumption is that such powers continue until they are proved to have ceased⁵ Where a civil Court draws up

This paragraph expressly excludes from calculation the period during which the decree is before the Collector for execution¹ The reason is that during such period, the decree holders have no remedy by execution against the property of the judgment debtor in the management of the Collector² But the exclusion is permissible only in cases where a provision has been made under Part 7 for the satisfaction of the decree and where the decree holder has no consequence been deprived of his remedy Consequently if no such provision is made the period cannot be excluded³

The words period of limitation in this Paragraph apply to the restrictions placed upon the right of the decree holder both by the Limitation Act 1908 and by S 48 of the Code⁴ Where at a sale held by the Collector no bidders appear and the Collector sends the papers back to the civil Court but the civil Court returns the papers again to the Collector the period from the

India are not chartered High Courts and cannot exercise powers under S 107 of this Act¹

1 Sub Section (2)—The words upon the happening of a vacancy in the office of Judge mean upon the happening of a vacancy in the office of a Judge appointed to his office by His Majesty. They are not applicable to the case of a vacancy caused by a person appointed to act as a Judge under this sub section¹

2 Time within which appointment of acting Judge should be made—No limit of time is mentioned within which the appointment should be made. That is left to the discretion of the Local Government. Hence the fact that an appointment is made by the Local Government not immediately or within a reasonable time after the occurrence of the vacancy will not have the effect of invalidating the appointment and render the judgment of the Judge so appointed a nullity¹

JURISDICTION

106 (Ch Act, S 9) —(1) The several High Courts are Courts of record and have such jurisdiction, original and appellate in

Jurisdiction of High Courts including admiralty jurisdiction in respect of offences committed on the high seas, and all such powers and authority over or in relation to the administration of justice including power to appoint clerks and other ministerial officers of the Court and power to make rules for regulating the practice of the Court as are vested in them by letters patent, and subject to the provisions of any such letters patent, all such jurisdictions powers and authority as are vested in those Courts respectively at the commencement of this Act

(2) (21 Geo 3, C 70) —The High Courts have not and may not exercise any original jurisdiction in any matter concerning the revenue or concerning any act ordered or done in the collection thereof according to the usage and practice of the country or the law for the time being in force

Synopsis

Original revenue jurisdiction Revenue—Meaning of	Note No 1 2.	Power to make rules for regulating the practice of the Court	Not to

1 Original revenue jurisdiction—Sub S (2) re-enacts the prohibition which is issued thereunder. The High Court has now no original jurisdiction in matters concerning revenue. Thus a suit by an assessee for a declaration that an agreement for composition of directing the Chief Revenue Officer to do his statutory duty and state a case for the opinion of the Court is not one made in the exercise of Original jurisdiction in any matter concerning the revenue and the High Court is competent to pass such an order.²

2 Revenue—Meaning of—Money derived by a sale of smuggled goods which are seized and confiscated by the customs authorities is revenue within the meaning of the Section. Consequently an action in trover against the Secretary of State for India for the recovery of the value of such goods on the allegation that the action of the customs authorities is illegal cannot be entertained on the original side of the High Court.¹

3 Power to make rules for regulating the practice of the Court—The High Court is empowered under Sub S (1) to make rules for regulating its practice. It is not necessary that the sanction of the Local Government should be obtained for such Rules.¹ Where there is nothing inconsistent in the Rules so framed with the provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure the High Court can apply the provisions of the latter Code. Thus there being no provision in the original side Rules of the Madras High Court similar to that contained in O 31 to apply to the original side also.²

2 Blackstone's Commentaries, p 110.

This wide power has been given to the High Courts in India in a limited and modified form by S. 115 of the Civil Procedure Code, by S. 435 of the Criminal Procedure Code, by S. 107 of the Government of India Act, 1915, by Cl. 13 of the Letters Patent (Madras, Bombay and Calcutta) and by other enactments. These however, do not exhaust the powers of superintendence of the Chartered High Courts in India. When the Supreme Courts were established in India they were invested with the same powers of superintendence as were exercised by the Court of the Queen's Bench in England.³ Under S. 9 of the High Courts Act, 1861 (known as the Charter Act) which abolished the Supreme Courts and empowered the establishment of the High Courts, it was provided that the High Court to be established 'shall have and exercise all jurisdiction and every power and authority whatsoever, in any manner vested in any of the Courts in the same Presidency, abolished under this Act'.^{3a} Finally S. 106 of the Government of India Act, 1915 (which has repealed the High Courts Act, 1861) provides that the High Courts have, 'subject to the provisions of any such Letters Patent, all such jurisdiction powers and authority as are vested in those Courts respectively at the commencement of this Act'. It is thus clear that in addition to the powers given by this section and by other statutes the Chartered High Courts have inherited from the Supreme Courts the wide powers of superintendence exercised by the Court of the King's Bench in England.⁴ Thus a Chartered High Court can issue a writ of certiorari to persons or bodies acting judicially but which are not Courts subject to the appellate jurisdiction of the High Court, and which cannot be dealt with under S. 107 of this Act.^{4a} (For a fuller discussion of this, see Note 17, infra)

The powers of superintendence under this section are not merely administrative but are also judicial^{4b} and are much wider than the powers vested in the High Courts under S. 115. The latter applies only where a case has been decided by any Court subordinate to the High Court in which no appeal lies thereto and the High Court can interfere only in the three cases specified therein. There are no such limitations upon the power of the High Court under this section which can therefore be exercised even in cases not covered by S. 115.⁵ It may be exercised in administrative as well as judicial matters⁶ and in Civil as well as Criminal proceedings.

The exercise of the power is in the discretion of the Court to which the application is made⁷ and the power being one in the nature of extraordinary jurisdiction should be exercised sparingly and with caution and on sound judicial principles.^{7a} The principles guiding the exercise of such discretion have been thus stated by West J. in Srinanallay v Jona Hashinath,⁸ as follows:—

- (1) The Court having called up the record or proceedings of a subordinate Court will itself investigate the facts on which a jurisdiction has been assumed or declined, on which it depends whether the subordinate Court could or could not legally deal with the matter in question, either at all, or on the principle to which it has referred the case, or according to which its mode of enquiry or of action may or may not, have been in contradiction, rather than obedience to the rules of procedure, or the principles implied in them to such a material extent as to defeat the purpose of the law

- (2) If the Court finds that the external conditions of jurisdiction of investigation and of command have been satisfied by the inferior Court it will not substitute its own appreciation of evidence or its own judgment thereon⁹
- (3) Where an appeal is provided the Court will not interfere by an peremptory order with the ordinary course of adjudication save in cases wherein a defect of the law and a grave wrong are manifest and are irremediable by the regular procedure
- (4) Where a decree or order of a subordinate Court is declared by the law to be for its own purposes final or conclusive though in its nature provisional as subject to displacement by the decree in another more formal suit the Court will have regard to the intention of the legislature that promptness and certainty should in such cases be in some measure accepted instead of judicial perfection. It will rectify the proceedings of the inferior Court where the extrinsic conditions of its legal activity have plainly been infringed but where the alleged or apparent error consists in a misappreciation of evidence or misconstruction of the law intrinsic to the enquiry and decision it will respect the intended finality and will intervene peremptorily only when it is manifest that by the ordinary and prescribed method an adequate remedy or the intended remedy cannot be had
- (5) The Court will in all cases regard its exercise of the extraordinary jurisdiction as discretionary and subject to considerations of the importance of the particular case or of the principle involved in it of delay on the part of an applicant and of his merits with respect to the case in which the interference is sought
- (6) The Court will sedulously abstain from making any order or refusing to make it on grounds the appreciation of which is exclusively assigned by law to some other authority provided the legal competence be exercised in good faith on matters that may reasonably be understood as within its lawful range

The following are some of the classes of cases in which in accordance with the principles set forth above the High Court will interfere under this Section —

- (1) Where the decision of the lower Court is without jurisdiction or in excess of its jurisdiction¹⁰
- (2) Where the lower Court has failed to do its duty¹¹. Thus where the lower Court has refused to frame a material issue¹² or to add a necessary party¹³ or attach a property¹⁴ or to proceed with an execution sale¹⁵ or to confirm the sale¹⁶ which it is bound to do under law the High Court will interfere. Similarly where the

3 Over all Courts—To attract the operation of this section it must first of all be established that the decision sought to be assailed is that of a Court subject to the appellate jurisdiction of the High Court. This section does not entitle the High Court to rectify executive injustice¹. Thus an order passed by a Magistrate in his executive capacity under S 25 of the Police Act or when dealing with the Press Act 1931 cannot be revised under this Section².

4 Election Courts—A Subordinate Judge refusing to try an election petition under the Madras District Municipalities Act is not acting as a Court but as a persona designata and the High Court cannot set aside such an order though illegal under this section¹. Similarly the High Court has no jurisdiction to revise an order passed by a Presidency Magistrate in an inquiry held under the rules framed under the Madras City Municipal Act III of 1904 as to the competency or otherwise of a candidate for Municipal election². A Municipal Commissioner sitting as an election Court under the U P Municipalities Act II of 1916 is not also a Court subject to the appellate jurisdiction of the High Court within the meaning of this section³.

5 Rent controller—It has been held by the High Court of Calcutta¹ that the Controller and the President in discharging their duties under Ss 15 and 17 respectively of the Calcutta Rent Act 1920 act as Civil Courts and are subject to the appellate and consequently the superintending jurisdiction of the High Court. The High Court of Rangoon² has on the other hand held that the controller under the Rangoon Rent Act 1920 is not acting as a Court and the High Court has no power of superintendence over him. It has further held that the Chief Judge of the Rangoon Small Cause Court when exercising his powers in references under S 18 of the Rangoon Rent Act does not act as a Court but only as a persona designata and is therefore not subject to the appellate or revisional jurisdiction of the High Court under this Section³.

6 Land acquisition proceedings—A Collector refusing to refer a matter to the Court under S 18 of the Land Acquisition Act¹ or making an award under S 11 of that Act² does not act as a Court and is not subject to the appellate jurisdiction of the High Court. The High Court has therefore no power of superintendence in such cases.

It has been held by the High Court of Calcutta in the undermentioned case³ that the Calcutta Improvement Trust Tribunal acting under S 32 of the Land Acquisition Act is a Court subject to the revisional jurisdiction of the High Court under S 115 of the Code of Civil Procedure as also under this Section. The High Court of Bombay⁴ has held that the District Court acting under S 198 of the Bombay City Municipalities Act 1925 and exercising its powers in Land Acquisition proceedings is subject to the appellate and superintending jurisdiction of the High Court.

7 Subject to its appellate jurisdiction—In order that the present section may apply it is essential that the decision sought to be revised should be that of a Court *subject to the appellate jurisdiction of the High Court*¹. The two things necessary to constitute appellate jurisdiction are the existence of the relation of superior and inferior Court and the power on the part of the former to review decisions of the latter². It is not however necessary that the particular decision sought to be set aside under this Section should be appealable to the High Court³. The words 'subject to its appellate jurisdiction' do not mean subject to appellate jurisdiction in that particular matter for revision would not be necessary if appeal lay but

The following have been held to be Courts subject to the appellate jurisdiction of the High Court

- (1) The special Court acting under the Emergency Ordinance 2 of 1932⁵ or the special Magistrate acting under the Bengal Emergency Ordinance 1931.⁶

The following have been held not to be subject to the appellate jurisdiction of the High Court within the meaning of this Section

- (1) The Board of Revenue acting under S 172 of the Madras Estates Land Act¹⁰ or a Revenue Officer when making a settlement of rents under Chapter 11 of that Act.¹⁰
- (2) A Revenue Divisional Officer acting under S 7 of the Madras Hereditary Village Officers Act III of 1895.¹¹
- (3) The Court of a Revenue Divisional Officer in a proceeding for settlement of land rent under S 85 of the Chota Nagpur Tenancy Act, 1908.¹²
- (4) A Judge of the High Court making an order in the exercise of Original Criminal Jurisdiction.¹³

8 Agency Commissioner—A Commissioner acting under the Ganjam and Vizagapatnam Agency Act¹, and the Mewas Agent in the Bombay Presidency² are Courts subject to the appellate jurisdiction of the High Court

9 Commissioner acting under the Defence of India Act—The special tribunals created under the Defence of India Act, 1915 are by the very Act which created them subject to no appellate jurisdiction whatever and the High Court cannot therefore exercise any superintendence under this Section over such Courts.¹

10 Proceedings under the Legal Practitioners Act—Proceedings under S 36 of the Legal Practitioners Act are judicial proceedings of a Court subject to the appellate jurisdiction of the High Court and can be revised under this section where such proceedings are not in conformity with the requirements of S 36.¹ But the mere fact that the order of the District Judge is against the weight of evidence or is erroneous in law cannot afford a ground for interference under this Section.²

The High Court of Lahore³ has held that it can in the exercise of its general powers of superintendence send for the records of a proceeding under S 14 of the Legal Practitioners Act and direct a transfer of the proceedings to another Court. The High Court of Patna has on the other hand, taken a contrary view in the case cited below⁴ and refused to order a transfer.

Where protracted examinations of witnesses were held which were quite irrelevant to the suit it was observed by their Lordships of the Privy Council that it amounted to an abuse which erroneously increased the cost of litigation without any corresponding benefit to the parties and that it was within the powers of the High Court to direct an inquiry with a view to disciplinary action being taken.⁵

11 Criminal proceedings—As has been seen in Note 2, ante the power of superintendence under this Section can be exercised in Civil as well as Criminal proceedings. Thus the High Court can direct a Sessions Judge to rehear an appeal after taking additional evidence, on the ground that there is a failure of duty.¹

The High Court has exercised its powers of superintendence in the following cases:—

- (1) Order dismissing a complaint under S 203, Criminal Procedure Code.²
- (2) Order reviving a complaint after discharge.³
- (3) Order refusing⁴ or granting⁵ sanction to prosecute.
- (4) Order under S 435 of the Criminal Procedure Code.⁶
- (5) Order under S 476 of the Criminal Procedure Code.⁷
- (6) Order of a panchayat Court under Madras Panchayat Courts Act II of 1920.⁸
- (7) Conviction by the Union Bench under the Bengal Village Self Government Act, V of 1919.⁹
- (8) Conviction under the Bengal Emergency Ordinance 1931.¹⁰

Prior to the amendment of the Code of Criminal Procedure in 1921 orders under Ss 143 and 144 thereof and proceedings under Chapter VII (i.e. Ss 145 to 148) were excluded from the revisional jurisdiction of the High Court by virtue of S 435 Cl 3. Consequently the High Courts resorted to their powers under this Section whenever such proceedings were in excess of the jurisdiction of the subordinate Magistrates¹¹ or amounted to an abuse of their powers or resulted in something akin to the denial of the right of fair trial.¹² Under the Amending Act XVIII of 1923, Cl 3 has been omitted in S 435 and the bar to the revisional jurisdiction of the High Court has thus been removed. But still the High Court can exercise its extraordinary powers under this Section as for instance where an order under S 144 amounts to an abuse of the process of law.¹³

12. Power to expunge from record—The High Court has power under this section to delete irrelevant matter in the judgment of the lower Court.¹ Thus where a Magistrate found on a discussion of the evidence that the case for the prosecution was false, and went on to remark that his own impression was that the case was true, the High Court ordered the remark to be expunged from the judgment.²

14. Power of superintendence—It can be exercised by Judge sitting in the Insolvency or Original Side of the High Court—A single Judge of the High Court exercising Insolvency Jurisdiction has no power under this Section to stay insolvency proceedings pending before the District Judge in the mofussil.¹ For such a power see S. 184 of the Presidency Code.²

15. Power to transfer—Cl. (b)—The High Court has power to transfer a case pending on the file of a Court subject to its appellate jurisdiction to any other Court of equal or superior jurisdiction.¹ Thus, the High Court can transfer a case pending on the file of the Agent Commissioner in the Madras Presidency or the Mow agent in the Bombay Presidency, but according to the High Court of Madras² the transfer cannot be made to the District Court as that Court is not of equal or superior jurisdiction but should be made only to the High Court; whereas, according to the High Court of Bombay the transfer can be made to the District Court.³

The High Court can exercise its powers of transfer under this section even where an application has been made to the District Judge under S. 24 of the Code of Civil Procedure and he has refused it.⁴

16. Power to punish contempt of Court's authority.—The Chartered High Courts in India are superior Courts of Record and have the power to punish in a summary manner either the Court of the King's Bench in England.²

Prior to the passing of the Contempt of Courts Act, XII of 1926, there was a conflicting judicial opinion as to whether the High Court had power to punish a contempt not of itself but of the subordinate Courts.

In Governor of Bengal v. Moti Lal, (1 L. R. 41 Cal. 173), the High Court of Calcutta held that the common law jurisdiction of the High Court to punish contempt did not extend to punishing a contempt of the subordinate Court. In re Venkat Rao, (21 Mad L. Jour. 227) the High Court of Madras on the other hand, held that the High Court had power to punish such a contempt under its common law jurisdiction though not under S 15 of the Charter Act. In Emperor v. Balkrishna (1922 Bom 52), the High Court of Bombay held that where a certain publication in connection with the proceedings of a subordinate Court had the effect of impeding the administration of justice it amounted to a contempt of the High Court and that it could punish such contempt under its superintending powers under this section. The High Court of Allahabad has also held that it has, as a Court of Record, jurisdiction to punish acts of contempt committed against Courts subordinate to itself.^{2a} The conflict has now been set at rest by the aforementioned Act XII of 1926 which empowers the High Court specifically to punish a contempt of the subordinate Court where such contempt does not amount to an offence punishable under the Indian Penal Code.³ The Act besides defining and fixing a limit as to the punishment to be imposed in such cases, also empowers the Chief Courts (which do not possess any common law powers of the Court of the King's Bench in England as the High Courts do) to punish a contempt of its authority. The Act does not, however, apply to the Judicial Commissioner's Court of Nagpur and the latter cannot therefore punish a contempt of its subordinate Courts.⁴ See also the cases cited below.⁵

Any act or writing tending to undermine the authority of Courts of justice or to influence the result of pending litigation is a serious contempt of Court.⁶ It is however not necessary that the contempt must be in respect of a case that is pending or which has been heard.⁷

17 Power to issue writ of certiorari—"The writ of certiorari is the process by which the King's Bench Division in the exercise of its superintending power over inferior jurisdictions requires the Judge or such officers of such jurisdictions to certify or send proceedings before them into the King's Bench Division whether for the purpose of examining into the legality of such proceedings or for giving fuller or more satisfactory effect to them than could be done by the Court below.¹ The jurisdiction of the High Courts in India to issue such writs, is already noticed in Note 2, ante, is derived from the Supreme Courts which had and exercised the jurisdiction and powers of the Court of the King's Bench in England. Being a power derived from the English common law, the High Courts in India should be guided by the principles laid down by the English authorities as regards the scope and limitations of their jurisdiction to issue such writs.² Such jurisdiction is original jurisdiction, but extends over all inferior tribunals amenable to its authority.³ It, however, applies to the judicial acts and not to the ministerial acts of such tribunals.⁴ The term "judicial" does not mean only acts of Judges or legal tribunals.

The issue of the writ of certiorari is in the exercise of the discretion of the High Court and the High Court will decline to exercise it in favour of an applicant who "armed with a point either of law or of fact which would oust the jurisdiction of the lower Court has elected to argue a case on its merits before that Court."⁷

But this does not enable the High Court to make a rule which is in contravention of the provisions contained in the Letters Patent. Such a rule if made is *ultra vires*¹. Where rules are made delegating powers to the various Judges, the jurisdiction of the latter is fixed and limited by such rules and any order made by a Judge or Judges in excess of this authority would be void as being without jurisdiction².

APPENDIX III.

DESPATCH FROM THE SECRETARY OF STATE.

SIR CHARLES WOODS DESPATCH ACCOMPANYING FIRST
LETTERS PATENT OR CHARTER

Judicial No 74

INDIA OFFICE
London 14th May 1862

To

MY LORD

I Herewith transmit to you the Letters Patent or Charter¹ under the Royal Sign Manual for the High Court of Judicature to be established in Bengal in accordance with the provision of the Act 24 and 25 Victoria Chapter 104 for establishing High Court of Judicature in India and request that you will take immediate measure for instituting the Court the first Judges of which including those appointed under the 3rd section of the Act are designated in the second clause of the Charter. Those appointed by the Crown will be severally informed by me of their appointments to the Court.

2 This Charter will accomplish the great object which has so long been contemplated of substituting for the Supreme and Sudder Courts abolished by the Act of High Court of Judicature possessing the combined powers and authorities of the abolished Courts and exercising jurisdiction both over the Provinces under the Sudder Court and over the Presidency Town which forms the local jurisdiction of the Supreme Court.

3 Before I review the provisions in detail it is necessary that I should direct your attention to the general scope and main provisions of the Act in question.

4 It abolishes in the first place (as soon as the Charter shall issue) the Supreme Court and the Court of Sudder Dewany Adawlut. It vests in the High Court (by the last provision of Section 2) the powers and authorities of those Courts respectively except so far as the Crown may by such Charter otherwise direct. And (by the first part of the same section) it invests the High Court with such Civil Criminal Admiralty Vice Admiralty, Testamentary, Interstate and Matrimonial Jurisdiction and all such powers and authority in relation to the administration of justice in the Presidency as the same Charter may confer. With respect, therefore to the fusion of the Supreme and Sudder Courts it appears obvious that the Act itself seeks and that to assume and effect the same purpose by affirmative declaration in the Charter would be superfluous. It has been consequently deemed unnecessary that the Charter should exhibit on the face of it an explicit statement of the powers and jurisdiction to be possessed by the new Court in consequence of the fusion as would have been the proper course if these powers and jurisdiction had been entirely new. Recourse has been had in some places in lieu of such explicit statement to reference to statutory provisions and in others to the Charter of the Supreme Court when the object of clearness appeared to require it. But wherever the Charter does not otherwise specify the High Court will use the powers and administer the jurisdiction appertaining to those Courts respectively to whose authority it now succeeds.

5 But the Charter is intended positively to declare all such Civil, Criminal and other jurisdictions above specified as the Crown thinks proper by this Charter to confer on it supplementary or additional to its main purpose namely, the fusion of the aforesaid Courts.

6 Moreover the words giving authority to confer on the Court such jurisdiction and such powers and authorities for the administration of justice as the Crown may direct appear very large and such as, in point of fact invest the Crown with extensive legislative powers, so far as "the administration of justice," within the meaning of the sections, may require. It has been, however, thought best to use this power very sparingly and simply as ancillary to the real purpose of the Act, namely, the establishment of new Courts.

7 Another reason for the form which the present Letters Patent assume is to be found in the provisions of S 17 of the Act of last Sessions. By that section power is given to the Crown to recall the Letters Patent establishing the Court at any time within three years after its establishment, and to grant other Letters Patent in their stead. This provision was inserted in the Act mainly with the view of enabling Her Majesty's Government to avail themselves of the advice and assistance of the Judges of the Court in framing the more perfect Charter by which the jurisdiction and authority of the Court is to be permanently fixed. On this point, I request you will put yourselves in communication with the Judges of the Court, and, at any time previous to the expiration of two years from the date of establishment of the Court, furnish me with any suggestions they make or any amendments they may propose in the Letters Patent now transmitted, and I shall be glad if in proposing alterations the Judges will put their recommendations as nearly as possible in the form in which they wish them to appear in the future Letters Patent.

8 I proceed to notice, in order, such of the provisions of the Charter as appear to me to call for special remark.

9 By clause 6, power is given to the Chief Justice to appoint the officers of the Court and to fix their salaries subject however, in both cases to the approval and confirmation of the Governor General in Council.

This provision does not refer to the setting of tables of fees where fees are allowed, which under S 15 of the Act, is required to be done by the Court.

10 The Supreme Court exercises an authority entirely independent of the Government in regard to its ministerial officers. The Government, however, has always considered itelf at liberty to receive representations from any of the officers of the Sudder or Subordinate Courts who felt themselves aggrieved by the orders of the Judicial Authorities, and to express its opinion on the propriety or otherwise of the proceedings of the Courts in such cases. It will be expedient for you to take the question into your consideration, and, after communication with the Court, to adopt some rule in regard to it which of course must be uniformly applicable to all the officers of the Court. Constitute all the confidence you can repose in it, but as a q

proceedings alleged by the applicants to be unjust and oppressive.

11 In regard to the admission of Advocates, Vakeels, and Attorneys the recommendations of the Law Commissioners have been followed. Under the existing practice, the Advocate pleads, and the Attorney acts, for the suitors of the Supreme Court and the Vakeel both pleads and acts for the suitors of the Sudder Court, of which Court the Advocate and Attorney of the Supreme Court are ex officio Vakeels. These terms are employed in the Charter simply to express the functions of these several classes of practitioners. The Advocate and Attorney will respectively plead and act in the High Court and the Vakeel will both plead and act in the High Court as he did in the Sudder Court. Any person may apply to be admitted either as an Advocate, or Vakeel or Attorney under the Rules which the Court is authorized by the Charter to make and there is nothing in the Charter to prevent the admission of Advocates and Attorneys to be also Vakeels of the High Court, should the Judges consider such a course to be expedient.

12 The provisions in the Act S 2 Cl 4, which declares that Pleader of the Sudder Court, "who shall have been admitted as Pleaders of the High Court," shall be eligible under certain conditions, to the Bench of the Court, implies that a discretionary power may be exercised as to the admission of the present Pleaders of the Sudder Court to the Bar of the High Court. This enactment will account to you for the omission from the Charter of any provision appointing all the present practitioners of the Supreme and Sudder Courts to the High Court. I conclude, however, that unless in any special cases, there are strong reasons to the contrary, the Court will admit the whole of the practitioners in the abolished Courts at the date of their abolition, to be the first Advocates, Vakeels, and Attorneys of the High Court.

13 With reference to the concluding sentence of Clause 10 it is to be observed that the Letters Patent contain no provision reserving to the Attorneys of the present Supreme Court the right of pleading after the issue of this Charter in the Insolvent Court as newly regulated by Clause 17. No such provision, however is necessary as the Insolvent Court is a separate tribunal not affected by the Act authorising the Letters Patent and will continue a separate Court though for the future presided over by a Judge of the High Court. The Attorneys therefore will as heretofore practise in accordance with the rules of the Insolvent Court itself.

14 As to the important provisions contained in the clauses of the Charter 11 to 33 inclusive it is given to the 9th section of the Act respecting the jurisdictions and powers to be exercised by the High Court.

15 The civil and criminal jurisdiction now exercised by the Supreme Court within the limits of the Presidency Town will henceforth be exercised under the Charter by the High Court including in that term (Clause 36 of the Charter) a Judge or Division Court of the High Court appointed or constituted under the provisions of the 13th section of the Act.

16 As it is very desirable that every suit should be instituted in the Court of the district in which the property forming the subject of dispute is situated or in which the cause of action has its origin or in which the defendant resides or carries on business the jurisdiction hitherto exercised by the Supreme Court (on the ground of constructive inhabitation or otherwise) over persons and property beyond the local limits of the Presidency Town but within the limits of the Presidency or Division subject to the authority of the High Court has not been vested in the High Court. The concluding provision of Cl. 11 provides that the exercise of the ordinary original civil jurisdiction of the Court shall be confined to the local limits of the Presidency Town with power however to the Court under Clause 13 to call for and try any suit instituted in any Court subject to its superintendence when for reasons to be recorded it shall think proper to do so.

17 The terms of Clause 12 defining the original jurisdiction of the High Court as to suits are nearly similar to those employed in S. 5 of the Code of Civil Procedure (Act VIII of 1859) and are intended to include every description of case over which the Mofussil Courts have jurisdiction. By the 5th section of the 21st George III C. 70 the Supreme Court is precluded from exercising any jurisdiction in any matter concerning the revenue. Further a decision of the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council pronounced in April 1856 ruled against the exercise of the Ecclesiastical jurisdiction of the Supreme Court in matters matrimonial between others than Christians and even expressed some hesitation as to whether that Court should administer a remedy in such cases on the Civil side. It is one object of the present Charter to do away with all such restrictions and limitations as far as this can be done without trenching on the proper province of legislation. It has therefore been sought to invest the High Court in the exercise of its original civil jurisdiction with as ample powers in receiving and determining cases of every description and in applying a remedy to every wrong as are exercised by the Courts not established by Royal Charter and thus to place the Courts of first instance in the Presidency Towns and in the interior of the country in this respect as nearly as may be on the same footing.

18 I shall be glad to be furnished with your opinion after consultation with the Judges of the Courts as to the concluding portion of Clause 12 excluding the jurisdiction of the Court in regard to cases falling within the jurisdiction of the Small Cause Court of Calcutta in which the debt or damage or value of the property sued for does not exceed 100 Rupees. Hitherto I believe there has been no tendency to bring into the Supreme Court cases cognizable by the Small Cause Court but should it appear that under the new system the time of the High Court is unnecessarily taken up with trying cases which might be instituted in the Small Cause Court it may become a question for consideration whether the sum excluding the jurisdiction of the High Court might not be raised to say 300 or 500 Rupees.

It will be placed on the same
Court of appeal and general the Act of Parliament of last Session that the Crown, in framing a Charter under it for the High Court, should interfere with the present position and jurisdiction of other and independent Courts. This subject, if desirable is properly to be attained on that the Small Cause Court ought to be placed as any other Court subject to its appellate jurisdiction and carried into effect by an Act of the Governor General in Council.

20 As already observed the effect of Clause 12 will be to confine the ordinary original civil jurisdiction of the High Court within narrower limits than the Civil jurisdiction exercised by the Supreme Court. By Clause 13, however, the High Court is empowered to call for and to try as a Court of first instance any suit which the law requires to be instituted before some other tribunal. By the exercise of the power thus conferred on it the High Court will be enabled to obviate all reasonable grounds of complaint, when it shall deem that any hardship or injustice is likely to result from the compulsory institution in a Zillah Court of a suit which but for the change in the system might have been instituted in the Supreme Court.

21 The introduction of the words whether within or without the Bengal Division of the Presidency of Fort William in this and in several other clauses, may appear to require explanation. The Court about to be established is called in S 2 of the Act 21 and 25 Victoria C 101 a Court for the Bengal Division of the Presidency of Fort William. That title is of course preserved in the Charter. By S 8 the Supreme and Sudder Courts are abolished and by S 9 all their jurisdiction power, and authority except when otherwise provided are vested in the High Court. But the Supreme Court has various original jurisdictions extending over the whole of the Presidency of Fort William, and also over some of the Non Regulation Provinces under the Government of India and the Sudder Court has various appellate jurisdictions extending over the Bengal Division of the Presidency and also over the Province of Assam and others which are not properly parts of the Presidency. The result is that the High Court for the Bengal Division succeeding to the powers of both the Supreme and the Sudder Courts has in several respects jurisdictions in territories not within the Bengal Division. As this is the result of the Act it might not have been necessary to notice it in the Charter. But for the sake of clearness and in order to show distinctly that the Charter is meant to apply to these extra local jurisdictions as well as to the strictly local jurisdiction within the Bengal Division it has been deemed advisable to introduce these words.

22 Clauses 14 and 15 give effect to the recommendation of the Law Commissioners that the High Court shall have all the appellate jurisdiction which is now exercised by the Sudder Dewany Adawlut, and a new appellate jurisdiction in civil cases from the Courts of original jurisdiction constituted by one or more of its own Judges, except that in the case of a decision which has been passed by a majority of the full number of the Judges of the Court, the appeal shall lie to Her Majesty in Council.

23 It will appear from a subsequent clause on the Letters Patent that the proceedings in the High Court in civil cases are to be regulated by the Code of Civil Procedure enacted by the Legislature of India of which Act XXII of 1861 forms a part. By S 23 of the last mentioned Indian Act provision has been made for a difference of opinion on the hearing of an appeal, constituting a Division Court for judges, to differ as to the judgment to be given adapted to Courts of first instance. To call in a third Judge and to re-try may be an appeal to the High Court and expense to the parties, and I am of opinion that the Court should make provision for such a contingency, by a rule made under the 13th section of the Act of Parliament, providing either that the judgment shall be in accordance with the opinion of the senior of the Judges constituting the Division Court, or that the final judgment shall be entered pro forma, according to such opinion such judgment being a judgment for the purpose of an appeal against the same, but not for any other purpose.

24 The substantive civil law to be administered by the High Court within the jurisdiction of the Supreme and Sudder Courts, respectively, will, until otherwise provided, continue as at present. This, as I have said, it was no part of the purpose of the Act of Parliament or Charter to effect. And the clauses on which I am now commenting are probably superfluous. But they have been introduced to obviate any apprehension which might have been entertained that in fusing the two Courts together it was intended to fuse also the law which they have respectively hitherto administered, and thus to make a substantial innovation not only in the tribunals for administration of the law but in the law itself. I trust however that measures may be taken ere long for effecting great improvements in this respect by enacting for the British possessions in India a body of substantive law by which all classes shall be governed and all transactions shall be regulated except in cases to which our Judicatures are required to apply the personal laws of any classes of our Indian subjects.

25 Under Clauses 21, 22 and 23 no change will be effected by the Charter in the administration of criminal justice in the Presidency Town or in respect of persons subject to its criminal jurisdiction residing in the interior of the country. It appears however to Her Majesty's Government that a modification of the existing practice both at the capital and in the provinces is necessary and on these points I shall address you in a separate despatch.

26 The Sudder Court exercises no original jurisdiction but by Clause 23 its authority has been enlarged so as to enable it to try cases out of the Presidency Town at which from their importance or for other specific cause it may be expedient that a Judge or Judges of the High Court should preside.

27 The remaining clauses of the Letters Patent on the subject of the criminal jurisdiction of the High Court do not call for any particular notice. They contain no special provisions respecting the transfer to that Court of the criminal jurisdiction exercised by the Supreme Court over inhabitants of such parts of India as are not comprised within the local limits of the Letters Patent that having been fully provided for by Section 10 of the Act under the authority of which the High Court is established.

28 As in the case of the Small Cause Court you will consult the Judges in regard to the relation in which the High Court is to stand to the Magistrates of Calcutta.

29 Clause 30 respecting the exercise of the jurisdiction by the High Court elsewhere than at its ordinary place of sitting is a very important provision and one which I have no doubt if judiciously carried into effect will materially tend to the greater efficiency of all the judicatures subject to the superintendence and authority of the High Court. Circumstances may frequently arise when the deputation of a Judge or Judges of the High Court would be a measure of the highest expediency. For such cases the Clause under consideration will enable the Government to provide by deputing one or more Judges from the High Court who would avail themselves of the opportunity thus afforded them of making a searching inquiry into the manner in which the local Courts were performing their duties.

30 With reference to this clause it has been considered whether the precedence of Section 14 of the Act of Parliament should not be followed and the authority to make the necessary arrangements for exercise of the Courts jurisdiction out of the usual place of sitting vested in the Chief Justice. On the whole it was thought that acts partaking so much of an administrative character might be more perfectly performed by the Governor-General in Council. But it is scarcely necessary for me to add that Her Majesty's Government entertain full confidence that the Chief Justice will be the authority habitually consulted in the matter.

31 The Supreme Court exercises at present Admiralty Jurisdiction under its Charter. The Chief Justice has Vice Admiralty Jurisdiction under the commission of the 19th July 1822 and all or any of the Judges of the Supreme Court may be appointed Commissioners under the provisions of 39 and 40 George III. C. 79 S. 25 for the trial and adjudication of prize causes and other maritime questions arising in India. By the present Charter the whole of these jurisdictions and power will be vested in the High Court and as in the Act above cited by the expression 'other maritime questions' in general mention is made of all the jurisdictions conferred as above mentioned in the clauses of the Charter, providing both for the civil and criminal maritime jurisdiction of the High Court.

Clauses 33 and 34

32 The clauses respecting testamentary and intestate jurisdiction do not call for any remark

33 Her Majesty's Government are desirous of placing the Christian subjects of the Crown within the Presidency in the same position under the High Court as to matters matrimonial in general as they

Clause 30 now are under the Supreme Court, and thus they believe to be effected by Cl 35 of the Charter. But they consider it expedient that the High Court should possess in addition the power of decreeing divorce which the Supreme Court does not possess, in other words that the High Court should have the same jurisdiction as the Court for Divorce and Matrimonial Causes in England, established in virtue of 20 and 21 Vic, C 85, and in regard to which further provisions were made by 22 and 23 Vic, C 61, and 23 and 24 Vic C 144. The Act of Parliament for establishing the High Court however does not purport to give to the Crown the power of importing into the Charter all the provisions of the Divorce Court Act and some of them the Crown clearly could not so import such for instance as those which prescribe the period of re marriage or those which exempt from punishment clergymen refusing to re marry adulterers. All these are, in truth, matters for Indian legislation and I request that you will immediately take the subject into your consideration and introduce into your Council a Bill for conferring upon the High Court the jurisdiction and powers of the Divorce Court in England one of the provisions of which should be to give an appeal to the Privy Council in those cases in which the Divorce Court Act gives an appeal to the House of Lords

34 The object of the proviso at the end of Cl 35 is to obviate any doubt that may possibly arise as to whether, by vesting the High Court with the powers of the Court for Divorce and Matrimonial Causes in England it was intended to take away from the Courts within the divisions of the Presidency not established by Royal Charter any jurisdiction which they might have in matters Matrimonial as for instance in a suit for alimony between Armenians or Native Christians. With any such jurisdiction it is not intended to interfere

35 Clause 36 refers to the powers of single Judges and Division Courts appointed or constituted under the provisions of the 13th section of the Act

Clause 36 By S 14 of the Act the power of determining from time to time what Judge in each case shall sit alone and what Judges shall constitute Division Courts is placed in the hands of the Chief Justice. It will be observed that the law does not require that a Judge selected from the Bar shall necessarily form a part of every Division Court, and it will be for the Chief Justice to consider whether in cases exclusively between Natives, it will not be desirable to follow, as far as possible, the course which has already been resolved upon in regard to the cases under appeal to the Sudder Court at the time of its abolition, and to constitute the Division Court of Judges trained in the country, whose knowledge of the Native language will obviate the expense and delay of translating the proceedings

36 Clause 37 is a very important one and there is little doubt, will prove a very salutary provision. It has therefore, been inserted although the change introduced is somewhat greater and more substantial than is generally aimed at in this Charter. It extends to the High Court the Code of Civil Procedure enacted by the Legislature of India for the Court not since the date of its establishment

37 In regard to the rules respecting appeals to the Privy Council the object has been to avoid unnecessary innovation where so much of change, with its necessary inconvenience is unavoidable. The existing rules which regulate these appeals are, therefore left in force with one or two additions only, which experience in the Court of the Judicial Committee has found advisable. For instance Cl 40 is introduced, as it had been commonly introduced, of late years in the appeal rules of other dependencies of Great Britain in order to remove all doubts as to the power of the High Court to allow an appeal to the Council from interlocutory judgments.

38 It will, however be obvious to you that the Rules, as now framed, will be liable to the reproach of confusion and perhaps of uncertainty. They will be compounded of those contained in the Charter and those already in force which will necessitate reference to several documents. You will agree with me that a simple and intelligible Code of Rules, to regulate appeals to the Privy Council from the new High Courts or rather from the High Courts in general which may be constituted under the Act of Parliament will be of great advantage to the Courts and the public. I should wish therefore that one of the first objects of the Judges, as soon as the amount of labour thrown on them by their new position may allow it might be to prepare suggestions for such a Code of Rule which might then be reduced into a complete shape by the authority of the Privy Council at Home.

39 In forwarding the Letters Patent to the Judges of the High Court you are requested to furnish them with a copy of this despatch. I trust that the Letters Patent taken in connection with the Act for establishing the Court will be found to contain everything requisite for enabling the Court to proceed at once to the discharge of its important duties. It is possible that omissions may be discovered by the legal authorities in India which may impede the proper action of the Courts and should the Judges represent to you that such is the case you will take immediate steps for supplying what is wanting by such legislative measures as you may consider most expedient for remedying the defect brought under your consideration.

40 I cannot conclude this despatch without expressing the deep interest felt by Her Majesty's Government in the success of this important measure. The Crown by its Letters Patent has sanctioned the establishment of a tribunal as the Chief Court of Justice in India, which in the trained learning of the Judges selected from the Bar and in the knowledge of the language, feelings, and habits of the Natives of that country possessed by the other members of the Court combine the most material elements of success. And Her Majesty's Government look with confidence to the zealous exertion and cordial co-operation of the Judges to place the administration of Justice in India under the controlling authority of the Court in such a state of efficiency as will render it in every respect adequate to its end and satisfaction to the people and to the Government.

I have the honour to be

My Lord

Your Lordship's most obedient humble Servant,

(Signed) C. WOOD

LETTERS PATENT [CALCUTTA, MADRAS AND BOMBAY.]

[NB—As the Letters Patent for Calcutta, Madras and Bombay are all in very similar terms, the Letters Patent Calcutta, is given as the main one and the differences in the wording of the other two Letters Patents are indicated within square brackets]

For the High Court of Judicature for the Presidency of Calcutta

Victoria, by the Grace of God, of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, Queen, Defender of the Faith To all to whom these presents shall come, Greeting Whereas by an Act of Parliament passed in the twenty fourth and twenty fifth years of Our Reign, entitled "An Act for establishing High Courts of Judicature in India" It was, amongst other things, enacted that it should be lawful for Her Majesty, by Letters Patent under the Great Seal of the United Kingdom, to erect and establish a High Court of Judicature [at Madras, for the presidency of Madras aforesaid] at Fort William in Bengal, for the Bengal division of the Presidency of Fort William aforesaid [at Bombay for the Presidency of Bombay aforesaid] and that such High Court should consist of a Chief Justice and as many Judges, not exceeding Fifteen, as Her Majesty might, from time to time think fit to appoint, who shall be selected from among persons qualified as in the said Act is declared Provided always that the persons who at the time of the establishment of such High Court were Judges of the Supreme Court of Judicature and permanent Judges of the Court of Sudder Dewany Adawlut or Sudder Adawlut of the same Presidency, should be and become Judges of such High Court, without further appointment for that purpose, and the Chief Justice of such Supreme Court should become the Chief Justice of such High Court, and that upon the establishment of such High Court as aforesaid, the Supreme Court and the Court of Sudder Dewany Adawlut and Sudder Nizamat Adawlut at [Madras], Calcutta [Bombay] in the said Presidency should be abolished

And that the High Court of Judicature so to be established should have and exercise all such civil, criminal, admiralty and vice admiralty, testamentary intestate and matrimonial jurisdiction, original and appellate, and all such powers and authority for, and in relation to the administration of justice in the said Presidency as Her Majesty might, by such Letters Patent as aforesaid, grant and, direct, subject, however, to such directions and limitations as to the exercise of original, civil and criminal jurisdictions beyond the limits of the Presidency town, as might be prescribed thereby, and, save as by such Letters Patent, might be otherwise directed, and subject and without prejudice to the legislative powers in relation to the matters aforesaid of the Governor General of India in Council, the High Court so to be established should have and exercise all jurisdiction, and every power and authority whatsoever, in any manner vested in any of the Courts in the same Presidency abolished under the said Act at the time of the abolition of such last mentioned Courts

And whereas We did, upon full consideration of the premises, think fit to erect and establish, and by Our Letters Patent under the Great Seal of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland bearing date at Westminster, the twenty sixth day of June in the Twenty-fifth Year of Our Reign, in the Year of Our Lord, One thousand eight hundred and sixty-two, did accordingly, for Us, Our heirs and successors, erect and establish [at Madras, for the Presidency of Madras aforesaid, a High Court of Judicature, which should be called the High Court of Judicature at Madras] at Fort William in Bengal for the

Bengal Division of the Presidency of Fort William aforesaid, a High Court of Judicature which should be called the High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal [at Bombay, for the Presidency of Bombay aforesaid, a High Court of Judicature which should be called the High Court of Judicature at Bombay] and did thereby constitute the said Court to be a Court of Record: and whereas We did thereby appoint and ordain that the said High Court of Judicature at [Madras] Fort William in Bengal [Bombay] should, until further or other provision should be made by Us, or Our heirs and successors on that behalf, in accordance with the recited Act, consist of a Chief Justice and five Judges, and did thereby constitute and appoint certain persons, being respectively qualified as in the said Act is declared, to be Judges of the said High Court:

And whereas by the said recited Act it is declared lawful for Her Majesty, at any time within three years after the establishment of the said High Court, by Her Letters Patent, to revoke all of such parts or provisions as Her Majesty might think fit of the Letters Patent by which such Court was established, and to grant and make such other powers and provisions as Her Majesty might think fit, and as might have been granted or made by such first Letters Patent:

And whereas by the Act of the twenty-eighth year of Our Reign, chapter fifteen, entitled 'An Act to extend the term for granting fresh Letters Patent for the High Courts in India, and to make further provision respecting the territorial jurisdiction of the said Courts,' the time for issuing fresh Letters Patent has been extended to the first of January, One thousand eight hundred and sixty-six

And whereas, in order to make further provision respecting the constitution of the said High Court, and the administration of justice thereby, it is expedient that the said Letters Patent, dated the twenty-sixth of June, One thousand eight hundred and sixty-two, should be revoked, and that some of the powers and provisions thereby granted and made should be granted and made with amendments and additional powers and provisions by fresh Letters Patent

1. Now know ye that We, upon full consideration of the premises and of Our special grace, certain knowledge, and mere motion
Revocation of Letters Patent of 1862

1 Bar Councils Act—Clauses 9 and 10 and the rules made thereunder should be read as subject to the provisions of the Indian Bar Councils Act XXV III of 1926 to the extent to which such provisions have come into force with reference to any High Court. See S 19 (2) of the Act. Thus it has been held that Rr 128 and 129 of the Insolvency Rules of the Madras High Court made under the Letters Patent which precluded advocates from acting as distinguished from pleading on the Insolvency side of the High Court are no longer in force as they are repugnant to the provisions of the Bar Councils Act¹. Similarly a complaint of misconduct against an advocate must first be referred to the Bar Council for inquiry².

2 Authority of advocates vakils and attorneys—The authorities of advocates vakils and attorneys to practise in the High Court is subject to the rules and directions made by the High Court under Cl 9 in so far as such rules and directions are not repugnant to the provisions of the Bar Councils Act of 1926¹. The following cases² are illustrative of the rules which the High Court is empowered to make under Cl 9.

3 Disciplinary jurisdiction of High Court over advocates attorneys and vakils—The High Court has power under Cl 10 to remove or suspend from practice on reasonable cause any advocate vakil or attorney practising before it. Under the provisions of the Bar Councils Act of 1926 a complaint of misconduct against an advocate must first be referred to the Bar Council for inquiry¹. It is not necessary under Cl 10 that cases of professional misconduct must be dealt with only by the full Court consisting of all the Judges of the High Court for the time being and it is competent to a Bench of Three Judges to dispose of such cases². In proceedings under Cl 10 the High Court exercises a special jurisdiction and that inherent power to apply such rules of procedure as may ensure a fair trial³. The proceedings are not of a criminal nature and the rules of procedure applicable to a criminal trial such as the filing of a written statement by the accused are not applicable to them⁴. Nor are such proceedings in the nature of civil suits and the provisions of the Civil Procedure Code do not apply to them⁵.

Though it is not incompetent for the High Court to deal under Cl 10 with charges of a criminal nature against a practitioner unless and until they have been investigated by a criminal Court it is eminently fitting that in such cases the criminal prosecution should precede any disciplinary action under Cl 10⁶.

An order of disbarment is not necessarily final or conclusive for all time and it is open to the Court to readmit a practitioner after a lapse of time if it is satisfied that he has in the interval conducted himself honourably and that the sentence of exclusion has had the salutary effect of awakening in him a higher sense of honour and duty⁷.

Where proceedings are taken against a practitioner under Cl 10 on the ground of his having been convicted of a criminal offence the propriety of the conviction cannot be questioned in such proceedings but the practitioner can show that the degree of his culpability was not such as to make him an unfit person to be a member of the profession ⁵

An offence committed by an advocate prior to his enrolment may be reasonable cause for his removal or suspension from practice if the offence implies a permanent defect of character of a disqualifying kind ⁶

5 Recognised agent—The last portion of Cl 10 provides that no person other than an advocate, vakil or attorney can act or plead on behalf of a suitor excepting that a suitor can plead or act on behalf of himself or co-sutor. Thus a recognised agent of a party cannot present an appeal to the High Court ¹. It has however been held in the case cited below that an application by a purdanashin lady for leave to appear in forma pauperis can in view of Ss 182 and 183 of the Code be presented by her recognised agent ²

Civil jurisdiction of the High Court

11 And We do hereby ordain that the said High Court of Judicature at [Madras] [Bombay], Fort William in Bengal shall have and exercise ordinary original civil jurisdiction within such local limits as may from time to time be declared and prescribed by any law made by competent legislative authority for India and until some local limits shall be so declared and prescribed within the limit declared and prescribed by the proclamation fixing the limits of Calcutta issued by the Governor General in Council on the 10th day of September in the year of Our Lord One thousand seven hundred and ninety four and the ordinary original civil jurisdiction of the said High Court shall not extend beyond the limits for the time being declared and prescribed as the local limits of such jurisdiction

1 Local Limits—The local limits of the original civil jurisdiction of the High Courts of Bombay and Madras are to be declared and prescribed by the Governor in Council of the respective provinces whereas in regard to the Calcutta High Court the power is in the competent Legislative Authority for India. A High Court cannot exercise its ordinary original civil jurisdiction beyond the local limits so prescribed except in so far as provided in Cl 44 of the Letters Patent read with S 100 of the Government of India Act 1915. Thus the Indian Legislature can confer on a High Court jurisdiction in any particular suit or class of suits arising outside the local limits prescribed under this clause ¹

2 Issue of process outside jurisdiction—A warrant of arrest issued by a High Court on the Original Civil side authorising the bailiff to execute it against the judgment debtor wherever he may be found in the Presidency is according to the High Court of Madras without jurisdiction¹. Similarly a writ of fiats facias issued outside the local limits of the original jurisdiction of a High Court is illegal². According to the High Court of Bombay in order for execution of a decree passed by it anywhere within the Presidency is not *ultra vires*³. High Court has power to issue any process against a person guilty of contempt of Court to be executed outside such local limits⁴ as proceedings in contempt do not fall within the Civil jurisdiction of the High Court⁵.

3 Power to transfer or stay suit in the moffussil—It has been held by the High Court of Bombay that a single Judge sitting on the original side cannot stay a suit pending before a subordinate Judge in the moffussil except under rules so enabling¹.

12 And We do further ordain that the said High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal [Madras] in the exercise of its ordinary original civil jurisdiction shall be empowered to receive try and determine suits of every description if in the case of suits for land or other immovable property such land or property shall be situated or in all other cases if the cause of action shall have arisen either wholly or in part within the local limits of the ordinary original jurisdiction of the said High Court or if the defendant at the time of the commencement of the suit shall dwell or carry on business, or personally work for gain within such limits except that the said High Court shall not have such original jurisdiction in cases falling within the jurisdiction of the Small Cause Court at [Madras,] [Bombay, Calcutta, in which the debt or damage or value of the property sued for does not exceed one hundred rupees]

1 Scope of the Clause—Clause 11 defines the territorial limits of the ordinary civil jurisdiction of the High Court while this Clause prescribes the classes of suits and conditions under which they are triable by the High Courts.

Classes of Suits—Suits of every description may be instituted on the original side of the High Court except suits of the value of one hundred rupees falling within the jurisdiction of the Small Cause Court.

Conditions—In suits for land or other immovable property the property should be situated within the ordinary original civil jurisdiction of the High Court. See Notes 3 to 5 below. Suits not being for land or other immovable property may be instituted in the High Court if the cause of action wholly arises within the local limits of the original jurisdiction or on business within such limits¹. But if it is for land or other immovable property and the cause of action wholly arises within the local limits, the leave of the Court is necessary.

A proceeding commenced by taking out an originating summons in the High Court is a "Suit" within the meaning of this Clause^{1a}.

The restrictive provisions of this Clause do not control Cl 18 below². Nor do they apply to a defendant where, therefore, in a suit on a mortgage, a subsequent mortgagee of immovable property part of which is outside jurisdiction is impleaded as a defendant and he claims to have such property brought to sale, the Court held that he could do so on the ground that the restrictions in Clause 12 apply only to a plaintiff³.

2 Ordinary jurisdiction—The expression 'ordinary jurisdiction' embraces all such as is exercised in the ordinary course of law and without any special step being necessary to assume it, and it is opposed to 'extraordinary jurisdiction,' which the Court may assume at its discretion upon special occasions and by special orders¹. A judgment entered up by the High Court under S 86 of the old Indian Insolvency Act (11 & 12 Vict., O 21) is "not by way of special or discretionary action, but in the ordinary course of the duty cast upon it by law, according to which every other case of the same kind would be dealt with"². Matters falling under Clauses 12, 17 and 18 would thus appear to be within the ordinary jurisdiction of the High Court.

3 Suit for land or other immovable property—On a review of the judicial decisions in India under this Clause, it cannot be said that the term 'Suit for land or other immovable property' has been satisfactorily defined. The only possible definition is that given in *Vallappa Chetty v. Saha Goind Doss*¹. It is a reference to the various classes or to be suits for land or other immovable property or not.

THE CALCUTTA HIGH COURT

The effect of the decisions of the Calcutta High Court bearing on the construction of the term 'suit for land' may be stated as follows—

Suits for the establishment of title to land² or for possession of land³ or claiming any interest in land, such as a mortgage interest⁴ are suits for land.

In suits for reliefs other than those enumerated above it has been fairly uniformly held that a suit is for land or other immovable property if the title to or possession of immovable property is directly and substantially affected. The guiding principle has been stated by Page, J., in *Goculdas v Chajmal*⁵ and in *Provas Chandra v Ashutosh*⁶ to be to see whether, having regard to directly the proprietary or to fact that land has something, falling under this group the question therefore mainly turns on the view of the Court in each case as to whether title or possession is directly and substantially affected by the suit.

These cases may be divided into the following classes —

- (a) Suit for a share in the sale proceeds of immovable property—In Goculdas v Chajmal referred to above the plaintiffs claimed their share of the sale proceeds of a joint family house wrongfully sold by the defendants. The defence was inter alia that the plaintiffs had no title to the house. Page J held that no issue arose in the case that could affect the title to the premises sold as the title of the purchaser was not challenged nor the sale sought to be set aside. Both the plaintiffs and defendants approbated the sale and only claimed their share in the proceeds. The dispute did not therefore affect the title to the house but the real question was whether the plaintiffs were members of a Joint Hindu Family at material times.
- (b) Suits relating to trust property—Where the suit is only for the enforcement of a trust in accordance with the terms of the trust deed and no beneficial interest is claimed for the plaintiff the suit will not be a suit for land merely by reason of the trust property being land or other immovable property.⁷ But where the title to the trust property is in dispute it will be a suit for land.⁸
- (c) Suits for the administration of the estate of a deceased person—In a suit by a legatee for the administration of an estate and to set aside various deeds of trust leases of land and an award brought about by the fraud of the executor the Privy Council held that the suit was one primarily for administration and as such not a suit for lands.⁹ In *Hara Lal v Nithambra*¹⁰ where the suit was for the construction of a will for the administration of the estate and for the present possession of immovable property it was held that the suit was primarily for possession of immovable property the other reliefs being only ancillary. Similarly a suit for a declaration of the plaintiffs' title to the whole of the residuary estate of the testator and to avoid certain dedications and for the construction of a will was held to be one for land the other reliefs being merely incidental to the above reliefs.¹¹
- (d) Suits for damages in respect of immovable property—In a suit by one colliery owner against another for damages for cutting the barrier area in the plaintiffs' colliery the substantial question was held to be one of title to the said barrier area and the suit a suit for land.¹² But a suit for the damages caused by the erection of certain workshops by the defendant and for an injunction restraining the nuisance caused thereby was held not to be a suit for land.¹³ Where in a suit for an injunction and damages for obstruction to the plaintiffs lawfully removing certain buildings the defendants disputed the plaintiffs' right to the buildings, the Rangoon High Court held that the real dispute in the suit was with reference to immovable property.¹⁴

title to the property was nevertheless held to be not a suit for land as no relief such as possession in respect of land was involved therein¹⁴

- (f) Suit for specific performance—A suit by a vendor for the specific performance of a contract of sale is not a suit for land as neither title nor possession or any other interest in land is substantially affected¹⁵ but a suit by a vendee for specific performance of the contract of sale is a suit for land¹⁶. Similarly a suit for the specific performance of an agreement to mortgage has been held to be one for land^{16a}.
- (g) Suits for dissolution of partnership—On an application to file an award by an arbitrator dissolving a partnership providing for the sale of immovable property of the partnership and for the execution of a mortgage by one partner to another for the amount found due by the former it was held that the proceeding was not a suit for land but only for the dissolution of a partnership and for the adjustment of the mutual claims between the partners out of the partnership property¹⁷.
- (h) Suits for rent—A suit for rent is not a suit for land though in determining the rate of rent an issue as to the nature of the tenancy has to be raised¹⁸ but if a lessee sues the lessor for rents and profits on account of wrongful dispossession by the lessor the claim is one for possession by way of receiving rents and profits and the suit is one for land¹⁹.

THE BOMBAY HIGH COURT

Except in the case of suits for declaration of title and for possession of immovable property^{19a} which were held to be suits for land the High Court of Bombay till recently appeared to regard a particular suit as a suit for land within its jurisdiction if it was cognizable by an English Court of Equity or the specific performance of a contract to execute a mortgage of property outside Bombay and for the recovery of the mortgage debt was within the original jurisdiction of the Bombay High Court. The reasoning was that such a suit was one of the kind in which a Court of Equity in England could exercise jurisdiction in personam with respect to immovable property lying outside jurisdiction and that the High Court in India had all the jurisdiction of the Equity Courts in England. Clause 12 of the Letters Patent was held not to have taken away such jurisdiction from the High Courts in India. The ratio decidendi of the decision in Holkar's case was adopted in a number of subsequent cases and suits for foreclosure²¹ or for the specific performance of a contract to sell²² were held to lie in the Bombay High Court notwithstanding that the immovable property referred to in the mortgage or contract was outside jurisdiction. In 1924, in *Venkatrao v. Khimji*²³ a suit on a mortgage of immovable property outside Bombay was held to lie in the High Court. But the Court in this case went further and laid down that such a suit was not a suit for land but only for a debt. The question was decided with reference to the term 'suit for land' in Clause 12 of the Letters Patent rather than on the analogy of the English Equity jurisdiction. The authority of Holkar's case was not accepted by Lawrence J. in *Jeshubhai v. Janardhan*²⁴ where he held that a suit for a declaration of a charge for maintenance on immovable property was a 'suit for land'. But in a later case²⁵ the same Judge feeling himself bound by *Venkatrao v. Khimji*²³ held that such a suit though a suit for land would lie in the High Court in the exercise of the equity jurisdiction in personam even if the land was outside Bombay. *Venkatrao v. Khimji*²³ was followed in *Jasraj v. Akhubai*²⁶ but was dissented from in *In the Spinning and Weaving Company v. Climax Syndicate*²⁷ by a Bench of three Judges who held

5 Suit for land partly within and partly without jurisdiction—The words "either wholly, or, in case the leave of the Court shall have been first obtained in part" must be taken to apply not only to the words "if the cause of action shall have arisen" but also to the words "property shall be situated". The operative words of this Clause in so far as they relate to suits for land or other immoveable property should therefore be reproduced as follows—"If, in case of suits for land or other immoveable property, such land or property shall be situated, . . . either wholly, or, in case the leave of the Court shall have been first obtained, in part, within the local limits, etc." It follows that in suits for land only partly within the local limits, the Court has jurisdiction to try the whole suit provided the leave of the Court is first obtained ¹. But if no leave is obtained, the Court may entertain the suit only in so far as the property within the local limits is concerned ².

The provision for leave contained in this Clause with regard to suits for land will not however, sanction the institution of a suit which would offend the rules as to misjoinder of parties and causes of action. Thus where a mortgagee sub mortgaged his mortgage interest to the plaintiff over the mortgagors' property situated in the mofussil and included in the sub mortgage some of his own property situated in Calcutta, a suit in the Calcutta High Court, by the sub mortgagee against the original mortgagor and the mortgagee to enforce the sub mortgage cannot lie and no leave can be granted though one of the properties in the sub mortgage is within the local limits of the original jurisdiction of the Calcutta High Court ³.

6 "Suits of every description"—The High Court has jurisdiction under this Clause in suits concerning matrimonial matters among the Jews, ¹ or among the Parsis except in matters coming within the jurisdiction of a special Court constituted under the Parsi Marriage Act ².

The grant of leave is a matter within the discretion of the Court¹⁰ In the exercise of their discretion the Courts can take into consideration the convenience of parties¹¹

19 Appeal—An order by one Judge of the High Court granting or refusing leave cannot be interfered with by another Judge of the High Court except on appeal from the order.¹ The proper remedy by way of an appeal from the order granting² or refusing³ leave is the exercise of an appeal lies also from an order dismissing an application by the defendant to have the plaint taken off the file.⁴

1 Withdrawal of suits by High Court to its own file—The High Court has power under this Clause to remove to itself cases from any Court subject to its superintendence for trial, whenever it thinks fit to do so for purposes of justice. That purpose is to be determined by reference to the circumstances of each case. The desirability or necessity to exercise the jurisdiction may arise in consequence of the importance or difficulty of the questions involved or in consequence of the balance of convenience or the cheapness of the trial¹

The power of removal is not limited to any particular period or stage of the suit and so long as the proceedings in the original Court are in such a condition that one party is entitled to ask that Court to determine any question material to the final result of the suit the suit is in existence in the original Court and is capable of being removed to the High Court under this Clause². In the undermentioned case it was held that the High Court can transfer a case pending in a moffussil Court to itself and pass interim orders thereon, but has no power to do so in cases not so pending³.

It has been held by the High Courts of Calcutta, Madras and Rangoon that the application on the original side of the High Court in the undermentioned Bombay case⁴ is a High Court.

2 Suit—Meaning of—Proceedings for the grant of probate which are contested come within the meaning of the word suit as used in this clause¹

3 Transfer of petition from Provincial Insolvency Court—An application under this Clause to remove an insolvency petition pending in a moffussil Court and to transfer it for trial and disposal to the original side of the High Court is not maintainable¹. The reason is that the powers conferred by S 5 of the Provincial Insolvency Act (V of 1920) which are made subject to the other provisions of the Act cannot be exercised in such a way as to give the original side of the High Court a jurisdiction from which it is expressly excluded by the terms of that section read with this Clause.

4 Subject to its superintendence—The civil Court of the Political Resident at Aden as constituted by the Aden Courts Act (II of 1861) is subject to the superintendence of the High Court at Bombay within the meaning of this Clause even though no appeal lies to the High Court from decrees or orders of the Resident and therefore the High Court has power to remove under this Clause a suit from that Court to itself for trial and determination¹.

5 Transfer of suit from Presidency Small Cause Court—The Presidency Small Cause Court is a Court subject to the superintendence of the High Court. The latter can therefore remove to itself under this Clause a suit pending before such Small Cause Court¹.

6 Powers of High Court in suits transferred under this Clause—In dealing with suits transferred under this Clause the High Court has no more powers than those of the Court from which the suit is transferred¹. Thus the High Court cannot allow an amendment of a plaint in a suit transferred from the Madras City Civil Court so as to convert it into one which such City Civil Court would have no jurisdiction to try². Under S 14 of the Madras City Civil Court Act (VI of 1892) it is specifically provided that the Court fee payable on a suit so transferred from the Madras City Civil Court must be calculated according to the Rules in force in the High Court in relation to suits filed on the original side of the High Court³.

7 High Court's power to receive plaints—This Clause provides only that the High Court may remove to itself a suit pending in a Court subject to its superintendence. It does not enable the High Court to receive a plaint in a suit cognisable by a mofussil Court and pass orders thereon¹

8 Appeal—The High Court of Madras has held that an order of a Judge of the High Court on the original side transferring to the High Court a suit under this clause is a 'judgment' within the meaning of Cl. 13 infra and is therefore appealable². But the Calcutta High Court has taken a contrary view³. See also notes to Cl. 15 of the Letters Patent infra.

Where an application under this clause was heard and granted by a Bench sitting on the appellate side of the Bombay High Court leave was granted to appeal to the Privy Council⁴.

14 And We do further ordain that where plaintiff has several causes of action against defendant such causes of action not being for land or other immovable property and the said High Court shall have original jurisdiction in respect of one of such causes of action, it shall be lawful for the said High Court to call on the defendant to show cause why the several causes of action should not be joined together in one suit, and to make such order for trial of the same as to the said High Court shall seem fit.

1 Joinder of several causes of action—The word 'several' in the expression 'several causes of action' means separate¹. This clause applies only where some causes of action arise within and some without the ordinary original jurisdiction of the High Court. It does not apply to cases where all the several causes of action arise within such jurisdiction². It is not necessary that the causes of action outside the ordinary original jurisdiction, should have arisen within the extraordinary original jurisdiction contemplated by Cl. 13 ante. They may arise even outside the Presidency³.

An application under this clause for leave to join several causes of action can be made also in a case in which leave has to be or has been obtained under Cl. 12 *ante*⁴.

To bring a case within this clause it is not necessary that the defendant should admit that any cause of action has arisen within the original jurisdiction of the High Court⁵.

2 Such causes of action not being for land—The expression 'such causes of action not being for land' qualifies the words 'several causes of action' and refers to cases where plaintiff has several causes of action other than causes of action for land or other immovable property. That is to say in considering this clause any cause of action which is for land or other immovable property must be excluded and if the sole cause of action within jurisdiction is one for land or if the sole cause of action outside the jurisdiction is one for land then this clause will have no operation¹.

15 And We do further ordain that an appeal shall lie to the said High Court of Judicature at [Madras] [Bombay] [Fort William] in Bengal from the judgment (not being a judgment passed in the exercise of appellate jurisdiction in respect of a decree or order made in the exercise of appellate jurisdiction by a Court subject to the superintendence of the

And we do further ordain that in appeal shall lie to the said High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal from the judgment (not being an order made in the exercise of revisional jurisdiction and not being a sentence or order passed or made in the exercise of the power of superintendence under the provisions of S 107 of the Government of India Act 1919 or in the exercise of criminal jurisdiction) of one Judge of the said High Court or one Judge of any Division Court pursuant to section 13 of the said recited Act and that an appeal shall also lie to the said High Court from the judgment (not being a sentence or order as aforesaid) of two or more Judges of and

- (c) sentences or orders passed in the exercise of criminal jurisdiction,
 (2) the decision of the Senior Judge where the Judges constituting a bench of two Judges differed

The effect of section 36 of the Letters Patent Act is that no right of appeal against a decision of a single Judge is conferred. The Senior Judge where the Judges constituting a bench differ has been taken away in view of the newly amended Cl 36 and there is no power to grant a certificate in such a case.²

After the amendment came into force there arose a conflict of opinion as to whether it had retrospective effect. According to the High Court of Bombay³ it had such effect so that no appeal lay against a judgment of a single Judge in second appeal filed after the amendment in the absence of the requisite certificate. The High Courts of Calcutta⁴ and Madras⁵ held on the other hand that the amendment did not operate retrospectively so as to affect the right of appeal which had accrued in respect of suits instituted prior to the amendment. According to the High Court of Allahabad⁶ all judgments delivered after the amendment were governed by the amended clause. In order to settle this conflict at rest the clause was again amended and the provisions on or after the first day of February 1929 have been added.

2 Judgment meaning of. The definition of the word judgment given in S 2 of the Civil Procedure Code is not followed in the construction of the term as used in the Code and is not applicable to the Letters Patent Act. There is no definition of the word in the Letters Patent. On the other hand it must have been used in different senses in the various clauses. Thus this clause uses the word judgment while Cl 3 uses the words judgment, decree or order and Cl 40 the words preliminary or interlocutory judgment decree or order.⁷ There has been a considerable conflict of opinion as to the true interpretation of the word judgment as used in the clause. In Hurish Chandra Choudhury v. Kalisundery Debi 11 R. (Cal 482) where a single Judge of the High Court had passed an order refusing to transmit an order of Her Majesty in Council for execution their Lordships of the Privy Council said 'Mr Justice Pontifex had in fact exercised a judicial discretion and had come to a decision of fact at majority which if it remained, would entirely conclude any rights of Kalisundery to an execution in this suit' and they held that the order was a judgment.⁸ This however was not a complete definition of the term. In *Bhoja Lal v. The Dakore Temple Committee*⁹ their Lordships of the Privy Council observed that the term judgment in the Letters Patent meant in civil cases a decree and not a judgment in the ordinary sense. The High Court of Allahabad has distinguished this case on the ground that their Lordships must be deemed to have made this observation referred to with reference to Cl 3 of the Letters Patent and not with reference to the clause.¹⁰

We now proceed to discuss the view of the various High Courts on the question.

According to the High Court of Allahabad the provisions of this clause are controlled by the Code of Civil Procedure and the right of appeal under this clause is restricted to cases which are appealable under the Code.¹¹ But in a later case of the same High Court,¹² the view in 25 M. L. J. 1 (discussed below) has been adopted. This view has been dissented from by the other High Courts. See Note C to S 104 ante and the cases cited below.

The leading case in what may be called the Calcutta view is to the meaning of the word judgment in *The Justices of the Peace for Calcutta v. The Oriental Gas Co.*¹³ in which Couch C. J. defined it as meaning a decision which affects the merits of the question between the parties by determining some right or liability. It may be either preliminary or interlocutory, the difference between them being that a final judgment determines the whole cause or suit and a preliminary or interlocutory judgment determines only a part of it leaving other matters to be determined.¹⁴ The right or liability must mean some right or liability which is the subject matter of controversy in the suit or proceeding. It has however been held by the same High Court purporting to follow the case of The Justices of the Peace for Calcutta that an order granting leave to sue under Cl 12 of the Letters Patent⁷ or an order setting aside an abatement⁸ or an order rejecting an application for a judgment on admissions under O 12 R 6 of the Civil Procedure Code⁹ is a judgment, on the ground that they must be taken to determine some right. These decisions, it is submitted cannot be supported even on the basis of the definition which they purport to adopt. In none of these cases are the merits affected and there is no determination of any right or liability which is the matter in controversy in the suit or proceeding. In *Ebrahim v. Faizunisa Begam*¹⁰ Garth, C J expressed the view that the word 'judgment' means a judgment or decree which decides the case one way or the other in its entirety and that it does not mean a decision or order of an interlocutory nature which merely decides some isolated point not affecting the merits or the results of the whole suit. A similar view was adopted in the cases cited below.¹¹ In *Mt. Brihlmani v. Ramrick Dass*¹² Maclean C J was of opinion that the definition of Couch C J was becoming classical but that it was not exhaustive.¹³ In Brojogopal Roy Burman v. Anir chandra Bhattacharya I L R 56 Cal 135 F B it was held that the mere fact that an order puts in peril the finality of a decision given in a person's favour does, not of itself, make the order a judgment within the meaning of this clause. It was doubted whether such orders as an order setting aside an abatement or an order giving leave to appeal could be considered a judgment.

The definition of Couch C J given above has been accepted generally in the Bombay High Court.¹⁴

The earliest attempt to define the word judgment as used in this clause was made by the High Court of Madras in *DeSouza v. Coles*¹⁵ and it was held that it meant any decision or determination affecting the rights or interests of the suitor or applicant. It was also pointed out that it was not possible to preclude any limit to the right of appeal conferred by this clause. This definition has however been considered to be very wide and has not been followed. The leading case on the point at present in the High Court of Madras is that of Tularam Rao v. Alagappa I L R 35 Mad 1 (F B). In that case Sir Arnold White C J laid down the view that an order is a judgment within the meaning of this clause —

- (i) if its effect is to put an end to the suit or proceeding so far as the Court before which the suit or proceeding is pending is concerned or
- (ii) if the non compliance therewith will have the effect of putting in end to such suit or proceeding or
- (iii) if it is passed on an independent proceeding which is ancillary to the suit (not instituted as a step towards judgment but with a view to rendering the judgment effective when obtained) e.g. an order on an application for temporary injunction or for the appointment of a receiver.

In Gokalechan v. Sanwal Das,¹⁶ the High Court of Lahore was of opinion that the term judgment included any interlocutory judgment which decided so far as the Court pronouncing it was concerned, whether finally or temporarily any question materially in issue between the parties and directly affecting the subject matter of the suit. In Rullu Singh v. Sanwal,¹⁷ the same High Court adopted the view of White C J, of the Madras High Court.

In Arumugham Chetty v. Kanappa Chetty,¹⁸ the High Court of Rangoon held that where an appeal lies from an order under O 43 R. 1 of the Civil Procedure Code the order must be taken to be a judgment within the meaning of this clause. In *Diyabhai Jaganlal v. Murugappa Chetty*¹⁹ Full Bench of the same High Court has held dissenting from the view of White C J, that the word 'judgment' means and is a decree in a suit in which the rights of the parties at issue in the suit are determined. A final judgment is a decree in a suit.

by which all the matters at issue therein are decided. A preliminary or interlocutory judgment is a decision in a suit by which the right to the relief claimed in the suit is decided but under which further proceedings are necessary before the suit in its entirety, can be determined. See other question and orders and are not judgments."

The High Court of Patna²¹ has adopted the view of the Calcutta High Court as expressed in the case of Brigadier Roy Burman referred to above.

An examination of all the cases on the subject goes to show that the test applied by White, C. J. in Tuljaram Rao's case affords the best solution of the conflict of decisions on the point. An examination of the orders specified in the Civil Procedure Code as being appealable also shows that the Legislature in making those provisions has followed principles which are analogous to those laid down by White, C. J. Thus the orders referred to in Cls (p) to (i) of R 1 of C. 43 C. P. C. are really orders in ancillary proceedings instituted with a view to make the judgment that may be ultimately obtained effective. The other clauses specify orders which so far as the Court is concerned, will have the effect of putting an end to the suit or proceeding. It is therefore submitted that the test applied by White, C. J. is correct in principle. The cases in which the orders have been held to be judgments have all been grouped below so as to show that they can all be supported on the principles laid down in Tuljaram Rao's case though the reasons for the decisions in the various cases differ considerably.

Orders which have been held to be judgments and which can be supported on the ground that they have the effect of putting an end to the suit or proceeding so far as the Court before which the suit or proceeding is pending is concerned —

- (1) Order refusing to entertain a suit as being bad for multifariousness.²¹
- (2) Order refusing to add necessary parties in a suit under S. 92 of the Civil Procedure Code.²²
- (3) Order refusing to allow a plaint to be amended and dismissing suit.²³
- (4) Order refusing to restore suit dismissed for default. See Note 12 to O 9 R 9, Civil Procedure Code.
- (5) Finding on a preliminary issue which has the effect of disposing of the suit.²⁴
- (6) Order varying or amending a decree.²⁵
- (7) Order dismissing a claim petition under O 21 R 54 of the Civil Procedure Code. The High Court of Rangoon has, however, held that such an order does not prevent the determination of the rights of the parties in a separate suit and that therefore it is not a judgment.²⁶ It is submitted that this view is not correct. So far as the Court in which the claim proceeding is pending is concerned, the order clearly puts an end to the proceeding.
- (8) Order rejecting an application to set aside in whole or in part a judgment or refusing the application of the assignee of the plaintiff to be allowed to continue the proceeding.²⁷ See Note 14 to O 22 R 9 and Note 21 to O 22 R 10.
- (9) Order allowing the withdrawal of a suit with liberty to bring a fresh suit or otherwise.²⁸ See Note 40 to O 23, R 1.
- (10) Order refusing leave to sue in forma pauperis. See Note 5 to O 33, R 5. The decision in the case cited below²⁹ that an order allowing an application for leave to sue in forma pauperis is a judgment is against the principle of Tuljaram Rao's case and cannot be accepted as correct.
- (11) Order dismissing application praying that the Court may receive a sum of money as security for the costs of an appeal. See Note 14 to O 41 R 10.

3 Orders which are not "judgments"—The following are among the orders which have been held not appealable as a 'judgment' under this clause—

- (1) An order granting leave to sue as a pauper ¹

- (2) An order granting leave to defend a summary suit under O. 37 ²

- (13) An order refusing to direct a party to produce documents under Rr. 130 and 131 of the High Court Rules, Bombay ¹⁵
- (15) An order directing security under O. 38 R. 516 This would be a judgment according to the test applied by White, C. J., in Tularam Rao's case inasmuch as it is an order in an ancillary proceeding instituted with a view to render the judgment effective. In view of the Full Bench decision in A. I. R. 1929 Rang. 41 adopting the Madras view the correctness of this decision is open to question
- (16) An order directing ¹⁷ or refusing ¹⁸ the issue of a commission for the examination of witnesses

An order which amounts to a decree in the form of a judgment will of course be a judgment within the meaning of the clause and appealable as such.

3 Orders which are not judgments.—The following are among the orders which have been held not appealable as judgments under the clause—

(1) An order granting leave to sue as a pauper¹

(1 A) Order granting under S. 10 of the C. P. A.

(2) An order granting leave to defend a summary suit under O. 2.

But (1) The High Court of Bombay took a contrary view.

(2) An order refusing to make leave to sue a pauper a condition.

(3) An order refusing to direct the Receiver in insolvency to give security for the satisfaction of the debt of the debtor.

(4) An order refusing to set aside a decree or to transfer a suit to a preliminary suit.

(5) An order refusing to set aside a decree after expiry of the time for appeal.

(6) An order refusing to set aside a decree after expiry of the time for appeal.

(7) An order refusing to set aside a decree after expiry of the time for appeal.

(8) An order refusing to set aside a decree after expiry of the time for appeal.

(9) An order refusing to set aside a decree after expiry of the time for appeal.

(10) An order refusing to set aside a decree after expiry of the time for appeal.

(11) An order refusing to set aside a decree after expiry of the time for appeal.

(12) An order refusing to set aside a decree after expiry of the time for appeal.

(13) An order refusing to set aside a decree after expiry of the time for appeal.

Bombay.

(14) An order directing security under O. 34 R. 16. This could be a judgment according to the test applied by White & Carter Hyatt v. Joshi as much as it is an order in an auxiliary proceeding instituted with a view to render the judgment effective. In view of the Full Bench decision in A. I. R. 1929 Raj 41 adopting the Malabar view the correctness of this decision is open to question.

(15) An order directing or refusing to set aside a decree after expiry of the time for appeal.

- (33) An order of remand in appeal directing the trial of a particular issue keeping the case in file³⁷

NOTE — An order of remand of the whole case is a 'judgment' — See Note 2 above

- (34) An order made at the settlement of issues fixing a distant date for the hearing of the suit was held to be appealable in the undermentioned case by the High Court of Madras³⁸ But this decision has been dissented from in the later Full Bench in I L R 30 Mad 1 and is not good law. Such an order would not be appealable as it merely relates to procedure.

4 Orders in proceedings other than suits and appeals — The following are among the orders in miscellaneous proceedings which have been held to be appealable as judgments under this clause. As to whether and how far these decisions can be regarded as correct on principle, see the discussion as to the meaning of the word 'judgment' in Note 2 above —

5 Orders made in the exercise of Revisional Jurisdiction—Orders made by a single Judge in the exercise of revisional jurisdiction are not appealable under this clause. A right of appeal is expressly excluded in such cases¹. Where it is doubtful whether the decision appealed from is in revision or in second appeal, but the party aggrieved has a right of second appeal it must be deemed to be one passed in the exercise of appellate jurisdiction².

6 Orders made in the exercise of powers of superintendence—This clause excludes a right of appeal in the case of orders passed in the exercise of the powers of superintendence under S 101 of the Government of India Act, such orders are, therefore not appealable under this clause¹.

7 Orders passed in the exercise of criminal jurisdiction—No appeal lies under this clause against an order passed by a single Judge of the High Court in the exercise of its criminal jurisdiction¹. An order of sanction to prosecute under S 195 Cr P Code is an order made in the exercise of criminal jurisdiction and not appealable under this clause². Similarly an order of a Judge of the High Court staying a criminal trial is not a 'judgment' appealable under this clause.²

8 Appeal to Privy Council—A decision of the High Court in an appeal under this clause is appealable to the Privy Council.¹

9 Appeal in cases of disagreement among Judges of a Division Bench—See also S 98—Prior to the amendment of the Act, a decision of the High Court in an appeal under this clause was appealable to the Privy Council. As noticed in the cases cited below¹ which were decided before the amendment, the law was that a decision of the High Court in an appeal under this clause was appealable to the Privy Council. The law is now that a decision of the High Court in an appeal under this clause is appealable to the Privy Council.

10 S 175 of the Agra Tenancy Act if precludes appeal—Section 175 of the Agra Tenancy Act is not a bar to the right of appeal conferred by this clause.¹

11 Declares that the case is a fit one for appeal—Under the present clause an appeal lies from the decision of a single Judge of the High Court in a second appeal only where the Judge of the High Court declares that the case is a fit one for appeal.¹ No hard and fast rule can be laid down as to when a Judge should grant or refuse leave to appeal. The mere fact that the decision of the lower appellate Court is reversed by the High Court or the fact that the value of the appeal is beyond a particular figure does not by itself entitle the petitioner to a grant of leave to appeal. The jurisdiction to grant leave should not, however, be exercised arbitrarily or capriciously but in a judicial manner having regard to all the circumstances of the case.² The High Court of Bombay in a recent decision³ has held that in the matter of granting leave under this clause the Court should be guided by the same principles as the Government leave to appeal to the Privy Council. It has accordingly refused to grant leave holding that the case is not one of great public or private importance or involving questions which may be important precedents governing numerous other cases. 6 Orders made in the exercise of powers of superintendence—This clause excludes a right of appeal in the case of orders passed in the exercise of the powers of superintendence under S 107 of the Government of India Act such orders are therefore not appealable under this clause¹.

7 Orders passed in the exercise of criminal jurisdiction—No appeal lies under this clause against an order passed by a single Judge of the High Court in the exercise of its criminal jurisdiction¹. 9 Appeal in cases of disagreement among Judges of a Division Bench—See also S 95—Prior to the amendment of this clause in 1928 there was a right of appeal from the decision of the senior Judge where the Judges of a Division Bench were equally divided in opinion. As noticed in Note 1 ante such a right of appeal has now been taken away. The cases cited below¹ which were decided under the old clause prior to the amendment in 1928 are now no longer law and are only of academic interest.

 I venture to suggest that learned Judges in exercising the responsibility given to them by the Letters Patent to hear appeals, singly, might remember that it is only when a case presents some difficulty and in which the Judge really feels that the matter before him requires further consideration by a larger Court that leave should be granted. If a Judge decides the case with confidence that should be an indication that it is not a fit case for appeal and if he accepts the responsibility which is cast upon him by the Letters Patent his decision will be final.

An order refusing leave to appeal under this clause is not appealable⁴

In the case cited below the High Court of Rangoon⁵ rejected an application for leave to appeal which was filed four months after the judgment in second appeal.

12 Cross objections—It has been held that the provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure relating to cross objections do not apply to appeals under this clause¹

13 Security for costs—In an appeal under this clause the High Court has power to direct the appellant to furnish security for costs and on his failure to comply therewith it can reject the appeal under the provisions of O 41, R 10 (2) of the Code¹

14 Points on which appeal may be heard—It is not ordinarily open to the parties to raise in an appeal under this clause a contention which has not been urged before the Court from the judgment of which the appeal is preferred¹ unless the point is one relating to jurisdiction or raises a pure question of law². But the Court is not however, confined to facts and circumstances as disclosed on the judgment appealed against: it is entitled to look into the judgment of the lower appellate Court³.

Wrong exercise of discretion—Whether may be a ground of appeal—The High Court of Allahabad⁴ has held that an order passed in the exercise of judicial discretion vested in a single Judge of the High Court is not appealable as a judgment under this clause. The High Court of Madras⁵ has, on the other hand, held that the fact of a matter being within the discretion of the original Judge is not a ground for refusing to entertain the appeal but a sufficient reason for declining to interfere with that discretion.

15 Limitation—Provision has been made in the Rules framed by various High Courts as to the period within which an appeal under this clause is to be filed. Under the Rules framed by the High Courts of Allahabad¹ Lahore² Patna³ and Rangoon⁴ the memorandum of appeal under this clause need not be accompanied by a copy of the judgment or decree appealed from. Hence it has been held that an appellant is not entitled to claim the benefit of an extension or exclusion of time under Ss. 4 and 12 of the Limitation Act.⁵

See also the undermentioned cases.⁶

16 Court fee—Prior to the amendment of S. 4 of the Court fees Act by Act XXXIX of 1922 it was held in the undermentioned cases⁷ that a memorandum of appeal under this clause was not liable to any Court fee inasmuch as S. 4 did not provide for appeals under this clause. But under the amended Court fees Act it is liable for payment of Court fee under Sch. I Art. 1.

17 Review See Note 1 to S. 114 of the Code of Civil Procedure and the case cited below.⁸

18 Practice—Section 117 of the Code of Civil Procedure provides that the provisions of the Code shall apply to High Courts save as otherwise provided and O. 43 R. 3 exempts only certain provisions of the Code as not being applicable to the High Courts. Hence in a Letter Patent appeal under this clause the High Court can apply the provisions of O. 41 R. 11⁹ proceeded under O. 41 R. 10². But as already noticed in Note 10 to S. 10, the provisions of this clause are not controlled by S. 10, and an order of remand though not appealed against can be challenged in an appeal under this clause against the final judgment.⁴

An appeal under this clause cannot be proceeded with if necessary parties are not impleaded.⁴ In the undermentioned case the High Court of Madras allowed an appeal under this clause against the order of the District Judge in application for leave to appeal as a proper order under O. 43 P. 1. It is unnecessary to the respondent observing that such a procedure was in conformity with the practice of that Court.

Although a Letter Patent appeal is not preferred under the Civil Procedure Code the Court hearing the appeal is still an appellate Court and can exercise all the powers of an appellate Court under the Code of Civil Procedure and as such direct the plaint to be returned for presentation to the proper Court.⁶

16 And We do further ordain that the said High Court of Judicature at Madras [Bombay] Fort William in Bengal shall be a

Appel from Courts in the provinces Court of appeal from the Civil Courts of the Presidency of [Madras Bombay] Bengal Division of the Presidency of Fort William and from all other Courts subject to its superintendence and shall exercise appellate jurisdiction in such cases as are subject to appeal to the said High Court by virtue of any laws or regulations now in force

1 Appeal from Courts in Provinces—The constitution of the High Court as a Court of appeal is quite different from its jurisdiction to hear appeals from every decree or order passed by a Subordinate Court. If there is no law or regulation which allows an appeal to the High Court in a particular case it cannot assume appellate jurisdiction in respect of that matter.¹

2 Civil Courts—The term Civil Courts in this clause does not cover a tribunal created under a particular status for a particular purpose. Thus no appeal will lie to the High Court against the decision of a commissioner acting as an election Court under the provisions of the United Provinces Municipalities Act (II of 1916).¹

3 Subject to its superintendence—This clause provides that every Civil Court of a Province is subject to the appellate jurisdiction of the High Court and S 104 of the Government of India Act provides that every Court subject to the appellate jurisdiction of the High Court is subject to its powers of superintendence. Reading these two together it follows that every civil Court in a province or Presidency is subject to the High Court's right of superintendence.¹

Subject to its superintendence See Note 1 Pt (2)

1 Criminal appellate jurisdiction—The High Court has been declared under this clause to be a general Court of criminal appeal the actual exercise of the appellate jurisdiction being defined by the concluding portion of this clause¹

It has been held in the undermentioned case² that the general power of superintendence conferred by S 10 of the Government of India Act is different from the superintendence spoken of in this clause

28 And we do further ordain that the said High Court of Judicature at Hearing of referred cases and revision of criminal trials

[Madras, [Bombay] Fort William in Bengal shall be a Court of reference and revision from the Criminal Courts subject to its appellate jurisdiction and shall have power to hear and determine all such cases referred to it by the Sessions Judges or by any other Officers now authorized to refer cases to the said High Court, and to revise all such cases tried by any officer or Court possessing criminal jurisdiction as are now subject to reference or to revision by the said High Court

1 Criminal revisional jurisdiction—The High Court has a general power of superintendence under this clause over the Criminal Courts subject to its appellate jurisdiction. It can revise the decisions of such Courts. It is also a Court of reference empowered to determine references made by the Sessions Judges or by any such officer as is referred to in this clause. The High Court of Bombay has thus power to quash proceedings before a village Dast under its powers of superintendence¹. It cannot under this Clause revise an order of the Secretary to the Bengal Government issuing a warrant under the Goondas Act (I of 1923) inasmuch as such person was not an officer possessing criminal jurisdiction at the time of the issue of the Letters Patent

The High Court hearing a reference under S 307 of the Criminal Procedure Code hears it as a Court of reference in the exercise of the jurisdiction vested in it under this clause and not in its original criminal jurisdiction³

to direct the transfer of any criminal case on appeal from any Court to any other Court of equal or superior jurisdiction, and also to direct the preliminary investigation or trial of any criminal case by any officer or Court otherwise competent to investigate or try it though such case belongs in ordinary course to the jurisdiction of some other officer or Court

1 Transfer of Criminal Case—Under this clause the High Court is empowered to direct the transfer of any criminal case to any other Court of equal or superior jurisdiction¹. The words from any Court must be read as from any Court subordinate to the High Court's authority. Thus the Allahabad High Court has no jurisdiction to transfer a case from a panchayat constituted under the provisions of the United Provinces Act VI of 1920²

The word Criminal Case in this clause will include proceedings under S 145 of the Criminal Procedure Code³

The power of superintendence conferred by this Clause includes by implication the power to send for the record of any case pending in the lower Courts this must necessarily have the effect of staying further proceedings in the case in that Court. The High Court has power therefore to stay criminal proceedings instituted on a sanction by a Civil Court under S 476 of the Criminal Procedure Code till the disposal of the appeal from the Civil Court⁴

See also the undermentioned case⁵

2 Practice of the Calcutta High Court—An application to exercise the jurisdiction conferred by this clause must be made according to Ch 37 R 2 of the Crown Side Rules on the appellate side of the Calcutta High Court¹

30 And We do further ordain that all persons brought for trial before the said High Court of Judicature at [Madras] [Bombay] Fort William in Bengal either in the exercise of its original jurisdiction, or in the exercise of its jurisdiction as a Court of appeal, reference or revision, charged with any offence for which provision is made by Act No XLV of 1860 called the "Indian Penal Code," or by any Act amending or excluding the said Act which may have been passed prior to the publication of these presents shall be liable to punishment under the said Act or Acts, and not otherwise

1 Offenders to be punished under the Indian Penal Code—The offenders brought for trial before the High Court should be punished only under the provisions of the Indian Penal Code the High Court cannot engraft thereon the rules of the Common Law of England¹

Exercise of jurisdiction elsewhere than at the ordinary place of sitting of the High Court

31 And We do further ordain that whenever it shall appear to the Governor in Council convenient that the jurisdiction and power by these Our Letters Patent or by the recited Act, vested in the said High Court of Judicature at [Madras], [Bombay] Fort William in Bengal should be exercised in any place within the jurisdiction of any Court now subject to the superintendence of the said High Court other than the usual place of sitting of the said High Court, or at several such places by way of circuit, the proceedings in cases before the said High Court at such place or places shall be regulated by any law relating thereto which has been or may be made by competent legislative authority for India

Admiralty and Vice Admiralty Jurisdiction

32 And We do further ordain that the said High Court of Judicature at [Madras] [Bombay] Fort William in Bengal shall have and exercise all such civil and maritime jurisdiction as may now be exercised by the said High Court as a Court of Admiralty or of Vice Admiralty and also such jurisdiction for the trial and adjudication of prize causes and other maritime questions arising in India as may now be exercised by the said High Court

Synopsis

Civil and maritime jurisdiction	Art No	1	Necessaries supplied to a ship	Note No	2

1 Civil and maritime jurisdiction—The effect of this Clause is to vest the High Courts with such civil and maritime jurisdiction as might have been exercised by the Supreme Courts under their respective charters.¹

2 Necessaries supplied to a ship—Before the passing of the statute 3 & 4 Vict Ch, 65, it was held in England that the Court of Admiralty in England had no jurisdiction in the case of necessaries supplied to a ship though perhaps it occasionally purported to exercise the jurisdiction where not prohibited.¹ The same view was also held in India.²

It was also held subsequently in the undermentioned cases ³ that the powers conferred by the above statute as extended by 24 Vict c 10 (the Admiralty Courts Act of 1861) did not become vested in the High Courts by virtue of their several Letters Patent. But at present the jurisdiction of the High Court in relation to necessities supplied to a ship rests on the Colonial Courts of Admiralty Act 1890 53 & 54 Vict c 27 which vests in it inter alia the powers described in S 5 of 24 Vict c 10. And under S 5 of the latter statute the High Court in its Admiralty side has jurisdiction over any claim for necessities supplied to any ship elsewhere than in the port to which the ship belongs ⁴.

Matrimonial Jurisdiction

35 And We do further ordain that the said High Court of Judicature at [Madras] [Bombay,] Fort William in Bengal shall have jurisdiction, within the Presidency of [Madras] [Bombay,] Bengal Division of the Presidency of Fort William in matters matrimonial between Our subjects professing the Christian religion. Provided always that nothing herein contained shall be held to interfere with the exercise of any jurisdiction in matters matrimonial by any Court not established by Royal Charter within the said Presidency lawfully possessed thereof

Synopsis

	Note No		Note No
Between our subjects professing the Christian religion	1	Respondent not within the Presidency	3
Both parties other than Christians	2	Matters matrimonial	4

1 Between our subjects professing the Christian religion—This Clause was intended to replace in a wider and modern form the ecclesiastical jurisdiction of the Supreme Court and its scope was confined to proceedings in which both the parties were Christians. See also Paragraph 33 of the Despatch from the Secretary of State dated 14th May 1863 and among the first Letters Patent of the Calcutta High Court^{1a}. But the limitation has now been removed by the enactment of the Indian Divorce Act IV of 1869 which does not require that both parties should profess the Christian religion. The High Court has therefore jurisdiction to entertain a suit for restitution of conjugal rights instituted by a Christian woman against her husband who is a Parsee².

2 Both parties other than Christians—It was held by the Privy Council in the undermentioned case¹ that the Supreme Court of Bombay had no jurisdiction to entertain a suit on its ecclesiastical side by a Parsee wife against a Parsee husband for the restitution of conjugal rights. Their Lordships of the Privy Council also observed as follows —

But we should much regret if there were no Court and no law whereby a remedy could be administered to the evils which must be incidental to married life against them. Clause 12 ante was intended to remove this difficulty and by virtue of that Clause the High Court has jurisdiction to entertain a suit arising out of matrimonial disputes between persons other than Christians for instance between Jews.²

3 Respondent not within the Presidency—The High Court has no jurisdiction to grant relief in case of restitution of conjugal rights against a respondent who is absent from the Presidency at the time the suit is instituted and remains absent subsequently also¹.

4 Matters matrimonial—The jurisdiction of the High Court in matters matrimonial is only such jurisdiction as is comprised within the provisions of the Indian Divorce Act IV of 1869 therefore a suit for a declaration that a marriage was a valid and lawful marriage does not lie¹. Similarly a suit does not lie under this Clause to declare a marriage null and void on the ground that the essential ceremonies have not been performed².

Powers of Single Judges and Division Courts

36 And We do hereby declare that any function which is hereby directed to be performed by the said High Court of Judicature at [Madras] [Bombay,] Fort William in Bengal in the exercise of its original or appellate jurisdiction may be performed by any Judge, or by any Division Court thereof, appointed or constituted for such purpose, in pursuance of section 108 of the Government of India Act, 1915 and if such Division Court is composed of two or more Judges and the Judges are divided in opinion as to the decision to be given on any point such point shall be decided according to the opinion of the majority of the Judges if there shall be a majority, but if the Judges should be equally divided they shall state the point upon which they differ and the case shall then be heard upon that point by one or more of the other Judges and the point shall be decided according to the opinion of the majority of the Judges who have heard the case including those who first heard it

1 Amendment of the Clause—

- (1) The words in pursuance of S 108 of the Government of India Act 1915 were substituted for the words under the provisions of the 13th section of the aforesaid Act of the Twenty fourth and Twenty fifth years of our reign by the amended Letters Patent of 11th March 1919
- (2) By the amendment of the Letters Patent in 1928 the words following the words equally divided till the end of the clause were substituted for the words the opinion of the Senior Judge shall prevail As to the effect of this amendment see Note 12 to S 98 Civil Procedure Code

2 May be performed by any Judge or by any Division Bench thereof—Where the Court takes action in contempt proceedings the rule need not be issued by the Court as an entire body A single Judge or Division Bench has jurisdiction to issue the rule¹

The fact that a matter coming before second appellate Court constituted by a single Judge in High Court is one of difficulty does not necessitate its being referred to a Bench of two Judges²

3 When the Judges are equally divided—The amendment of this clause made in 1928 mentioned in Note 1 ante applies to all cases pending on the date of such amendment¹

4 Reference—In order that a reference may be made under this clause it is not necessary that there must be a difference on a particular point. It may be made even when there is a difference as to the result of the appeal heard by the High Court.¹

A single Judge of the High Court is competent to hear a reference under this clause.²

Where a reference is made only the points of difference and not the whole case should be referred to.³

Civil Procedure

37 And We do further ordain that it shall be lawful for the said High Court of Judicature at [Madras] [Bombay,] Fort William in Bengal from time to time to make rules and orders for the purpose of regulating all proceedings in civil cases which may be brought before the said High Court, including proceedings in its Admiralty, Vice Admiralty, testamentary, intestate and matrimonial jurisdiction respectively. Provided always that the said High Court shall be guided in making such rules and orders as far as possible by the provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure, being an Act passed by the Governor General in Council and being Act No VIII of 1859 and the provisions of any law which has been made amending or altering the same by competent legislative authority for India.

Power to delegate. See Note 1 Pt (2)

1 Rules and Orders—This Clause gives the High Court the power to make rules and orders for the purpose of regulating all proceedings in civil cases which may be brought before the said High Court.¹ But it does not authorise the High Court to frame a rule delegating a judicial function to one of its officers. Thus R 515 A of the Rules and Orders of the Calcutta High Court delegating to the registrar the function of granting leave under Cl 12 ante is ultra vires.²

Where a Rule of the Civil Procedure Code is inconsistent with the Rules of the High Court made in pursuance of the power conferred by this Clause the latter must prevail.³

1 Scope of the Clause—The right of appeal to the Privy Council rests upon this clause and is elaborated in §§ 109 to 112 of the Civil Procedure Code¹. This Clause deals with two categories of cases—(a) judgments, decrees or orders made on appeal and (b) judgments, decrees or orders made in the exercise of original jurisdiction whether by individual Judges or by Division Courts².

There was a conflict of opinion as to whether a party desirous of appealing against a judgment was bound to appeal under Clause 15 ante before appealing to Privy Council where the Judges hearing an appeal were equally divided in opinion³. In view of the amendment of Clause 30 of the Letters Patent made in 1928 this difficulty cannot now occur.

2 In any matter not being of Criminal Jurisdiction—The words 'in any matter not being of Criminal Jurisdiction' govern both the classes of judgments, decrees or orders which are mentioned in this Clause¹. Thus the High Court has no jurisdiction to grant leave to appeal to Privy Council against a judgment of High Court sitting in Criminal appeal from the judgment of a Court of Session². Such leave cannot be granted even by virtue of the words 'when the said High Court shall declare that the case is a fit one for appeal'.

3 Judgment decree or order made on appeal—Where a decree is passed by the High Court on appeal from another tribunal in order that the decree of the High Court may be appealable to the Privy Council the said tribunal must be a Court subject to the superintendence of the High Court within the meaning of Clause 16 *ante*¹.

See Notes 4 to 9 infra.

4 Appealable order made in land acquisition cases—See S 109 Note 2 points (11) and (11a).

9 Order in insolvency—An appeal will lie to the Privy Council against an order of the High Court under S 8 of the Presidency Towns Insolvency Act made on appeal or against an appellate order of the High Court dismissing an Insolvency petition under the Provincial Insolvency Act V of 1920².

10 Decrees on appeal made by High Court under special Acts—See S 109 Note 2 points (9) and (10) and also the unmentioned case¹.

11 Judgment decree or order made in the exercise of original jurisdiction—The words 'original jurisdiction' are only used in contra distinction to the words 'made on appeal' occurring earlier in the Clause¹. See also Notes 12 to 14 infra.

1 Scope of the Clause—The right of appeal to the Privy Council rests upon the clause and is elaborated in Sec 109 to 112 of the Civil Procedure Code¹. This Clause deals with two categories of cases (a) judgments, decrees or orders made on appeal and (b) judgments, decrees or orders made in the exercise of original jurisdiction whether by individual Judges or Division Courts².

There was a conflict of opinion as to whether a party desirous of appealing against a judgment was bound to appeal under Clause 15 ante before appealing to Privy Council when the Judges hearing an appeal were equally divided in opinion³. In view of the amendment Clause 36 of the Letters Patent made in 1928 this difficulty cannot now occur.

2 In any matter not being of Criminal Jurisdiction—The words "in any matter" when the said High Court shall declare that the case is a fit one for appeal

3 Judgment, decree or order made on appeal—Where a decree is passed by the High Court on appeal from another tribunal in order that the decree of the High Court may be appealable to the Privy Council the said tribunal must be a Court subject to the superintendence of the High Court within the meaning of Clause 16 *ante*¹.

See Note 4 to 9 infra

4 Appealable order made in land acquisition cases—See S 109 Note 2 point (11) and (11a)

5 Decree passed by High Court in pursuance of directions by Privy Council—See S 109 Note 5 point (9) and also the undermentioned case¹

8 Order rejecting application for amendment of decree—See S 109 Note 5 point (5)

9 Order in insolvency—An appeal will lie to the Privy Council against an order of the High Court under S 8 of the Presidency Towns Insolvency Act made on appeal¹ or against an appellate order of the High Court dismissing an Insolvency petition under the Provincial Insolvency Act V of 1920².

10 Decrees on appeal made by High Court under special Acts—See S 109 Note 5 points (9) and (10) and also the undermentioned case¹

11 Judgment, decree or order made in the exercise of original jurisdiction—The words "original jurisdiction" are only used in contradistinction to the words "made on appeal" occurring earlier in this Clause¹. See also Notes 12 to 14 infra.

12 Decision under the Income tax Act—It was held by the Privy Council in the undermentioned case¹ that a judgment of the High Court passed on a reference under S 51 of the Income tax Act of 1918 was only advisory and therefore, not appealable to the Privy Council. But it is now provided by S 66 A of the Act amended by the Act XXIV of 1926 that an appeal to the Privy Council will lie in such a case.

Section 66 A of the Income tax Act does not, however, provide for an appeal from an order of the High Court under S 66 Sub S (3) refusing to require the Commissioner to state a case. The High Court of Lahore has held that such an order is final judgment passed in the exercise of original jurisdiction and is therefore appealable.² But the High Court of Rangoon has held that it has no jurisdiction to grant leave to appeal in such a case.³

13 Order made in the exercise of disciplinary jurisdiction under Clause 10 ante—See S 109 Note 2 points (5) and (6) and also the undermentioned cases¹.

14 Order refusing to quash proceedings by writ of certiorari—No appeal lies to the Privy Council under this clause against an order of a Division Bench of the High Court refusing to quash by writ of certiorari the proceedings of Deputy Collector who, as an Income tax officer directed the prosecution of a person under S 133 Indian Penal Code.¹ The reason is that the order is neither one passed on appeal nor one passed in the exercise of original jurisdiction.

15 Judgment decree or order must be final—See Note 4 to S 109 and the undermentioned cases¹.

1. of a Judge of a High Court to the Privy Council is not before not appealable under that Clause¹.

a matter would be incompetent ¹ This Clause only contemplates orders which have been made on appeal by the High Court under Clause 15 ante and such orders as are by reason of the number of Judges who have taken part in the decision not appealable to the High Court ²

The granting of the permission to appeal under this Clause is entirely discretionary with the Court or Judge empowered to give it ³ As a general rule and in the absence of special circumstances or some unusual occasion for its exercise the power of making interlocutory order is one which is not a suitable subject for review ⁴ Thus no leave to appeal to the Privy Council will be granted under this Clause against an order relating to a question of practice such as an order for inspection of documents or against an order refusing an appointment of a receiver ⁵ But where the order complained of involves a matter of real importance such as a question of jurisdiction to make a particular order leave to appeal will be granted ⁶

41 And We do further ordain that from any judgment order or sentence of the said High Court of Judicature at [Madras]

Appeal in criminal cases (Bombay) Fort William in Bengal made in the exercise of original criminal jurisdiction or in any criminal case where any point or points of law have been reserved for the opinion of the said High Court in manner hereinbefore provided by any Court which has exercised original jurisdiction it shall be lawful for the person aggrieved by such judgment order or sentence to appeal to Us Our heirs or successors in Council provided the said High Court shall declare that the case is a fit one for such appeal and under such conditions as the said High Court may establish or require subject always to such rules and orders as We may with the advice of Our Privy Council hereafter make in that behalf

1 Appeal in criminal cases—The wording of this clause is very precise and must be strictly construed ¹ In a criminal case the Court's power to grant leave to appeal to the Privy Council is only under this Clause Thus the High Court has no power to grant leave to appeal from a judgment passed by it in a criminal appeal ² or against an order made by it under S. 118 of the Criminal Procedure Code ³

As to whether an appeal lies against the decision of the High Court after a hearing in pursuance of a certificate granted by the Advocate General under Cl. 96 ante see the under mentioned case ⁴

The right of appeal given by this Clause is subject to the condition that the High Court shall declare that the case is a fit one for appeal the High Court has therefore the duty of satisfying itself before declaring a case fit for appeal that the case falls within the limit prescribed by the Privy Council in Dal Singh v. Emperor, 1 L. R. 44 Cal 876 ⁵

2 Original Criminal Jurisdiction—The jurisdiction exercised by the High Court in a reference for confirmation of sentence and also in an appeal by Government when the jury have acquitted the accused is not of an original nature but is of an appellate character ¹ to Us, Our heirs and successors, in Our or Their Privy Council, a true and correct copy of all evidence, proceedings, judgments, decrees and orders had or made in such cases appealed, so far as the same have relation to the matters of appeal, such copies to be certified under the seal of the said High Court. And that the said High Court shall also certify and transmit to Us, Our heirs and successors, in Our or Their Privy Council, a copy of the reasons given by the Judges of such Court, or by any of such Judges, for or against the judgment or determination appealed against. And We do further ordain that the said High Court shall, in all cases of appeal to Us, Our heirs or successors, conform to and execute, or cause to be executed, such judgments and orders as We, Our heirs or successors, in Our or Their Privy Council shall think fit to make in the premises in such manner as any original judgment, decree or decretal orders, or other order or rule of the said High Court, should or might have been executed.

1 Transmission of records—This Clause expressly requires that the reasons for the decisions of the High Court should be recorded by the Judges and transmitted to the Privy Council for its information ¹. Where an appeal to the Privy Council against a decree has been admitted such proceedings as applications for review of the judgment and the order of the Court thereon ought not to form part of the records to be transmitted to England ².

To all to whom, these Presents shall come, greeting
Whereas by an Act of Parliament passed in the Twenty-fourth and Twenty-fifth Years of the Reign of Her late Majesty Queen Victoria, and called the Indian High Courts Act, 1861, it was, amongst other things, enacted, by section one that it should be lawful for Her Majesty, by Letters Patent under the Great Seal of the United Kingdom, to erect and establish a High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal, for the Bengal Division of the Presidency of Fort William and by section two that such High Court should consist of a Chief Justice and as many Judges, not exceeding fifteen, as Her Majesty might, from time to time think fit to appoint, who should be selected from among persons qualified as in the said Act was declared and, by section eight, that upon the establishment of such High Court as aforesaid the Supreme Court and the Court of Sadar Diwani Adalat and Sadar Nizam Adalat at Calcutta, in the said Presidency, should be abolished, and, by section nine, that the High Court of Judicature so to be established should have and exercise all such civil, criminal, admiralty and vice admiralty, testamentary, intestate and matrimonial jurisdiction, original and appellate, and all such powers and authority for and in relation to the administration of justice in the said Presidency, as Her Majesty might by such Letters Patent as aforesaid grant and direct, subject, however, to such directions and limitations, as to the exercise of original, civil and criminal jurisdiction beyond the limits of the Presidency-town, as might be prescribed thereby, and that, save as by such Letters Patent might be otherwise directed, and subject and without prejudice to the legislative powers in relation to the matters aforesaid of the Governor General of India in Council, the High Court so to be established should have and exercise all jurisdiction, and every power and authority whatsoever in any manner vested in any of the Courts in the same Presidency abolished under the said Act at the time of the abolition of such last mentioned Courts

And whereas it was further declared by section sixteen of the said recited Act that it should be lawful for Us by Letters Patent to erect and establish a High Court of Judicature in and for any portion of territories within Our Dominions in India, not included within the limits of the local jurisdiction of another High Court, to consist of a Chief Justice and such number of other Judges, with such qualifications as were by the same Act required in persons to be appointed to the High Courts established at the Presidencies of Fort William in Bengal, of Madras, and of Bombay, as We from time to time might think fit and appoint and that it should be lawful for Us, by such Letters Patent, to confer on any new High Court which might be so established any such jurisdiction powers and authority as under the same Act was authorized to be conferred on or would become vested in the High Court established in any of the said Presidencies and that subject to the directions of the Letters Patent, all the provisions of the said recited Act relative to High Courts and to the Chief Justice and other Judges of such Courts, and to the Governor General or Governor of the Presidency in which such High Courts were established in any of the said Presidencies and that subject to the directions of the High Court which might be established in the said territories, and to the Chief Justice and other Judges thereof and to the persons administering the Government of the said territories

And whereas upon full consideration of the premises, Her late Majesty Queen Victoria, by Letters Patent under the Great Seal of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, bearing date at Westminster, the Fourteenth day of May, in the Twenty fifth Year of Her Reign, in the Year of Our Lord One thousand eight hundred and sixty-two, did erect and establish a High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal for the Bengal Division of the Presidency of Fort William aforesaid and did constitute that Court to be a Court of Record

And whereas Her late Majesty Queen Victoria, by Letters Patent under the Great Seal of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, bearing date at Westminster the Twenty eighth day of December in the Twenty ninth Year of Her Reign in the Year of Our Lord One thousand eight hundred and sixty five did revoke the said Letters Patent bearing date the Fourteenth day of May in the Year of Our Lord One thousand eight hundred and sixty two but notwithstanding that revocation did continue the said High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal and declared that the Court should continue to be a Court of Record

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS

the Civil Procedure Code*

We have the honour to present this report on the proposals to amend the Code of C P which have been submitted for our consideration by the Government of India and annexed to it a draft Bill amended by us. A detailed account of the alterations introduced in the Bill will be found in the Notes on clauses which form the second part of this Report but we desire by way of preface to make some observations of a general character on the defects in the existing law which appear to us to call for reform and on the more important of those alterations.

1 The Code of C P of 1882 has been in force for 25 years and the experience of those years has shown that the general lines on which it proceeds are sound. The matters in which it has proved defective are for the most part matters of detail and they arise, as it seems to us, mainly from the fact that it is impossible to frame a fixed and rigid Code in such a manner as to sufficiently meet the varying needs of an area so diversified as that to which the Code applies. In our opinion it is essential that there should be some machinery to enable variations to be introduced in procedure to meet the different requirements of different localities as well as to enable defects to be remedied as they are discovered without resort to the tardy process of legislation. We propose to make provision for these purposes by a re-arrangement of the Code. We recommend that matters of mere machinery should be relegated to Rules capable of alteration by each High Court subject to certain checks and that those provisions only should be retained in the body of the Code in which some degree of permanence and uniformity is desirable. This re-arrangement is in accordance with precedent and possesses advantages so obvious that it is needless to enlarge upon them.

inconvenience must arise from this cause in the first instance but this is but a small disadvantage in consequence we cannot think that any should stand in the way

3 The adoption of this principle has necessarily involved a departure from the arrangement of the present Code but in other respects we have advisedly adhered as closely as possible to the existing language the meaning of which is now well understood by Courts and by practitioners. We have refrained from any change in the arrangement of the Code rather than to provide in the new Code for the excessive elaboration of details of procedure tends to clog the actions of the Court and in consequence, to encourage technicalities. For this reason we have made no attempt to embody in the Code a digest of the very numerous decisions on the existing sections. We have made amendments to meet case law only on points on which there is a conflict of authority. And in this connexion we desire to point out that at the present time there is even less justification for the enactment of elaborate provisions in regard to procedure than at the time when the Code of 1882 was passed. Since then the standard of legal efficiency in the mofussil has been materially raised and the principles of procedure are now so well understood that the Courts may be trusted to apply them intelligently in cases for which no provision may be made in terms.

But although we have made the present Code the basis of our draft we have carefully examined the Bill settled by the Select Committee in 1903 and we desire to express our acknowledgments to that Committee for the store of information it contains and for the materials collected in their Report.

Apart from the rearrangement to which reference has been made we have not introduced many changes of a radical character in the Code.

4 The general nature of some of the amendments we recommend may be conveniently illustrated by a brief examination of the extent to which the various stages of a suit will be affected by them.

A To begin with it is hoped that the multiplicity of suits will be further curtailed by the new provisions we have inserted to remove limitations which we regard as needless on the comprehensive aspect and by the wider powers of amendment vested in the Courts under the Bill. An adequate check provided by the power of a Court to interfere where embarrassment is likely to result.

B Increased facilities have been given for the service of process to which further reference is made in the Notes on Clauses. It is hoped that in the gradual introduction of service by post may be found a solution of one of the principal defects in our legal system.

C In our opinion it is more easy than it is in this country should come to trial with all its procedure clearly defined and that case should not be expanded or grounds shifted without reference to the true facts. For this purpose we think that the present system of pleadings in the Mofussil which is too bulky should be improved and we have accordingly in the Rules and Order of pleading which it is hoped will lead to sounder and fairer methods of arriving at the real point in dispute. The forms have been revised and we hope that they will be brought into more general use in the mofussil.

We have not been able within the time at our disposal to make these forms or the other forms in the Appendix to Schedule I complete but this is a matter of detail which can be further considered before the Bill is passed into law.

D It is not possible to secure expedition in the disposal of suits unless the questions of fact on which there is a real contest are narrowed down as far as possible. As a step towards this we have incorporated in the rules an Order in which provision is made for the admission not only of documents but also of fact. It must be left to litigants and their advisers to make adequate use of this Order but it is hoped that the Courts will encourage the use of it since it certainly affords a means whereby the two principal evils of litigation delay and expense can be materially diminished.

E We attach much importance to a proper understanding made by Courts in the mofussil of the procedure prescribed for the first hearing. The Code as it stands makes provision for the examination of parties by the Court and we have altered the language so as to compel the production of documents at the first hearing. In our opinion this will act as a salutary check on the fabrication of documentary evidence.

F The provision relating to the hearing of suits do not call for material alteration but we have thought it well to provide expressly for the cases where a party dies between conclusion of the hearing and delivery of judgment. It would obviously be wrong that such an accident should in any way interfere with the disposal of the case and we have therefore inserted a provision to enable judgment to be pronounced notwithstanding the death.

G A change of importance has been made in regard to decrees. In the first place we have inserted an express provision recognizing the distinction between preliminary and final decrees. We hope in this way to afford facilities for checking the delay that now results from the objectionable practice of leaving for determination in execution on questions which should be decided by the decree. This change should ensure the more expeditious disposal of a class of suits which at present are conspicuous for the delay to which they give rise. Another amendment of importance which we have introduced is in regard to mortgage suits. These are very numerous and involve complicated questions of law. Hitherto some confusion has been caused by the co-existence of the provisions of the Transfer of Property Act and of the Code as regards execution in mortgage suits. We think that the provisions regulating this matter should be dealt with in their entirety in the Code and we have therefore introduced Rule 10 Order XXIV to give effect to our view. We propose that the sections of the Transfer of Property Act affected by this change should be repealed. We desire to call the attention of the Provinces to which that Act does not apply to the effect of these changes.

In our opinion, it is expedient to give greater assistance to the Courts in the framing of decrees. The importance of this branch of procedure cannot be over rated, it is surrounded by difficulties which are a fruitful source of error and consequently of litigation. We have amplified the provisions of the Code to meet this defect, and have introduced some forms which can be adopted to meet the requirements of individual cases. We think that further forms might be added with advantage before the Bill becomes law.

H Amongst other matters, we have removed limitations which at present exist on the power of appointing Receivers, and have conferred a power to appoint Receivers on Subordinate Courts.

5 Execution—The subject of execution is, perhaps one of the most difficult with which we have had to deal. The present system in the mofussil at any rate, tends to excite delay and affords facilities for defeating the claims of creditors. At the same time the creditor often has only himself to blame owing to his own laches in prosecuting his rights. In the Presidency Town the same objections cannot be fairly raised: the system works well, whilst in the mofussil the difficulties arise not so much from the machinery itself as from the defective manner in which it is worked. One of the most fruitful sources of litigation is the setting aside of execution sales on the ground of irregularity in the publication of the sale proclamation. It is notorious that in many of these cases the Court's officer either through negligence or dishonesty has not duly published the proclamation but it is impossible to deal with such cases by any provision in a Code. After a most careful consideration of the subject, we have not seen our way to any very drastic changes in the present system. We have found ourselves unable to accept the some what far reaching proposal of the Committee of 1902 in relation to the execution of decrees by precept but we are so far in accord with the view expressed by that Committee as to have been able to insert in the Bill a clause which enables the Court which passed the decree to issue a precept to any other Court to attach property of the judgment debtor pending execution in the ordinary course. Beyond this we have felt we could not safely go.

We anticipate that there will be a substantial saving of time and consequent expense from the provision requiring that mesne profits shall be ascertained by the Court under the decree itself and not as now in execution proceedings.

Clause 53 has been introduced to settle a long mooted point upon which there is much diversity of judicial opinion as to whether or not questions as to the liability of ancestral property in the hands of a son or other descendant to whom it has come otherwise than by descent for the payment of the debt for which the decree was passed can be determined under Cl 47 of the present Bill corresponding with S 244 of the existing Code. We think they should be.

Other amendments deserving notice relate to (1) the power to break open the outer door of

We regard the changes made in relation to execution as calculated to materially assist the judgment creditor in recovering the fruits of his judgment.

6 Arbitration—Two questions of importance have arisen in connection with this subject. (1) Should any of the sections of the Arbitration Act of 1893 be incorporated into the Code? (2) Should the right of appeal now existing be altered and if so in what direction? We are of opinion that the best course would undoubtedly be to eliminate from the Code all the clauses as to arbitration, and insert them in a new and comprehensive Arbitration Act. There are perhaps difficulties as to this at present. We have determined therefore to leave the arbitration clauses much as they are in the present Code but we have placed them in a Schedule in the hope that at no distant date they may be transferred into a comprehensive Arbitration Act.

In regard to appeals, some change has been suggested by the Judicial Committee as expressed in favour of finality in cases of arbitration will take advantage of every such right in I L R 25 Cal 141 (which followed many other cases in the Calcutta High Court) we have inserted the words "or being otherwise invalid" in Sub-s (c) of S 521 of the present Code. If therefore either party considers the award as invalid on any ground he can apply to have it set aside. We have thought it right to give one appeal from the opinion expressed by the Court.

on a ~~re~~ appeal case under S 517 and to allow one appeal ~~as~~ from order under Ss 521, 523 and 526. And having regard to the rather wide language of the Judicial Committee in Ghulam's case we have further thought it advisable to make it clear that an order granting an application either under S 523 or S 526 is not to be deemed a decree within the meaning of the Code, otherwise there would be a wider right of appeal from orders under these sections than from a decree under S 522. The other alterations deal with the text rather than with any question of policy or principle.

7 Suits relating to public matters—We have inserted a clause to enable actions for public necessities to be brought with the consent of the Advocate General irrespective of special damage. It has been represented to us that such a power is needed and we concur in that view.

8 Public Charities—The suggestion has been made on high authority that some express reference should be made in the Code to the power of the Court to apply Cypres doctrine in the carrying of schemes. But this power would appear to exist already within its proper limits (Mayor of Lyons etc. L R 3 I A 32) and we do not think it necessary to make express reference to it.

It has been represented to us to by more than one gentleman whose opinion is entitled to weight that the power to enquire into the affairs of public charities should be made more extensive. The clause as it stands gives sufficient powers to the Courts to direct accounts and to frame schemes when once a suit has been instituted but it is said that members of the public interested in any public charity ought to have the means of calling for and inspecting accounts without undertaking the burden of a suit at least in the first instance. We are told that revenues derived from charitable trusts are in some cases very large in amount that no accounts of their expenditure are ordinarily rendered and that there is good ground for believing that a considerable portion is mis-spent or squandered on useless objects.

The Hon ble Dr Rashbehary Ghose supports these views and has submitted a clause to give effect to them. It is in the following terms—

93 A (1) The Court may also upon an application by any two or more persons having the like interest and having obtained the like consent direct any trustee of such charity to cause to be prepared and filed in the Court within such time as may be specified in the order a detailed account of the receipts and disbursements in connection with the trust property for a period not exceeding three years next preceding the date of the application.

(2) Such accounts when filed in Court shall be open to inspection by the public.

(3) A trustee who fails to comply with any such direction shall be removed if a suit for that purpose be instituted unless he can show good cause for such failure.

We have given to the subject our best consideration and desire to record our sympathy with the motives of the proposers. But we have not inserted the clause in the Bill because we think that the question is one of policy on which the public opinion of the communities interested should first be obtained. It affects primarily as we understand the Hindu and to a less extent the Muhammadan community. And we should not feel justified in recommending an amendment of the law on such a subject as this unless the leaders of those communities were to express their support of the proposal in unequivocal terms. If it is eventually decided to adopt the amendment then we think that the clause proposed by Dr Ghose may be accepted.

9 Suits by or against firms—Attention is directed to the new provision in regard to suits by or against firms (O XXX) which will we hope prove acceptable to the commercial community.

10 New procedure—We have given power to provide by Rules for Counter claims Third Party Procedure Summary Procedure in suits for debt or liquidated demands as for instance rent or any other definite sum payable under a contract and originating summons. We are of opinion that these forms of proceeding may usefully be adopted in some cases but that this is a matter which should be left for each High Court to decide.

11 Appeals—As regards appeals from original decrees we have departed but slightly from the existing Code. We have thought it advisable to give legislative sanction to the view that no appeal shall lie from a consent decree or as to costs except by leave of the Court but the ⁷ which renders it obligatory upon a decree to appeal from that decree at once on an appeal from the final decree tending to that which is so desirable, which allow an appeal from any order made under Rules from which an appeal is expressly allowed by Rules. We have gone carefully into the question of the cases in which an appeal should be allowed from these orders and our conclusion is expressed in the Rules themselves.

As regards appeals from appellate decrees the only substantial departure from the existing Code is the insertion of Clause 103. Experience has shown the desirability of this clause the effect of which will be to avoid remands with their consequent delay and expense.

12 Rules—The distribution of the provisions of the Code between the body of the Bill and the Rules is a matter on which opinions may well differ. The general principle on which we have proceeded has been to keep in the body of the Bill those provisions which appear to be fundamental and those provisions which confer powers operating outside the Province in which the Court is situated. In some cases we have adopted the plan of inserting leading provisions in the Bill stating in general terms the powers of the Court and of leaving the details to Rules in matters of less importance the provisions have been relegated altogether to Rules. The result of this re-arrangement is to reduce the Act as distinct from Schedules to 155 clauses. The existing order of sequence has speaking generally been maintained but the reduced bulk of the Bill has rendered it no longer necessary to reproduce the division into chapters.

It is proposed to vest the power of making Rules in High Courts subject to the control of Local Governments (or in the case of the Calcutta High Court of the Government of India) but we think it most desirable that in exercising this power the Courts should have the advice of representatives of the various branches of the legal profession and we have accordingly provided that in the case of Chartered High Courts and of Chief Courts Rules shall only be made after those Courts have taken the opinion of a Rule Committee on which there will be representatives of the Bar of Vakeels or Pleaders and in Presidency towns of Attorneys. In the case of other High Courts power has been given to establish such Rule Committees as the Governor General in Council may determine. It is believed that Standing Committees of this kind will be of great value. We have thought it better to require the same sanction as is required by the Indian High Courts Act of 1861 in order that the rule making power should correspond with the power conferred under that Act but we are of opinion that in the interest of uniformity it is expedient that all amendments of Rules should be communicated to the Government of India and to other High Courts before sanction is given to them. This we understand can be effected by executive order.

If our proposal is adopted it will probably be useful to publish annually in every Province some manual corresponding to the English Annual Practice containing—

- (1) the Act,
- (2) all Rules of procedure made under it or under other Acts in the Province,
- (3) notes of decisions on the Act and Rules.

13 We are sensible that there may be defects and flaws in the Bill which we append to this Report. The subject is complicated and technical and the time at our disposal has been limited. We do not doubt therefore that much improvement may be made in the Bill before it is finally passed into law. But in our opinion, it is framed on the right lines. We believe for the reasons we have stated that in any reform of Civil Procedure it is essential to introduce some elasticity, to give wider powers of control to the High Courts and to invest them with a larger discretion in regard to the conduct of cases which come before them. NOTES ON CLAUSES

A—CLAUSES OF BILL

Preliminary

Clause 2—The definitions have been rearranged in alphabetical order

Decree—The importance of the definition of the word decree rests on the fact that by reference to it the right of appeal is determined. The Committee have in the main adhered to the existing definition but they have modified it in two respects and this has involved a slight re-casting of the language. The principal modification aims at permitting an appeal from an adjudication which purports to settle the rights of the parties though it does not completely dispose of the suit. Such an adjudication the Committee describe as a preliminary decree.

The explanation is intercalated to make it clear that a decree may be partly final and partly preliminary. Thus a decree for the recovery of possession of immovable property and for the net profits would be of this mixed character.

The word within has been substituted for mentioned or referred to in with a view to bringing within the definition of decree orders against sureties (see Cl 142) and orders as to Court fees in pauper suits (see O XXXIII R 13) and thus providing for appeals therefrom.

The only other modification is for the purpose of excluding a right of appeal from an order of dismissal for default.

Legal representative—We have inserted a definition of legal representative—an expression which has been variously interpreted by the High Courts as would appear from the reported cases which are not easily reconcilable with one another. See S C W N 813 in which almost all the earlier cases are reviewed.

The Committee trust that the definition which has been added by them will set at rest what owing to the absence of any such definition from the present Code is a somewhat debatable point.

Mesne profits—The Committee have altered the definition of mesne profits so as to exclude from the calculation any increased rents and profits due to improvements made by the person in wrongful possession for which he cannot at present claim compensation from the rightful owner either by way of mitigation of damages or otherwise.

Clause 4—The clause as drafted will it is believed effect all the savings covered by S 4 of the Code. The concluding paragraph of that section is believed to be obsolete and has accordingly not been reproduced. On this point the opinions of Local Governments are invited.

Clause 6—In view of the extended scope of Cl 4 the reproduction of Ss 6 and 7 (except as to the final paragraph of S 6) does not appear to be necessary.

The words or proceedings in suits have been introduced in this clause to negative the view that a Court to which a decree is sent for execution has jurisdiction to execute the decree though the amount exceeds the limits of the pecuniary jurisdiction of the Court a point on which there is a conflict of opinion. (I L R 17 Mad 303 I L R 16 Cal 463 464)

Clause 7—The provisions as to Provincial Small Cause Courts have been rearranged in what is hoped is a more convenient form.

PART I—SUITS IN GENERAL

The provisions contained in S 10 of the Code were first enacted by Act XI of 1836 and were reproduced in the Code of 1859 and in subsequent Codes. In the opinion of the Committee their retention is no longer necessary and they have been omitted.

Clause 11—Res judicata—It is not possible to make a complete exposition of a subject so complex as that of res judicata within the limits of a section of an Act and the Committee think it better to re-enact S 13 as it stands in the Code with such modifications only as experience has shown to be necessary.

The Committee recognize that a proceeding does not come within the language of that section but they think it better not to deal with this point in express terms for the reason that the applicability of the doctrine of res judicata to certain proceedings is not open to doubt, and they foresee that any express reference to proceedings in a crystallised definition might only lead to difficulties (I L R 11 I A 37 and I L R 29 Cal 707).

The word another has been substituted for former as being more in conformity with Indian decisions

Explanation I is new and is intended to affirm the view that the competence of the jurisdiction of a Court does not depend on the right of appeal from his decision

Explanation VI—The inclusion of public rights is to give due effect to suits relating to public nuisances (Cl 91)

Clause 12—This clause is new and is necessitated by the transfer of certain of the provisions of the existing Code to Rules

Clause 13—The provisions as to foreign judgments have been re arranged and as it is hoped stated more clearly

Section 14—The last paragraph has been omitted. It appears to the Committee that it is not possible to maintain this distinction in the case of all Asiatic Courts. The Courts of Japan for instance are entitled to be treated on the same footing as European Courts. They know of no satisfactory distinction which could be drawn so as to give effect to the intention of the existing provisions and they recommend that the paragraph should be omitted and that Courts should rely on the powers given by Cl 13

Place of suing—The provisions under this heading have been collected and re arranged

Clause 16 (a)—The insertion of the words with or without rent or profits is intended to remove any difficulty there may be where the defendant does not reside within the local limits of the Court within whose jurisdiction the property is situate

Clause 18—The Committee have added words to this clause in order still further to restrict the taking of technical objections as to jurisdiction

Clause 20—The Committee have omitted Explanation III of S 17 which has become unnecessary owing to the addition made to sub cl (c) of the words wholly or in part in reference to the cause of action

Clause 24—The words at any stage have been added to remove the difficulty created by the view that a suit cannot be transferred after the hearing has once commenced as to which there is a conflict of decision

Clauses 26—35—The provisions in Chapters III to XVIII of the present Code have been in the main relegated to Rules but such general provisions as are believed to be essential have been preserved in Cl 26 to 35

Clause 32—The Committee have omitted the last paragraph of S 136 of the Code as they think unnecessary to impose penal consequences for a default of the class indicated

PART II—EXECUTION

Clauses 36—74—The bulk of the provisions as to execution will be found in the Rule but the main provisions as to the Courts by which decrees may be executed the questions to be determined by Courts executing decrees the limit of time for execution transferees and legal representatives procedure in execution arrest and attachment the relegation to Collectors of power to execute certain decrees the distribution of assets and resistance to execution have been retained in the body of the Bill

Clause 46—Precept—Though a system of execution based on precepts is in the opinion of the Committee open to grave objection they think the idea may be utilized for the purpose of enabling a decree holder to obtain an interim attachment where there is ground to apprehend that he may otherwise be deprived of the fruits of his decree. They have for this purpose introduced Cl 46 into the Bill. They think it expedient to fix a time limit for the continuance of this interim attachment but at the same time they have empowered the Court to extend the period to meet the exigencies of particular cases

After careful consideration of the Bill under a precept re attachment necessary. Though at first sight it may not be necessary when the issue of attachment is made after careful consideration of the Bill re attachment, having regard to the agency by which execution is carried into effect

Clause 47—The Committee have omitted sub-cl (a) and (b) of S 244 of the existing Code because they are strongly of opinion that questions regarding the amount of any mesne profits or interest should be determined by the decree and not in execution. If this view is accepted it will be possible to exercise an effective control over the action taken by Subordinate Courts in dealing with such matters.

The Committee have re-drafted sub-cl (3) and made it compulsory on the Court to determine questions arising as to representatives of parties. In their opinion it is inexpedient that separate suits should be instituted for the decision of such questions. The delay and expense involved are often very great and result in the needless protraction of litigation.

The explanation is intended to put an end to a conflict of judicial decision.

Section 257 A—The Committee think that S 257 A may be omitted with advantage. It was first enacted by Act VII of 1879 with a view to protect the interests of judgment debtors who are decree holders. The section has given rise to confusion of the High Courts is found in practice to be in accordance with the provisions of S 16 of the Indian Contract Act is amended where it is required.

Clause 51—This clause states generally the powers of the Court in regard to execution leaving the details to be determined by rule. It will be observed that the power to direct immediate execution is no longer restricted to one class of suits but that it is now general in term. Any limitation that may be found necessary will be imposed by rules.

Clause 53—Has been added by the Committee in order to set at rest a question on which the High Courts are divided in opinion. It is true that where a son or grandson takes any ancestral property by survivorship he is bound to pay out of such property all debts of his ancestor not incurred for immoral or illegal purposes but whether the creditor can follow the property in the hands of the son or grandson in execution is a debatable point under the Code. The question is merely one of procedure and the Committee have come to the conclusion that any controversy between the parties with regard to the liability of the son or grandson to pay the debts of his ancestor should be determined in execution it being open to them to raise any objection or defence in such proceedings which they might have raised in a separate suit instituted by the creditor. The clause in question not imposing upon them a greater liability than that imposed by the Hindu law.

Clause 54 (1) second proviso—The object of this proviso is to prevent vexatious forms of resistance to execution which constantly obstruct decree holders in the execution of their decrees.

Clause 55 (2)—The sub-clause is intended to cover the case of certain persons or classes of persons whose summary arrest might as in the case of railway servants be attended with danger or inconvenience to the public.

Clause 61—The Committee have reproduced this Clause from the former Bill (C 269 B) in accordance with what they understand to be the wishes of the Government. But the conditions should in their opinion be so modified as to relieve the Courts from fixing the portion to be released from attachment.

To impose this duty on the Courts would materially increase their work in a matter in regard to which they are not in a position to form the best opinion and would probably result in an undesirable lack of uniformity.

Clause 62 The committee have inserted a new provision to authorize the breaking open of the outer door of a judgment debtor's house. They do not think that it would be safe to extend the operation of this provision to the house of a stranger.

Section 268—This section of the present Code first appears in the Code of 1877. It was not suggested by any decided case and the only explanation offered by the Select Committee, by whom it was introduced is as follows—

‘We think that the proclamation of execution sales should state the incumbrances, (if any) to which the interest about to be sold is liable and we have provided that no Judge etc shall be answerable for error in the proclamation, unless it has been committed dishonestly.’

The Committee are of opinion that, having regard to the provisions of Act XVIII of 1850, the section may safely be omitted.

Clause 64—An explanation has been added to make it clear that claims within the protection of this clause include claims for rateable distribution of assets.

The word another has been substituted for former is being more in conformity with Indian decisions

Explanation I is new and is intended to affirm the view that the competence of the jurisdiction of a Court does not depend on the right of appeal from his decision

Explanation I—The inclusion of public rights is to give due effect to suits relating to public nuisances (Cl 91)

Clause 12—This clause is new and is necessitated by the transfer of certain of the provisions of the existing Code to Rules

Clause 13—The provisions as to foreign judgments have been re arranged and as it is hoped stated more clearly

Section 14—The last paragraph has been omitted It appears to the Committee that it is not possible to maintain this distinction in the case of all Asiatic Courts The Courts of Japan for instance are entitled to be treated on the same footing as European Courts They know of no satisfactory distinction which could be drawn so as to give effect to the intention of the existing provisions and they recommend that the paragraph should be omitted and that Courts should rely on the powers given by Cl 13

Place of suing—The provisions under this heading have been collected and re arranged

Clause 16 (a)—The insertion of the words with or without rent or profits is intended to remove any difficulty there may be where the defendant does not reside within the local limits of the Court within whose jurisdiction the property is situate

Clause 18—The Committee have added words to this clause in order still further to restrict the taking of technical objections as to jurisdiction

Clause 20—The Committee have omitted Explanation III of S 17 which has become unnecessary owing to the addition made to sub cl (c) of the words wholly or in part in reference to the cause of action

Clause 24—The words at any stage have been added to remove the difficulty created by the view that a suit cannot be transferred after the hearing has once commenced as to which there is a conflict of decision

Clauses 26—35—The provisions in Chapters III to XXIII of the present Code have been in the main relegated to Rules but such general provisions as are believed to be essential have been preserved in Cl 26 to 35

Clause 32—The Committee have omitted the last paragraph of S 136 of the Code as they think unnecessary to impose penal consequences for a default of the class indicated

PART II—EXECUTION

Clauses 36—74—The bulk of the provisions as to the Courts by which determined by Courts executing decrees the limit representatives procedure in execution arrest and attachment the relegation to Collectors of power to execute certain decrees the distribution of assets and resistance to execution have been retained in the body of the Bill

Clause 46—Precept—Though a system of execution based on precepts is in the opinion of the Committee open to grave objection they think the idea may be utilized for the purpose of enabling that he may introduced Cl of this interim attachment but at the same time they have empowered the Court to extend the period to meet the exigencies of particular cases

re attachment, having regard to the agency by which execution is carried into effect

Clause 47—The Committee have omitted sub cls (a) and (b) of S 214 of the existing Code because they are strongly of opinion that questions regarding the amount of any moneys profits or interest should be determined by the decree and not in execution. If this view is accepted it will be possible to exercise an effective control over the action taken by Subordinate Courts in dealing with such matters.

The Committee have re-drafted sub cl (3) and made it compulsory on the Court to determine questions arising as to the rights of parties. In their opinion it is inexpedient that separate suits should be instituted for the decision of such questions. The delay and expense involved are often very great and result in the needless protraction of litigation.

The explanation is intended to put an end to a conflict of judicial decision.

Section 257 A.—The Committee think that S 257 A may be omitted with advantage. It was first enacted by Act VII of 1879 with a view to protect the interests of judgment debtors against the exercise of undue pressure by decree holders. The section has given rise to con-

Clause 51.—This clause states generally the powers leaving the details to be determined by rules. It will be immediate execution; no longer restricted to one class of terms. Any limitation that may be found necessary will be imposed by rules.

Clause 53.—It has been added by the Committee in order to set at rest a question on which the High Courts are divided in opinion. It is true that where a son or grandson takes any ancestral property by survivorship he is bound to pay out of such property all debts of his ancestor not incurred for immoral or illegal purposes; but whether the creditor can follow the property in the hand of the son or grandson in execution is a debatable point under the Code. The question is merely one of procedure and the Committee have come to the conclusion that any controversy between the parties with regard to the liability of the son or grandson to pay the debts of his ancestor should be determined in execution it being open to them to raise any objection or defence in such proceedings which they might have raised in a separate suit instituted by the creditor. The clause in question not imposing upon them a greater liability than that imposed by the Hindu law.

Clause 55 (1) second proviso.—The object of this proviso is to prevent vexatious forms of resistance to execution which constantly obstruct decree holders in the execution of their decrees.

Clause 55 (2).—The sub clause is intended to cover the case of certain persons or classes of persons whose summary arrest might as in the case of railway servants be attended with danger or inconvenience to the public.

Clause 61.—The Committee have reproduced this Clause from the former Bill (Cl 269 B) in accordance with what they understand to be the wishes of the Government. But the conditions should in their opinion be so modified as to relieve the Courts from fixing the portion to be released from attachment.

To impose this duty on the Courts would materially increase their work in a matter in regard to which they are not in a position to form the best opinion and would probably result in an undesirable lack of uniformity.

Clause 62. The committee have inserted a new provision to authorize the breaking open of the outer door of a judgment debtor's house. They do not think that it would be safe to extend the operation of this provision to the house of a stranger.

Section 268.—This section of the present Code first appears in the Code of 1877. It was not suggested by any decided case and the only explanation offered by the Select Committee by whom it was introduced is as follows:—

We think that the proclamation of execution sales should state the incumbrances (if any) to which the interest about to be sold is liable and we have provided that no Judge etc shall be answerable for error in the proclamation unless it has been committed dishonestly.

The Committee are of opinion that having regard to the provisions of Act XVIII of 1880, the section may safely be omitted.

Clause 64.—An explanation has been added to make it clear that claims within the protection of this clause include claims for rateable distribution of assets.

Clause 69—The provisions as to Collectors have been placed in a separate schedule. They deal with a special matter and are not of general application.

Clause 73—The Committee have slightly altered the wording of this Clause in order to bring it into line with the Transfer of Property Act, 1882, S. 96.

PART III—INCIDENTAL PROCEEDINGS

The general powers of Courts in regard to commissions have been summarised in Cl. 75 and the detailed provision will be found in the First Schedule.

PART IV—SUITS IN PARTICULAR CASES

The bulk of the corresponding part of the present Code will be found in the Rules. The provisions as to suits by aliens, etc., have been retained in the Bill and a few only of the provisions relating to suits by or against the Government. There is a general clause defining the nature of interpleader suits.

Clause 81—The Committee think that the same measure of protection should be afforded to the defendant where Government undertakes the defence as where the Government makes no application for the purpose, and it appears to the Committee that the proper protection should be that the defendant should be exempt from mesne arrest and his property from mesne attachment. They therefore propose to strike out the proviso from Cl. 269 and to alter sub Cl. (a) of Cl. 270 so as to give effect to this.

Clause 86 (2)—The Committee have inserted words in this sub clause to make it clear that the decision of the Government is final and not open to question by the Court. A doubt had been raised on the point.

PART V—SPECIAL PROCEEDINGS

Arbitration and suits relating to public matters have been discussed in the former part of this report.

Clause 92 (Public Charities)—As a doubt has been expressed in at least one reported decision whether S. 539 is or is not mandatory, the Committee have thought it desirable, in order to settle this question, to introduce sub cl. (2).

PART VI—SUPPLEMENTAL PROCEEDINGS

Here again a leading provision has been retained in the Bill, and the details of procedure have been relegated to Rules.

PART VII—APPEALS

Clause 97—The Committee have inserted an express provision to compel litigants to appeal from preliminary decrees, and have estopped them, on their failure to do so, from raising objections to such decrees in appeals from final decrees. On this point they accept the unanimous opinion of the Calcutta High Court. They think it unreasonable that parties should allow proceedings to be carried on to their final stage and large costs to be incurred if they intend to rely upon objections which could be taken at an earlier stage.

Clause 99—The Committee have extended this clause in order to give the Courts a larger discretion in dealing with irregularities in proceedings, and they have inserted express words to meet the point decided in I L R. 26 Bom 259 and I L R. 27 Mad 80 and in a recent decision of the Calcutta High Court.

Clause 100—The Committee have struck out the word 'specified' in the expression "specified law or usage," as being in their opinion redundant.

Clause 105—Though the remarks of the Privy Council in Moheshur Singh v The Bengal Government (7 Moo. I A 283) are wide enough to embrace an appeal from an order of remand the Committee think those orders were probably not in their Lordships' contemplation when they condemned the view that a failure to appeal from an interlocutory order should deprive the person aggrieved of his right to object to such order when subsequently appealing from the decree. And the Committee think there are good reasons on the score of delay and expense for treating an appeal from an order of remand as a special case and precluding an appellant from taking, on an appeal from decree any objection that might have been urged by way of appeal from an order of remand.

The Committee have deleted the word such to remove a difficulty it creates (10 Moo L.A. 340, 413 12 Moo I.A. 157)

PART VIII—REFERENCING REVIEW AND REVISION

These provisions are not substantially altered. They are summarised in this Part and the details are in rules.

PART IX—CHARTERED HIGH COURTS

This is not materially altered.

PART X—RULES.

See observations in the former Part of this report.

PART XI—MISCELLANEOUS

The Committee have omitted S. 646 as they see no reason specially to differentiate the case of a Registrar and it is believed that in practice no use is made of the section.

Clause 137—The Committee have inserted the words 'or other person' after the word 'officer' in sub Cl. (b) in order to give the High Court power to relieve the officers of the Courts of the work of administering affidavits in cases in which it may be necessary to do so. It has been represented to them by the Calcutta High Court that this relief is much required.

Clause 140—The terms of S. 583 of the Code do not justify the practice founded on it, and the Committee have therefore recast the section so as to bring it into closer conformity with that practice.

Clauses 145 and 148 to 150 are new. They are intended to enlarge the discretion of Courts.

B—RULES

The Committee think that the division of the rules into orders will be found convenient for the purposes of citation and reference.

Under Cl. 35 the Court has full power to apportion costs. The Committee understand that in practice the provision of S. 26 is not operative in the mufassil and that part of the section which related to costs has not therefore been reproduced.

O I, R. 3 (S. 28)—The Committee realize that the words 'in respect of the same matter' in R. 3 have given rise to great difficulty and they think it advisable to follow the wording of the English rule and to omit them.

O I, Rr. 5 and 7—The Committee thought that it was desirable to add O XVI, Rr. 5 and 7, of the English rules.

O III, R. 2 (S. 37)—The provisions of existing Codes which are represented by this clause are in somewhat different terms and are limited to persons holding general powers of attorney within certain local limits. The Committee think it unnecessary to preserve these limitations and have made the sub clause general. It follows that the present Cl. 37 (b) becomes unnecessary. It is included in sub Cl. (a).

The last paragraph of S. 37 has been omitted as no longer necessary.

O III, R. 4 (S. 33)—The Committee are uncertain whether it is necessary to make a reference to the Court of the Judicial Commissioner of Sindh. The point is one for the Government of Bombay.

[illegible]

0.1 at a time - The other 0.9 are not in the same way

2) - The Commission on the part of the Executive Branch in the Department of the Interior has been directed to conduct a study of the problem of the Indian population in the United States. The study is to be completed by the end of the year. The results of the study will be reported to the President.

The Commission has also given a part of the work in the field of human rights to the Economic and Social Council, which has set up a Commission on Human Rights, which is now working on a draft of a Declaration of the Rights of Man and of the Citizen, which is now being discussed by the General Assembly of the United Nations.

The habeas corpus is not a remedy to be granted by the Executive or the Government, but a remedy to be granted by the Courts. The Government is not bound to grant it, but the Courts are bound to grant it if the Government is not bound to grant it.

O IX S 104 c (b) (1) formed part of a CO of Art VIII of 1902 and in common with that that the Court approved. As a para. 104 however, in leading to a summary of the view of the provision to settle on a general basis of the bill and its proceedings, has not been taken when a decision is not made. I am sure to have been to prove which the Court has made.

(see J. L. 22 11 19)

O I Y J 10-11, Committee have inserted words to make it clear that a decree can be made by the Council of the League of Nations, and that the Council of the League of Nations is the only authority upon the point and the Committee think that the matter is settled in this sense.

O XI—Is terrojalorus—The provisions in the Code as to discovery are based on the Rules 111, which procedure in force at the time when it was passed. Since then the English procedure has been amended and is now contained in O XXXI. This order has in effect been adopted in the Rules regulating the procedure on the original side of the High Courts of Calcutta and Bombay and has it is believed been found to work satisfactorily in practice.

On the other hand in mutassil Courts little has yet been made of the machinery to discover and the Committee therefore think the Rules of the Calcutta and Bombay High Courts on the former subject may be easily adopted without risk of disturbing a procedure with which the mutassil Courts have become familiarized.

This will secure uniformity of practice and also the advantage of the commentary on the Rules prescribed by the English decisions.

O XIII—admissions—The Committee think the practice of admissions may with advantage be extended to facts as well as to documents.

The procedure is not compulsory but its adoption would result in cheaper and expediting litigation and it is hoped that its use will be encouraged by the Courts.

O A I R 6 (S 150) — There does not seem to be any real conflict as to whether an appeal lie though at first sight it might appear otherwise. It has therefore been considered unnecessary to provide expressly for an appeal.

O A I R 11 (S 210) — The Committee have added words to sub-rule (1) of this Rule in order to override the ruling of the Bombay High Court in the case of Pajku Gound Paranjpe v Dipkhai (I L R 4 Bom 36) as the practice inculcated by that ruling seems to prevail only in the Presidency of Bombay and not in the rest of India.

O A I R 11 (S 214) — The amendments are based on the rulings contained in the decisions of the High Court of Allahabad in I L R 6 All 30455 and I L R 11 All 161.

Having regard to the opinion expressed in I L R 21 Mad at page 463 we have thought it right to make it clear that title vests without an instrument of transfer. To require a transfer now might throw a cloud over numberless titles which rest on the assumption sanctioned by long practice that no instrument of transfer was necessary.

O A I R 18 (S 216) — The Committee have introduced an amendment to give effect to the view that appeals from decrees relating to set off should lie to the Courts to which appeals in respect of the original claim would lie.

O A I R 19 — The Committee have omitted certain words from the last paragraph of S 25 of the Code in order to make it clear that the Court cannot recognize a payment or adjustment which has not been effected for any purpose whatsoever. It follows that an uncertified payment or adjustment cannot operate to prolong the period of limitation for applying for execution under the Limitation Act.

O A I R 3 — The Committee have inserted this rule to provide for cases which they are told are not uncommon of an estate being situated within the jurisdiction of two or more Courts. There are decisions on this point but they are not harmonious and the Committee think it well to determine the law definitely.

O A I R 11 (S 256) — The Committee have omitted the limitation imposed under existing Code on oral applications for immediate execution. They see no reason why this limitation should be preserved.

O A I R 11 (e) — The Committee have not given effect to the suggestion that this should be limited to payments and adjustments which the creditor executing the decree is bound by law to recognize as this would remove a valuable incentive to state truth. What payments have been made (see I L R 20 Bom 286).

O A I R 20 — The Committee have omitted the words "or his or their representatives". This will be covered by the general clause.

O A I R 23 (4) explanation and illustration (d) (S 246) — This addendum has been introduced in accordance with the views of the Calcutta and Allahabad High Courts as expressed in the cases of Hurji Daj Guho v Din Doyal Guho (I L R 9 Cal 479) and Ram Sukh Dass v Fota Bai (I L R 14 All 337).

O A I R 26 (S 248) — The Committee have omitted the reference to a decree passed on appeal for that is ordinarily the decree to be executed [Aristo Amhar Roy v Rajah Burroda Saunt Roy (14 Moo I 1465) and Muhammad Salaman Khan v Muhammad Lar Khan (I L R 11 All 267)].

O A I R 32 (S 260) — The Committee have omitted in this rule all reference to a decree for the recovery of a wife for there can be no such decree under the law as a wife cannot be treated as a chattel to be delivered over to the husband. Where any third person prevents the wife from returning to her husband the latter may obtain an injunction against him which may be enforced in case of disobedience either by the imprisonment of the defendant or by the attachment of his property or by both.

O A I R 34 — Section 261 has been recast so as to bring it into conformity with the chronological order of events and a provision has been added to meet the requirements of the Indian Registration Act.

O XXI, Rr 44 and 45—These provisions were inserted in Bill No II with the approval of the Government of India, and the Committee have therefore reproduced them in the present edition of the Bill

O XXI, R 56—The purpose of this Rule is to put an end to doubts which from time to time have arisen as to the continuance of an attachment by reason of the practice of "striking off proceedings" or "removing proceedings from the file" for which there is no justification in the Code

O XXI, R 57 (S 278)—Though the execution of mortgage decree is expressly incorporated in the Code, the Committee still think that claims and objections arising out of the execution of such decrees should not be the subject of summary procedure under this and the following Rules but should be determined in the ordinary course

This does not imply that the procedure under the latter Rules as to resistance to possession or dispossession does not apply

O XXI R 76—In Rr 76 and 83 express reference has been made to a resale so as to make it clear that the default mentioned in those rules will attract the consequence indicated in R. 70. In this connection reference may be made to I L R 7 Cal 337

O XXI R 83—The Committee have altered this Rule in order to prevent its being obligatory on the Court to forfeit the deposit in every case. The Rule as it stands at present has caused hardship in certain circumstances, vide the case of Sambasita Ayyar v Tydnada Sami (I L R 25 Mad 535)

O XXI, R 88 (S 310 A)—Words have been added so to make it clear that a purchaser acquiring a title before the sale in execution can claim the benefit of the Rule. In other respects the Committee consider it advisable to adhere to the wording of the section

The proposal that the sale should be set aside on payment of the purchase money instead of the amount specified in the proclamation is in their opinion, fraught with danger. It would be obviously useless unless subsequent protection were given to the property and such protection might lead to collusion which would be most prejudicial to the decree holder

O XXI R 89—The Committee have struck out the provisions as to irregularity in attaching the property as such irregularity obviously cannot affect the price

They have introduced the words 'rateable distribution of assets' to clear up a doubt which has been the subject of discussion in several cases.

They have altered the language of the proviso in order to meet the doubts which have been raised as to the evidence upon which the Court can act [Tasadduk Rasul Khan v Ahmad Husain (I L R 21 Cal 66)]

O XXI, R 91—The Committee think it proper to retain the provisions of the Code which make it necessary for the Court to confirm the sale in each case

O XXI, R 92 (S 315)—The Committee have added words at the commencement of the clause in substitution of the last paragraph of the section which thus becomes unnecessary

O XXI, R 93 (S 316)—The Committee have preserved the limitation of three years from the date of the certificate as suggested by the Select Committee in Bill No II. This clears up a doubt as to the time from which limitation begins to run which has been discussed on more than one occasion

O XXII, R 1—The Select Committee struck out two of the four illustrations to S. 361, and the Committee think the remaining illustrations may also be deleted as they are too obvious to serve any useful purpose.

O XXI, R 3—The Committee have introduced words in order to conform to the language of the Indian Limitation Act, 1877, as amended

O XXII, R 5 (S 366)—Though or is the word used in the Code of 1852 and the Code of 1877, in the Bill of 1877 the word and is used, and it appears to the Committee clear that and is required by the context. If and is not used then the contrast with the preceding section is lost.

The explanation can be omitted having regard to the definition of legal representative inserted by the Committee.

O XXXIII R 3—The Committee have considered it expedient to alter the language of S. 375 so as to recognize the power of a Court to enquire into and to record a disputed compromise.

O XXXI R 1 (3) (S 380)—The Committee have deleted the last words of this sub rule because the nature of the suit excludes the possibility of the property in suit being immoveable.

O LXXIX R 2—The Committee have enlarged the language of the Code so as to allow of service by post on corporations having a registered office and by these means the rule is brought into line with the provisions of the Indian Companies Act. Companies authorized to sue and be sued in the name of an officer or of a trustee must be very few if indeed any exist and they do not appear to the Committee to call for special treatment.

O XXXV R 1—The Committee have adopted with the necessary alterations the English procedure in relation to suits against firms. This new procedure has been in force for some time in the Presidency towns of Calcutta and Bombay and has worked satisfactorily.

It is hoped that its general application will be found useful by the mercantile community, for the rules remove technical obstacles which under the present procedure may seriously impede this class of litigation as where a partner has died.

O XXXVII R 3 (4)—This is based on S. 443. The Committee think it necessary to ensure that notice should reach one interested in the minor's welfare and this rule aims at securing this result. The form of application and of notice in conformity with this sub rule will be inserted in the schedule of forms.

O XXXII R 9—The Committee think it expedient that where a guardian insists on his right to be appointed next friend in the place of another there should be power to require him to become liable or give security for costs in the suit previously incurred.

O LXXXII R 15—The Committee have extended this rule so as to cover the case of a person incapacitated from protecting his interests by reason of his mental weakness or of his being a deaf mute.

O LXXXIII R 1 (S 401)—The Committee have not preserved S. 402. In the light of the case law it is misleading so far as it suggests that a suit will lie for loss of caste or abusive language and they can see no sufficient reason for withholding from a pauper a right to sue as such in respect of defamation or assault.

O LXXXIV R 1—The proviso to S. 85 of the Transfer of Property Act 1882 has given rise to certain doubts which the Committee have sought to remove by substituting for it the words now added with a view to making it clear that a person not a party is not bound by a decree [Rani Nath Rani v. Lachman Ram (L R 2 I A 193)].

The explanation has been inserted in order to remove doubts which have arisen from the conflict of authorities on the point.

O LXXXIV R 2 (2)—The Committee have inserted the words if necessary before re transfer as according to mufassil practice a re transfer is not ordinarily required and they think this practice should not be altered.

O LXXXIV R 3—The Committee have omitted the provision as to the defendant paying money to the plaintiff. They think it better that in every case he should pay it into Court.

O LXXXIV, R 9—This rule is new. It is a recognition of existing practice and remedies an obvious omission in the Transfer of Property Act 1882.

O XXXIV, R 11—The Committee have inserted this rule in compliance with the suggestion of the Privy Council in Gopi Narain Khanna v Bansidhar (L R 32 I A 123). This clause was in the Transfer of Property Bill, but was omitted by the Select Committee on that Bill on the ground that it ought, to find a place in the Civil Procedure Code.

O XXXV, R 3—The Committee think that the institution of the interpleader suit affords a sufficient reason for the stay of other litigation in reference to the same subject matter and they have modified S 476 so as to give effect to this view.

O XXXVII, R 1—As Chapter XXXIX of the Code is transferred into rules, the Committee have not reproduced paragraph (c) of S. 538 as its appropriate place will be in rules under the Presidency Small Cause Courts Act, 1882.

O XXXVII R 2—The explanation to S 532 was inserted to negative the effect of the meaning, as it stands, is obscure. The Committee have added words in the body of the rule which will remove the ambiguity aimed at.

O XXXVIII, R 6 (S 483)—The Committee have omitted the words "property within the jurisdiction of the Court," as they have caused a conflict of decision and they think, as a matter of policy there should not be the restriction these words suggest.

O XXXVIII, R 13—This rule represents the views of the Government of India as expressed in the former Bill.

O XXXIX, R 6—Words have been added to section 498 so as to empower the Court to order a sale of securities where that state of the market requires such a course.

O XL—Having regard to their standard of efficiency, the Committee see no reason to withhold from Subordinate Judges the power to appoint Receivers. They therefore propose that S 505 of the Code should no longer be retained, for its effect in practice is often to defeat the purpose for which an application is made.

O XLI—S 554 of the Code has been omitted as unnecessary.

O XLI, R 5 (S 545)—The Committee have added words to S 545 in order to make it clear that execution can be stayed by an Appellate Court, the more necessary to have an express power to [Balkishan Sahu v Ahugnu, (I L R 31 Cal 723)]. The Committee have introduced express words authorizing an ex parte stay, as the need for such an order constantly arises in practice.

The Committee have modified this rule in order to make it clear that property has previously been taken in execution [See (I L R 33 Cal 927)].

O XLI, R 7—The Committee have added this clause to meet particularly the case where the litigant does not quarrel with the decree but appeals from an order passed in execution of that decree (I L R 28 Cal 734).

O XLI, R 23—After due consideration the Committee have thought it safer not to give legislative sanction to the views enunciated in Habib Baksh v Baldeo Prasad, (I L R 23 All 167). The power of reversal and remand is liable to be abused, while the procedure under S. 506 is free from this liability and at the same time furnishes an effectual remedy.

The words at the end of the rule have been added to clear up a doubt which is stated by the Select Committee to exist as to whether evidence recorded at the original trial can be used on the trial after remand.

O XLI, R 34—The Committee consider it most important that an Appellate Court should have the fullest power to do complete justice between the parties.

The illustration indicates a type of case for which provision is intended to be made.

O XLII R 1 (i)—The extension of time for the payment of mortgage money is obviously of much greater moment to the mortgagor than to the mortgagee. Therefore the Committee have provided for an appeal from an order refusing but not from an order granting an extension of time.

O XLIII, R 1 (S 592)—Words have been added to avoid the conclusion at which the Madras High Court has recently arrived (LLR 26 Mad 369)

O XLV, R 1—The words or the construction of a document which construction may affect the merits have been omitted as they appear to be sufficiently covered by the power to refer any question of law

NOTES ON SCHEDULES

SCHEDULE IV

The Committee have amended S 22 of the Limitation Act to supply an omission which has been noticed by the High Courts namely the absence of any provision with regard to a devolution of interest pendente lite where it takes place otherwise than by reason of death. The section as amended will include not only cases in which a devolution of interest takes place pendente lite owing to death but also to other cases in which such devolution occurs

The Code [S 312] contemplates the confirmation of a sale of immovable property immune strictly on the expiration of the thirty days allowed by Art 166 of the Limitation Schedule. But the period allowed for an application to set aside a sale on the ground that the judgment debtor has no saleable interest therein is sixty days [Art 172]. The result is that in some Provinces the confirmation of a sale is delayed for sixty days whilst in other Provinces sales which have been already confirmed are liable to be set aside. The Committee think that in the matter of limitation an application under S 313 should be brought into line with an application under S 311 and they therefore propose to repeal Article 172 and to amend Article 166 so as to include applications under S 313

The Hon ble Mr ERLE RICHARDS

The Hon ble Mr ERLE RICHARDS—My Lord I have the honour to present the Report of the Select Committee on the Bill to consolidate and amend the laws relating to the procedure of the Courts of Civil Judicature and annexed to it a copy of the Bill in which the amendments suggested by the Committee are shown in italicised type

It will be seen from these papers that the Committee recommend no alterations of a radical kind in the Bill as settled by the Committee which sat at Simla during the past summer. There are a number of amendments of detail suggested which taken together effect a substantial improvement but the main lines of the Bill have been accepted

The principal feature of novelty in the Bill as introduced is the re-arrangement of the clauses and the relegation of minor provisions to a schedule which can be amended or added to by High Courts subject to the advice of Rule Committees. The proposal has met with general acceptance. Local Governments and High Courts are at one in thinking that it will effect a valuable improvement in the machinery of our civil procedure and the Committee agree with them

"Two amendments have been introduced in that part of the Bill which deals with the rule making power. The first is the insertion of a proviso that Rules before being made are to be published with the result that under § 23 of the General Clauses Act there will be an opportunity for the public to criticise any proposals before they become law. This suggestion was put forward by the British Indian Association and the Committee think that it is one of value. The second change is in the composition of the Rule Committees. It has been pointed out that the Rule Committees ought to have among their members some gentlemen in touch with mufassil practice. The Bill as introduced provided that one of the Judges on the Committee should have had mufassil experience but the Committee think that this in itself is hardly sufficient. They suggest therefore that there should be a Subordinate Judge on each Rule Committee and that there should be power also to appoint a Vakil or pleader practising in the mufassil. They further recommend that the Bill should not come into operation at once on passing but that there should be an interval allowed in order that the public and profession may make themselves acquainted with the new arrangement.

The amendments of the other provisions of the Bill do not call for any special mention on the present occasion. Many of them are in the nature of corrections or improvements of drafting. Since the Bill was introduced in this Council it has been once more examined and revised by some of our colleagues and the criticisms on it have been carefully considered and digested in the Legislative Department. In that way the work of the Committee has been much lessened. This is the fourth Committee which has now deliberated on civil procedure and it is safe to say that there is no conceivable point which has not been fully discussed during those deliberations. I would point out my Lord that the present Committee like the Simla Committee are unanimous in their approval of this Bill.

REPORT OF THE SELECT COMMITTEE

We, the undersigned Members of the Select Committee to which the Bill to consolidate

and of all the High Courts in India. In our opinion it will give a much needed elasticity to our judicial procedure and will enable minor defects to be remedied as they arise without resort to the Legislature, and we recommend it to the Council. We have introduced two changes into Part X of the Bill relating to the rule making powers. In the first place we have provided that Rules must be published before they are made, the result will be that S 23 of the General Clauses Act will apply and that there will be an opportunity for the public to offer criticisms on any proposals for alterations of procedure before those proposals are finally passed into law. We have also made a change in the composition of the Rule Committees. It has been suggested by more than one authority that the interests of the mofussil were not sufficiently represented on these Committees as constituted under the Bill. We recognise the force of this criticism and have accordingly provided that there shall be a Subordinate Judge on each Rule Committee and that the Vakil or Pleader on the Committee shall be enrolled, but need not be practising in the High Court, so that a Vakil or Pleader practising in the mofussil will be eligible. We further recommend that the Bill shall not come into operation until the 1st January 1909 in order that the public and the profession may have an opportunity of making themselves familiar with the re-arrangement.

8 We have carefully considered the criticisms on the Bill as introduced and the changes which we recommend are summarised below. It will be observed that we do not advise any departures of importance from the conclusions of the Special Committee which met at Simla during the past summer. That Committee had before it a mass of opinions from judicial and other authorities all over India dealing with every point of civil procedure, and they arrived at their conclusions only after a careful consideration of those opinions. We should not therefore in any case have dissented from them without strong reason, but in our judgment those conclusions are right and we accept them. Since the Bill was introduced it has been again examined and revised by some of our colleagues and the criticisms on it have been digested in the Legislative Department. By these means our deliberations have been much expedited.

CLAUSES

Clause 2 (2)—The definition of "decree" has been generally accepted

Clause 11—We have restored the word 'former' and have inserted explanation I on the suggestion of Sir Bhashyam Iyengar to remove a conflict of authority as to the meaning of the expression "former suit."

Explanation V has been omitted. We think it is liable to misconstruction and that the law is well established apart from the explanation.

Clause 22—We have omitted Cl 22 of the Bill as introduced, as in our opinion it is unnecessary. We think that sufficient provision is made for transfers under the succeeding Clause.

which compelled applications to the High Courts
 rict Court This in our opinion merely duplicates

Clause 25—Cl 25 of the Bill as introduced has been rendered unnecessary by the omission of Cl 22 We have accordingly taken it out and have put in its place a new clause taking Power for the Governor General in Council to transfer cases from one High Court to another of the Code of Criminal Procedure 1898

Clause 34—The words not being a decree for the enforcement of a mortgage or charge have been omitted in this clause and also where in order to make it clear that a decree for the payment of money does not include a decree for sale in enforcement of a mortgage or charge

o has obtained an interim attachment the determination of the attachment ve altered this clause accordingly There

Clause 51—We have added a power to execute a decree by appointing a receiver on the suggestion of the Advocate General of Madras

Clause 54—We have restored S 265 of the existing Code It has been pointed out that the provision in the Bill as introduced was opposed to the practice in some provinces under which all partitions of land paying revenue to Government are effected by the revenue authorities

Clause 55—We have carefully considered the provision as to breaking open dwelling houses and have come to the conclusion that it should be limited to dwelling houses in the occupancy of the judgment debtor

Clause 57—Sub Cls (2) to (6) have been relegated to Rules (O XXI R 39)

Clause 59—The remaining provisions as to the release of judgment debtors have been brought up from the Rules and incorporated in this clause

Clause 60 (1) (g)—We have omitted the words military or civil because they appear to be of no value The word pensioners of itself covers every class of pensioner

The exemption has been extended so as to cover pensions granted out of any service family pension fund notified in that behalf by the Governor General in Council

Clause 60 (1) (i)—This has been extended at the request of the Government of Burma

Clause 61—The words be exempted from liability to attachment or sale in execution of a decree have been substituted for the words be released from attachment and shall be free from liability to sale in execution of a decree in order to make it clear that the exemption extends to produce which has been hypothecated

Clause 62—has been brought into line with Cl 55 as now amended

Clause 66 (1)—The wording has been altered on the suggestion of the Honble Mr Justice Akinin so as to put the meaning beyond doubt

Clause 79 (2)—This saving was accepted by the Select Committee of 1903 and we think it desirable to have it in the Bill in order to avoid possible doubt

Clause 92 (1)—It has been suggested to us by several authorities that Local Governments should be empowered to invest Courts subordinate to District Courts with power to try cases under this clause and we think that this suggestion should be accepted

The necessary words have been added

Clause 96 (3) of the Bill as introduced has been omitted. The case law on the subject is sufficiently clear and considerable objection has been taken to the sub clause.

Clause 98—The wording of the provision has been altered. It now deals only with the decision on the point of law referred.

Clause 101—Sub (C) (1) (i) has been added in order to give a right of appeal against the decision of the Court on a special case. This is in accordance with the recommendation of the Special Committee but appears to have been omitted from the Bill by mistake.

Clause 107—Sub (C) (1) is new. We think it desirable to have in the body of the Code a general provision about the powers of an appellate Court.

Clause 134 is new. It supplies an omission.

Clauses 142 and 143 have been brought up from the Rules. We think they should be in the body of the Code.

Clause 144—Sub (C) (2) has been added on the suggestion of the Calcutta High Court. We agree that re titution which may be obtained by application under this clause should not be made the subject of a separate suit.

SCHEDULE I

Order I

Rules 1 and 3—The words 'act or' have been added before the word 'transaction'.

Rule 3—This has been amplified so as to bring it into line with R. 1.

Rule 5—The words 'cause of action' have been struck out.

They have given rise to considerable difficulty in England.

Rule 8—We have on the suggestion of the Advocate General of Madras added the words 'or for the benefit of' after the words 'on behalf of'.

Order III

Rule 4 (3)—We have adopted the alternative draft suggested by the Simla Committee in their report.

Order VI

Rule 19—We have substituted the words 'he shall not be permitted to amend' as the case may be for the words 'such order to amend' become void.

Order VII

Rule 17 (1)—On the suggestion of the British Indian Association the word 'account' has been substituted for the word 'book'.

Order IX

Rule 4—We have struck out the provisions about limitation contained in this rule. These provisions will be incorporated in the Bill to consolidate and amend the Limitation Act.

Rule 13—We think it necessary to provide specially for cases in which it may not be possible to set aside the decree as against the applicant only.

Order XX.

Rule 18—This Rule has been altered so as to correspond with the amended C1 54.

Order XXI.

Rule 1 (2) —This sub rule has been inserted on the suggestion of the British India Association

Rule 7 —The words "or of the jurisdiction of the Court which passed it" have been omitted. In our opinion a Court executing the decree of another Court ought not to go into any question as to the jurisdiction of the Court which passed it

Rule 20 —This Rule is new. It is inserted in order to make it clear that the provisions as to cross decrees and cross claims apply to the case of mortgage decrees. The Rule also makes it clear that the expressions "decree for the payment of money" and other similar expressions in the Code do not include a decree for sale in enforcement of a mortgage or charge

Rule 45 —We have decided to recommend the omission of this Rule from the Bill. It was taken from the Bill of 1903 but met with considerable criticism, and strong objection has been taken to it by the Madras Board of Revenue and the British India Association. In our opinion the procedure prescribed in this Rule is cumbersome and there would be little or no practical advantage from it

Rule 90 —The words 'or fraud' have been added after the word 'irregularity'. We think that the existing law as contained in S 311 of the present Code is defective, the omission in the section to refer to fraud as a ground for setting aside a sale having led some Courts to hold that an order on an application setting up fraud as a ground for relief is, unlike an order made on an application under S 311, a decree and open to second appeal. This result, which often involves a considerable prolongation of these proceedings, is in our opinion undesirable. We think that applications for the setting aside of sales should, so far as the procedure applicable to them is concerned, stand on the same footing whether they are based on the ground of irregularity or on the ground of fraud

Rules 95 and 96 —We have struck out the provisions about limitations contained in these rules. We agree with the Hon'ble Mr Justice Miller that it would be more appropriate to incorporate them in the Limitation Act, and we have suggested their incorporation in the Bill to amend and consolidate that Act which is now before Council

Rules 3 and 4 —Rr 3 and 4 have been amended so as to provide that if no application for substitution is made within the time allowed by law the suit shall abate. We have struck out the provision that the Court may make an order declaring the abatement as in our opinion it is unnecessary and likely to give rise to difficulty

Rule 6 —The provision as to ante dating the judgment has been struck out and in its stead we suggest a provision to the effect that the judgment shall have the same force and effect as if it had been pronounced before the death took place. In our opinion this is all that is required

Order XXXIV

Some of the Rules in this Order have been re drafted

The Transfer of Property Act does not contain any provision for the passing of a final decree in cases where payment is made in accordance with the terms of the preliminary decree. This is in our opinion an omission and we have provided in Rr 3 (1), 5 (1) and 8 (1) for the passing of final decrees in such cases

We approve of the proposal to repeal the provisions of S 93 of the Transfer of Property Act. We think that those provisions have worked considerable hardship and are not really needed. The first part of the section enacts that a mortgagee shall not bring the mortgaged property to sale otherwise than by instalment. This precludes the mortgagee from selling with the mortgage debt it is in mortgagee to purchase the equity. This is a distinct and separate transaction, and we can see no reason why it should not be equally competent to him to have it sold in satisfaction of any claim which he may have against the mortgagor unconnected with the mortgage (Ahmarajmal v Daim I L R 32 Cal 296, Lisel v Peete, 1902 A C 461) In so far as it precludes the mortgagee from selling the property under a judgment for the mortgage debt it serves no useful purpose. We understand that the provision was enacted to prevent mortgagees from suing their mortgagors on the debt as such and in execution selling the mortgagors interest in the property. We however think that no such provision was needed seeing that under the law as it stood prior to the Act the Court never allowed the sale of a bare equity of redemption under a judgment on the covenant (Syed Iman v Raycoomar 23 W R 187 Ahmarajmal v Daim I L R 32 Cal 246).

Order XL

Rule 4.—We have re-drafted this rule on the lines of S 18 (4) of the Provincial Insolvency Act 1907. We think that the power to imprison receivers is too wide and should be omitted.

Order XLI

Rule 24. We have struck out this rule as in our opinion it is unduly restrictive.

Order XLIII

Rule 1. We suggest that there should be appeals from orders pronouncing judgment against a party under Order VIII Rule 10 Order X Rule 4 and Order XVI Rule 20.

The orders are under the present law appealable as decrees but having regard to the denunciation of a decree in the Code they would no longer be appealable in that way and we think it necessary to make them appealable as orders. We have also given an appeal against an order made under Rule 21 of Order XI.

Appendices.—The forms have been amplified and where necessary re-drafted. We think that as now settled they are an improvement on the forms in the present Code.
